GLYNN'S KEYNOTE SPEECH ROUSES WILD ENTHUSIASM

Delegates to Democratic National Convention Applaud Temporary Chairman With Such a Roar That He Is Forced to Repeat Peroration, Which Is Done to Even Greater Applause.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN WEEPS WITH EMOTION

After Hearing Speech Convention Adjourns Until This Morning—Committees Get Down to Work—Suffragists' "Golden Lane," on Way to Coliseum, Is Noteworthy Demonstration.

St. Louis, June 14.—The democratic national convention at its first session today heard the keynote of Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity sounded by former Governor Glynn of New York as temporary chairman, and with a high pitch of enthusiasm emphatically registered by demonstration after demonstration its approval of President Wilson's peaceful conduct of foreign affairs.

The convention, which had gotten under way with such perfunctory demonstrations as mark every national gathering of the kind, soon stirred itself into roaring cheers as Chairman Glynn cited historic parallels to show that other presidents, including republicans, had adjusted threatening foreign situations without resort to war.

He went down the list of presidents, recounting their action to avoid war, the delegates caught the spirit of his argument and as he referred to each particular president, some delegate would call:

"What did he do?"

BRYAN WEEPS WITH EMOTION.

"He settled the trouble by negotiations," was the [illegible] which Glynn invariably returned, and the convention would roar its approval. William J. Bryan, as a newspaper correspondent in the press stand, wept with emotion as Glynn pictured the victories of peace, but he laughed with the crowd when a Texas delegate interrupting Glynn, leaped to his chair and cried:

"And don't forget that policy is also satisfactory to William Jennings Bryan."

Aside from a sixteen-minute demonstration when Chairman Glynn predicted President Wilson's re-election, Governor Glynn's speech was sprinkled with demonstrations which he found it difficult to still so he could go on. It was plain that the telling points on the delegates were the recital of President Wilson's effort to keep the country at peace.

"WHEN REASON PRIMES THE RIFLE."

"This policy," he said, "may not satisfy the fire eater and the swashbuckler. But it does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag and die for our flag when reason primes the rifle; when honor draws the sword and when justice breathes a blessing on the standard they uphold."

The last of the words were drowned out in a roar of applause that swept the coliseum.

"Repeat it," cried the delegates.

"All right, be quiet and I'll repeate it," responded Glynn, and he did to applause and cheering.

No other president since the civil war, Glynn told the convention, had faced such crucial problems, none had displayed a grasp of statesmanship more profound.

After hearing the keynote speech, the convention adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow. Committees then went into session to prepare their work for the convention. On their way to the convention hall the delegates passed between lines of suffragettes spread along twelve blocks of Locust street to the coliseum.

The suffragists were ranged along the curbs, arrayed in white and yellow and held yellow parasols. The waving lines of yellow gave the demonstration the popular name, "golden lane."

Suffrage "Golden Lane" Proves far From Talkless

St. Louis, June 14.—The suffragists' fight for an equal right plank in the democratic platform closed today with the "golden lane" demonstration and tonight all camps began their final drive on members of the resolutions committee and the three cabinet members, Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels and Secretary Houston, who are here.

Hope for victory never was brighter with the suffragists, for the conviction that the platform will favor their movement grows hourly. The big question now is what form the plank will take. Whether it will be stronger than that contained in the republican platform cannot be forecast until the committee takes final action.

President Wilson, among others, has submitted a plank to the committee, but tonight it was said that there was much doubt if it would be written into the platform. While the committee had not passed formally on the president's plank, the opinion was expressed by several members that it was not specific enough to be effective and a plank of stronger wording should be inserted.

WOMEN WANT STRONG STAND TAKEN.

A plank approved by Secretary Daniels also has found opposition in the National Woman Suffrage association, because it is considered too long. Its text, declaring for immediate passage by congress of a constitutional amendment, however, is favored by both the national association and the woman's party.

Representative Baker of California, a member of the committee, said tonight that he was trying to assemble the ideas of all the suffragists and express them in a plank which he would offer later. He believes the committee will insert a plank at least as strong as that presented by the republican platform, but he favors a much stronger one.

Both representatives of the nationals and the woman's party today interviewed Secretary Baker, who bore the president's plank here, but he did not commit himself on the issue. The nationals asked nothing more than a declaration favorable to suffrage, while the woman's party presented the Daniels plank to him and said they would stand on it.

ANTI-SUFFS APPEAR FIRST.

Suffragists won an early victory in the resolutions committee tonight when Mrs. Arthur Dodge and other anti-suffragists were compelled to present their opposition before the suffragists were heard. The nationals, woman's party and southern states conference delegations at the hearing were headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Miss Ann Martin and Miss Kate M. Gordon, respectively.

The "golden lane" demonstration staged by the nationals today was a most elaborate and picturesque suffrage display. Several thousand women, estimated from 6000 to 8000, wearing yellow sashes and bearing yellow suffragist banners and umbrellas, formed a lane on both sides of Locust street, between the Jefferson hotel and the convention hall, through which the democratic delegates passed on their way to the convention. The women were stationed four feet apart, facing the center of the street. They did not march except for a few hundred feet toward the close of the demonstration. A chair was provided for each woman, but few of them were used.

"GOLDEN LANE" FAR FROM TALKLESS.

The demonstration was far from "talkless," as it had been advertised. Soon after it started the women began to shift about uneasily and to show inclinations to step over and have a word with their neighbors. Men who came along seemed interested and wanted to talk with the workers. So in a very short time all good resolutions and promises of silence to "General" Updegraff went awry and everybody indulged in a few sociable remarks. The conversation never became loud, however, and none of the workers shouted at passing delegations, which really was the result the "general" wished to attain. She desired a dignified display and it was all of that.

Probably the unhappiest man in the whole city today was Henry Smith, a negro who drove "suffrage plank," the St. Louis suffragists' donkey, in the parade.

"SUFFRAGE PLANK" PROVES SOME KICKER.

"Suffrage plank" is only about ten hands high, but he is all feet, and he used them for purposes other than walking most of the day.

He kicked back so hard at the cart in which Henry rode that toward the close of the parade Henry let one foot drag along on the ground in a "safety first" attitude. And when the donkey was not kicking he was backing the thoroughly frightened Henry around Locust street or stalling street cars by balking in the middle of the track. The tableau representing the progress of suffrage throughout the world, was the most impressive picture of the day. Women from the enfranchised states delivered street corner addresses tonight.

KEYNOTER OF DEMOCRATS AT ST. LOUIS

Martin H. Glynn.

Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, acted as temporary chairman for the democratic national convention, and delivered a keynote speech yesterday which was wildly applauded—especially when references were made to President Woodrow Wilson.

Resolutions Committee Told Bryan Says Will Stand by The Wilson Administration

St. Louis, June 14.—President Wilson's plank on Americanism for the democratic platform, charging a conspiracy by some foreign born citizens to influence foreign and internal affairs for the benefit of other governments and condemning any organization countenancing such movements as well as any political party which by failure to repudiate such a conspiracy, receives the benefit of it at the ballot box, was telegraphed here tonight from Washington and placed before democratic leaders.

As the resolutions committee, which will draft the platform and pass on the plank, was engaged at a late hour tonight in continuing public hearings of persons urging various declarations in the platform, the plank which has the president's approval and which promises to be the sensation of the democratic platform, was not formally considered and probably will not be until tomorrow, when the sub-committee, which makes the final draft of the platform, has its meeting.

There was very guarded talk about the president's plank tonight because all the leaders agreed that practically everything depended upon the phraseology in which it finally found its way into the platform, and they did not propse to risk any leaks which might prove embarrassing later. The convention's boundless enthusiasm today whenever the issue of Americanism was touched upon, gave evidence that the president's plank would go into the platform in some terms, but it is certain to be the subject of extended and careful deliberation.

SUB-COMMITTEE TO DRAFT PLATFORM.

The following sub-committee to draft the platform was named:

Senator Stone of Missouri, chairman; Representative Rainey of Illinois; Senator Walsh of Montana; Senator Hollis of New Hampshire; Representative Fitzgerald of New York; Senator Pomerene of Ohio; former Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania; Senator Martin of Virginia, and Governor Stanley of Kentucky.

The sub-committee is expected to report to the entire committee at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

One tentative form for the wording of the plank which was being considered tonight, but which was subject to change by the committee, was as follows:

"Attention is called to certain organizations which have been attempting to influence the lives and policies in the interest of foreign power. Such organizations are condemned and any political party which seeks to take advantage of such influences is denounced."

This would be followed by a declaration to make it clear that the plank is in no way to be taken as a reflection upon the great body of naturalized citizens, irrespective of their race or origin.

RAINEY TO DRAFT TARIFF PLANK.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, who is leading the administration fight in the house for the tariff commission bill, will draft the tariff plank. Besides praising the present tariff law, it is planned to declare for a protective tariff for the dyestuff tariff for a period of probably five years. Some of the democrats expect a contest in the committee over such a protective feature, but it will be pointed out that no dyestuff industry of preparations now exists in America and that the duties are intended solely to protect a new industry from the dumping of European dyes which is expected to follow the war and the resumption of ocean transportation from the central empires.

While the resolutions committee was in session tonight, Samuel A. King of Utah arose and made this statement:

BRYAN WILL STAND BY PARTY.

"I called on William J. Bryan today and asked if he would submit any planks. He replied:

"'I have no planks to offer but one, and that is the president's. Determine what he wants and his plank will be mine. I expect to go before the people in his behalf on your report.'"

Conferences among leaders has brought the status of the democratic platform tonight to a point where aside from the all-important issue of foreign affairs, it stood substantially as follows:

RUSS JUGGERNAUT KEEPS SWEEPING ON THROUGH GALICIA

IN ELEVEN DAYS' DRIVE APPROXIMATELY 120,000 MEN, 130 CANNON AND 260 MACHINE GUNS HAVE BEEN CAPTURED, AND ADVANCE CONTINUES.

LITTLE DOING AROUND VERDUN

David Lloyd George Expected to Take Place of Kitchener as British Secretary for War—German Auxiliary Cruiser Sunk in Baltic—Italians Repulse Austrian Attacks.

The Associated Press summarizes the war news as follows:

An advance of about eighty miles by the Russians who have Czernowitz as their objective is chronicled in the latest Russian official communication. Having previously crossed the Dniester river and taken Horodenka and Zale Szczyky, the Russians have now driven their men to the left bank of the river Pruth and captured the town of Sniatyn, which lies on twenty miles northwest of the Bukowina capital.

Nowhere on the front from the Pripet river in Russia and through Galicia to Bukowina has there been any cessation in the great Russian offensive. Along the entire line, according to the Russian war office, the Austro-Hungarians and Germans are being driven back and the Russians are still taking thousands of prisoners and capturing guns, machine guns and war munitions. In the eleven days' drive 1,780 officers and 120,000 men and 130 guns and 260 machine guns have been captured.

In the lower end of the German line in Russia, north of Baranovichi, the Russians evidently have anticipated the proposed German offensive and taken the initiative into their own hands. Here, after the violent artillery preparations, they essayed to storm the German lines. Berlin says, however, that all their efforts failed and that they were repulsed with heavy losses.

ALL QUIET AROUND VERDUN.

The fighting around Verdun has dwindled to intermittent bombardments, there having been no infantry attack anywhere on this front since Tuesday, when French positions west and south of Thiaumont farm were captured by the Germans and 793 French made prisoners. The Canadians around Zillebeke in Belgium are holding to the 1,500 yards of ground recaptured from the Germans Tuesday, although the Germans are heavily shelling them. No infantry attacks have been carried out by the Teutons.

The latest advices from the Austro-Italian war theatre credit the Italians with repulsing violent Austrian attacks on the Posina front northwest of Schio. On the other sectors of the line the Austrians are bombarding the Italian positions.

The German auxiliary cruiser Hermann has been attacked and sunk in the Baltic southeast of Stockholm by four Russian torpedo boat destroyers, according to Berlin. Reports from Sweden and Denmark concerning the fight say it was between Russian torpedo craft and a German auxiliary cruiser, some torpedo boats and armed trawlers which were conveying German merchantmen. In addition to the auxiliary cruiser and a destroyer, twelve of the merchantmen are reported to have been sunk.

It is anticipated in London that David Lloyd George will take the place of the late Earl Kitchener as British secretary for war. In case Mr. Lloyd George accepts the portfolio it is not believed that he will give up entirely his present duties as minister of munitions.

CZERNOWITZ THREATENED.

Brussiloff's Forces Swining on Toward Lemberg.

Petrograd, Via London, June 14.—Russia's most successful operation of the war is being pressed along the whole front in Volhynia and in Bukowina. Having cut the railway communications of Czernowitz from the north, the Russians have carried the fighting into the city's very outskirts. Its fall is momentarily expected.

At the same time the extreme right flank of General Brussiloff's forces is swinging out toward Kovel, another important railway injunction controlling communication with Lemberg from the north. The Russians approaching Kovel from the southwest along the Rovno-Kovel railway have reached the Stockhod river, 20 miles from Kovel. Southward of Kovel, they have pushed a wedge westward to Torchin in the direction of Vladmir-Volynski. This piercing of the Austrian line places the right flank of Prince Leopold's army in a precarious condition. A particularly stubborn defense is being made by the enemy in the advanced positions in the Kovel district.

At many intermediate points between the northern and southern points of contact the Austrians are reported to be retreating so hastily that they are out of touch with the Russians.

It is rumored that the Austrians are evacuating Lemberg.

The ruse practiced by the Russians at the beginning of the present operations is described as follows:

"The Russians opened with severe cannon fire which continued for several hours and suddenly ceased. The Austrians, from past experiences, expected an attack, which they prepared to meet, advancing machine guns and bomb throwers, bringing up troops and even preparing cavalry for a charge. These preparations were closely watched by Russian observers.

"When the stage was properly set the Russians launched instead of the expected advance, another shower of shells, much more violent than any of the previous ones, causing terrific slaughter and demorilization in the opposition ranks, on the heels of which they began a forward movement. The small number of commanding officers captured in proportion to the number of soldiers is attributed by military experts to the confusion existing in the Austrian armies due to the suddenness and energy of the Russian drive. It shows, it is argued, that the officers lost control of the men and abandoned them to their fate at critical moments.

FLAG DAY BRINGS FORTH MESSAGE OF AMERICANISM FROM PRESIDENT WILSON

After Leading Thousands in Great Patriotic Parade, Nation's Leader Talks from Foot of Washington Monument—"Foreign Born Citizens Trying to Levy Political Blackmail."

"DISLOYALTY ACTIVE: MUST BE CRUSHED"

Never Since Civil War, Declares Speaker, Has There Been Such a Test of Whether the Stars and Stripes Stand for Any One United Purpose—Keynote of One of Foremost Issues of Coming Campaign.

Washington, June 14.—A charge that foreign-born citizens of the United States are trying to levy political blackmail and to undermine the influence of the national government was made by President Wilson in a flag day speech here today. His assertion sounded the keynote of one of the foremost issues on which he will go before the country for re-election and touched upon a platform declaration which will be submitted by the administration to the St. Louis convention.

The president spoke before a crowd of thousands gathered at the foot of the Washington monument after he had reviewed for five hours a great preparedness parade at the head of which he himself had marched down Pennsylvania avenue. He declared that not since the Civil war had it been tested as it now is being tested whether the Stars and Stripes stood for any one united purpose.

"There is disloyalty active in the United States, and it must be absolutely crushed," declared the president, speaking emphatically.

"It proceeds from a minority, a very small minority, but a very active and subtle minority.

"It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it; and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of political blackmail, saying, 'Do what we wish in the interest of foreign sentiment, or we will wreak our vengeance at the polls.' That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with might."

OPEN CHALLENGE TO THE HYPHENATED.

The president's words were taken as an open challenge to foreign-born Americans who he had learned from foreign language newspapers and other sources are opposing him for re-election.

Mr. Wilson devoted the entire day to the flag day and preparedness demonstration. Carrying a large American flag, he walked from the capitol to the white house at the head of more than 50,000 marchers, including many high government officials.

The president, attired in white trousers, blue coat and straw hat, and shouldering his flag like a musket, stepped briskly to martial airs played by the United States marine band. He smiled broadly and frequently raised his hat in response to cheers.

IDEAL WEATHER FAVORS DEMONSTRATION.

Ideal weather favored the demonstration. There was hardly a cloud in the sky and it was as cool as late spring. Enthusiastic crowds thronged along the avenue from Peace monument to the white house.

In front of the white house the president took his place in a stand to review the parade. He was joined there by Mrs. Wilson and the members of the cabinet now in the city.

As the line swung around the treasury building the president was confronted by a huge banner bearing the legend: "Be prepared—if you care about ninety-one electoral votes, consider us—Woman's Party." Half a dozen young women with megaphones saw to it that the banner did not go unnoticed. It was the work of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage.

Washington was brilliantly decorated for the occasion. Under an executive order issued by the president, all government employes were exempted from work. Many stores were closed for the day.

AMERICAN FLAGS CARRIED BY MARCHERS.

The parade was a non-partisan affair and was suggested by a republican newspaper of Washington. Participating in it were many of the city's leading business men, cabinet officers, judges and members of the senate and house. There were many floats emphasizing preparedness. Former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft had been invited, but found it impossible to participate.

American flags were distributed to every marcher just before the parade started. Nearly every band in Washington and Baltimore was pressed into service.

The text of the president's address follows:

"I have not come here this afternoon with the purpose of delivering to you any elaborate address. It seems to me that the day is sufficiently elo[illegible]

Large Delegation Y.M.B.L. Trade Boosters Will Enter East Texas Country Today

The Young Men's Business League boosters will leave this morning on the biggest trade trip that has ever been undertaken by the leaguers. The destination is Palestine, the starting time will be 6:30, and the route will be over the International & Great Northern. Something like 250 persons are expected to accompany the special, which will be the third and last of the trips to be made this summer.

The demand for tickets has been unusually heavy, according to W. V. Crawford, chairman of the committee on transportation, and this is one of the things that points to a greater trip than has ever been "pulled off" by the Young Men's Business League. This journey will be staged in a more elaborate manner than any previous trip, the dinner and lunches costing more than any of the previous ones, and altogether the trip will be pulled off a la royal. Dinner will be served at Franklin, where there will be an hour's stop ,and supper will be had in Palestine, at which the special is due at 4:40, according to the schedule.

This will prove an excellent opportunity for the business men of Waco to extend their trade zones, as the territory in which they are going has not been invaded heretofore, and the commercial chiefs are expected to return with a supply of scalps hanging to their belts, to speak figuratively. The opportunity, whih will be taken advantage of, will also present for the boosting of the 1916 Cotton Palace, and urging its attendance by the Palestines.

Much attention has always been paid by the trippers to the boosting of Waco's chief exposition, and this will not be an exception. This advertising by the Y. M. B. L. has been one of the principal methods of securing publicity for the Cotton Palace in the past and has always proved efficacious in securing a large attendance by people from the neighboring counties, into which the trade trips have been made.

Arrangements have been made for receptions at nearly all the towns at which the special will make a stop. The most influential men in the towns have been drafted for the reception committees and an earnest welcome is assured the boosters. The large places where the special will stop will stage parades in honor of the visitors.

A number of the local police force will go with the traders and will be neatly clad in their white Cotton Palace uniforms. There will also be a band with the crusaders, which will furnish music during stops and help make the trip a roaring success.

The Southern Texas Traction company has graciously consented to cooperate with the Y. M. B. L., and in order to assure those who live far from the depot of arriving before the special leaves, will send cars on all lines one-half hour earlier than usual. These arrangements were made through H. B. Ross of the Southern Traction company.

A novel feature of the trip will be an inspection of the donkey that was presented to ex-Goxernor T. M. Campbell while here last year during the Cotton Palace. The custodian of the brute will bring him to Waco as a curiosity this year during the Cotton Palace, and as a democratic citizen of Waco, he will receive a visit of inspection by the trippers, who will decide whether the "thing" will enter the exhibits as a curiosity or fine democratic stock.

The itinerary of this, the last and most important of this summer's trips, is as follows:

	Arrive.	Leave.
Waco		6:30 am
Mart	7:17 am	7:37 am
Otto	7:40 am	7:54 am

Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, acted as temporary chairman for the democratic national convention, and delivered a keynote speech yesterday which was wildly applauded—especially when references were made to President Woodrow Wilson.

Resolutions Committee Told Bryan Says Will Stand by The Wilson Administration

St. Louis, June 14.—President Wilson's plank on Americanism for the democratic platform, charging a conspiracy by some foreign born citizens to influence foreign and internal affairs for the benefit of other governments and condemning any organization countenancing such movements as well as any political party which by failure to repudiate such a conspiracy, receives the benefit of it at the ballot box, was telegraphed here tonight from Washington and placed before democratic leaders.

Suffrage "Golden Lane" Proves far From Talkless

St. Louis, June 14.—The suffragists' fight for an equal right plank in the democratic platform closed today with the "golden lane" demonstration and tonight all camps began their final drive on members of the resolutions committee and the three cabinet members, Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels and Secretary Houston, who are here.

Hope for victory never was brighter with the suffragists, for the conviction that the platform will favor their movement grows hourly. The big question now is what form the plank will take. Whether it will be stronger than that contained in the republican platform cannot be forecast until the committee takes final action.

President Wilson, among others, has submitted a plank to the committee, but tonight it was said that there was much doubt if it would be written into the platform. While the committee had not passed formally on the president's plank, the opinion was expressed by several members that it was not specific enough to be effective and a plank of stronger wording should be inserted.

WOMEN WANT STRONG STAND TAKEN.

A plank approved by Secretary Daniels also has found opposition in the National Woman Suffrage association, because it is considered too long. Its text, declaring for immediate passage by congress of a constitutional amendment, however, is favored by both the national association and the woman's party.

Representative Baker of California, a member of the committee, said tonight that he was trying to assemble the ideas of all the suffragists and express them in a plank which he would offer later. He believes the committee will insert a plank at least as strong as that presented by the republican platform, but he favors a much stronger one.

Both representatives of the nationals and the woman's party today interviewed Secretary Baker, who bore the president's plank here, but he did not commit himself on the issue. The nationals asked nothing more than a declaration favorable to suffrage, while the woman's party presented the Daniels plank to him and said they would stand on it.

ANTI-SUFFS APPEAR FIRST.

Suffragists won an early victory in the resolutions committee tonight when Mrs. Arthur Dodge and other anti-suffragists were compelled to present their opposition before the suffragists were heard. The nationals, woman's party and southern states conference delegations at the hearing were headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Miss Ann Martin and Miss Kate M. Gordon, respectively.

The "golden lane" demonstration staged by the nationals today was a most elaborate and picturesque suffrage display. Several thousand women, estimated from 6000 to 8000, wearing yellow sashes and bearing yellow suffragist banners and umbrellas, formed a lane on both sides of Locust street, between the Jefferson hotel and the convention hall, through which the democratic delegates passed on their way to the convention. The women were stationed four feet apart, facing the center of the street. They did not march except for a few hundred feet toward the close of the demonstration. A chair was provided for each woman, but few of them were used.

"GOLDEN LANE" FAR FROM TALKLESS.

The demonstration was far from "talkless," as it had been advertised. Soon after it started the women began to shift about uneasily and to show inclinations to step over and have a word with their neighbors. Men who came along seemed interested and wanted to talk with the workers. So in a very short time all good resolutions and promises of silence to "General" Updegraff went awry and everybody indulged in a few sociable remarks. The conversation never became loud, however, and none of the workers shouted at passing delegations, which really was the result the "general" wished to attain. She desired a dignified display and it was all of that.

Probably the unhappiest man in the whole city today was Henry Smith, a negro who drove "suffrage plank," the St. Louis suffragists' donkey, in the parade.

"SUFFRAGE PLANK" PROVES SOME KICKER.

"Suffrage plank" is only about ten hands high, but he is all feet, and he used them for purposes other than walking most of the day.

He kicked back so hard at the cart in which Henry rode that toward the close of the parade Henry let one foot drag along on the ground in a "safety first" attitude. And when the donkey was not kicking he was backing the thoroughly frightened Henry around Locust street or stalling street cars by balking in the middle of the track. The tableau representing the progress of suffrage throughout the world, was the most impressive picture of the day. Women from the enfranchised states delivered street corner addresses tonight.

WEATHER

VOLUNTARY FORECAST.

By Isidor Block, D. O. S., F. R. Met. S., Optician and Meteorologist.

Generally fair with probability of thunder showers.

There is a low pressure over the Rio Grande, moving this way, which means that in all probability this section will get some thunder showers from it. Local showers persist over the central United States, with no large rainfall.

Local readings for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. yesterday: Maximum 89 degrees at 4 p. m., minimum 75 at 6 a. m.; barometer 29.80, humidity 55; total wind passage, 182 miles, 20 miles fastest, at 9:25 a. m.

RUSS JUGGERNAUT KEEPS SWEEPING ON THROUGH GALICIA

IN ELEVEN DAYS' DRIVE APPROXIMATELY 120,000 MEN, 130 CANNON AND 260 MACHINE GUNS HAVE BEEN CAPTURED, AND ADVANCE CONTINUES.

LITTLE DOING AROUND VERDUN

David Lloyd George Expected to Take Place of Kitchener as British Secretary for War—German Auxiliary Cruiser Sunk in Baltic—Italians Repulse Austrian Attacks.

The Associated Press summarizes the war news as follows:

An advance of about eighty miles by the Russians who have Czernowitz as their objective is chronicled in the latest Russian official communication. Having previously crossed the Dniester river and taken Horodenka and Zale Szczyky, the Russians have now driven their men to the left bank of the river Pruth and captured the town of Sniatyn, which lies on twenty miles northwest of the Bukowina capital.

Nowhere on the front from the Pripet river in Russia and through Galicia to Bukowina has there been any cessation in the great Russian offensive. Along the entire line, according to the Russian war office, the Austro-Hungarians and Germans are being driven back and the Russians are still taking thousands of prisoners and capturing guns, machine guns and war munitions. In the eleven days' drive 1,780 officers and 120,000 men and 130 guns and 260 machine guns have been captured.

In the lower end of the German line in Russia, north of Baranovichi, the Russians evidently have anticipated the proposed German offensive and taken the initiative into their own hands. Here, after the violent artillery preparations, they essayed to storm the German lines. Berlin says, however, that all their efforts failed and that they were repulsed with heavy losses.

ALL QUIET AROUND VERDUN.

The fighting around Verdun has dwindled to intermittent bombardments, there having been no infantry attack anywhere on this front since Tuesday, when French positions west and south of Thiaumont farm were captured by the Germans and 793 French made prisoners. The Canadians around Zillebeke in Belgium are holding to the 1,500 yards of ground recaptured from the Germans Tuesday, although the Germans are heavily shelling them. No infantry attacks have been carried out by the Teutons.

The latest advices from the Austro-Italian war theatre credit the Italians with repulsing violent Austrian attacks on the Posina front northwest of Schio. On the other sectors of the line the Austrians are bombarding the Italian positions.

The German auxiliary cruiser Hermann has been attacked and sunk in the Baltic southeast of Stockholm by four Russian torpedo boat destroyers, according to Berlin. Reports from Sweden and Denmark concerning the fight say it was between Russian torpedo craft and a German auxiliary cruiser, some torpedo boats and armed trawlers which were conveying German merchantmen. In addition to the auxiliary cruiser and a destroyer, twelve of the merchantmen are reported to have been sunk.

It is anticipated in London that David Lloyd George will take the place of the late Earl Kitchener as British secretary for war. In case Mr. Lloyd George accepts the portfolio it is not believed that he will give up entirely his present duties as minister of munitions.

CZERNOWITZ THREATENED.

Brussiloff's Forces Swining on Toward Lemberg.

Petrograd, Via London, June 14.—Russia's most successful operation of the war is being pressed along the whole front in Volhynia and in Bukowina. Having cut the railway communications of Czernowitz from the north, the Russians have carried the fighting into the city's very outskirts. Its fall is momentarily expected.

At the same time the extreme right flank of General Brussiloff's forces is swinging out toward Kovel, another important railway injunction controlling communication with Lemberg from the north. The Russians approaching Kovel from the southwest along the Rovno-Kovel railway have reached the Stockhod river, 20 miles from Kovel. Southward of Kovel, they have pushed a wedge westward to Torchin in the direction of Vladmir-Volynski. This piercing of the Austrian line places the right flank of Prince Leopold's army in a precarious condition. A particularly stubborn defense is being made by the enemy in the advanced positions in the Kovel district.

At many intermediate points between the northern and southern points of contact the Austrians are reported to be retreating so hastily that they are out of touch with the Russians.

It is rumored that the Austrians are evacuating Lemberg.

The ruse practiced by the Russians at the beginning of the present operations is described as follows:

"The Russians opened with severe cannon fire which continued for several hours and suddenly ceased. The Austrians, from past experiences, expected an attack, which they prepared to meet, advancing machine guns and bomb throwers, bringing up troops and even preparing cavalry for a charge. These preparations were closely watched by Russian observers.

"When the stage was properly set the Russians launched instead of the expected advance, another shower of shells, much more violent than any of the previous ones, causing terrific slaughter and demorilization in the opposition ranks, on the heels of which they began a forward movement. The small number of commanding officers captured in proportion to the number of soldiers is attributed by mistary experts to the confusion existing in the Austrian armies due to the suddenness and energy of the Russian drive. It shows, it is argued, that the officers lost control of the men and abandoned them to their fate at critical moments.

FLAG DAY BRINGS FORTH MESSAGE OF AMERICANISM FROM PRESIDENT WILSON

After Leading Thousands in Great Patriotic Parade, Nation's Leader Talks from Foot of Washington Monument—"Foreign Born Citizens Trying to Levy Political Blackmail."

"DISLOYALTY ACTIVE: MUST BE CRUSHED"

Never Since Civil War, Declares Speaker, Has There Been Such a Test of Whether the Stars and Stripes Stand for Any One United Purpose—Keynote of One of Foremost Issues of Coming Campaign.

Washington, June 14.—A charge that foreign-born citizens of the United States are trying to levy political blackmail and to undermine the influence of the national government was made by President Wilson in a flag day speech here today. His assertion sounded the keynote of one of the foremost issues on which he will go before the country for re-election and touched upon a platform declaration which will be submitted by the administration to the St. Louis convention.

The president spoke before a crowd of thousands gathered at the foot of the Washington monument after he had reviewed for five hours a great preparedness parade at the head of which he himself had marched down Pennsylvania avenue. He declared that not since the Civil war had it been tested as it now is being tested whether the Stars and Stripes stood for any one united purpose.

"There is disloyalty active in the United States, and it must be absolutely crushed," declared the president, speaking emphatically.

"It proceeds from a minority, a very small minority, but a very active and subtle minority.

"It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it; and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of political blackmail, saying, 'Do what we wish in the interest of foreign sentiment, or we will wreak our vengeance at the polls.' That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with might."

OPEN CHALLENGE TO THE HYPHENATED.

The president's words were taken as an open challenge to foreign-born Americans who he had learned from foreign language newspapers and other sources are opposing him for re-election.

Mr. Wilson devoted the entire day to the flag day and preparedness demonstration. Carrying a large American flag, he walked from the capitol to the white house at the head of more than 50,000 marchers, including many high government officials.

The president, attired in white trousers, blue coat and straw hat, and shouldering his flag like a musket, stepped briskly to martial airs played by the United States marine band. He smiled broadly and frequently raised his hat in response to cheers.

IDEAL WEATHER FAVORS DEMONSTRATION.

Ideal weather favored the demonstration. There was hardly a cloud in the sky and it was as cool as late spring. Enthusiastic crowds thronged along the avenue from Peace monument to the white house.

In front of the white house the president took his place in a stand to review the parade. He was joined there by Mrs. Wilson and the members of the cabinet now in the city.

As the line swung around the treasury building the president was confronted by a huge banner bearing the legend: "Be prepared—if you care about ninety-one electoral votes, consider us—Woman's Party." Half a dozen young women with megaphones saw to it that the banner did not go unnoticed. It was the work of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage.

Washington was brilliantly decorated for the occasion. Under an executive order issued by the president, all government employes were exempted from work. Many stores were closed for the day.

AMERICAN FLAGS CARRIED BY MARCHERS.

The parade was a non-partisan affair and was suggested by a republican newspaper of Washington. Participating in it were many of the city's leading business men, cabinet officers, judges and members of the senate and house. There were many floats emphasizing preparedness. Former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft had been invited, but found it impossible to participate.

American flags were distributed to every marcher just before the parade started. Nearly every band in Washington and Baltimore was pressed into service.

The text of the president's address follows:

"I have not come here this afternoon with the purpose of delivering to you any elaborate address. It seems to me that the day is sufficiently elo-

Large Delegation Y. M. B. L. Trade Boosters Will Enter East Texas Country Today

The Young Men's Business League boosters will leave this morning on the biggest trade trip that has ever been undertaken by the leaguers. The destination is Palestine, the starting time will be 6:30, and the route will be over the International & Great Northern. Something like 250 persons are expected to accompany the special, which will be the third and last of the trips to be made this summer.

The demand for tickets has been unusually heavy, according to W. V. Crawford, chairman of the committee on transportation, and this is one of the things that points to a greater trip than has ever been "pulled off" by the Young Men's Business League. This journey will be staged in a more elaborate manner than any previous trip, the dinner and lunches costing more than any of the previous ones, and altogether the trip will be pulled off a la royal. Dinner will be served at Franklin, where there will be an hour's stop and supper will be had in Palestine, at which the special is due at 4:40, according to the schedule.

This will prove an excellent opportunity for the business men of Waco to extend their trade zones, as the territory in which they are going has not been invaded heretofore, and the commercial chiefs are expected to return with a supply of scalps hanging to their belts, to speak figuratively. The opportunity, whih will be taken advantage of, will also present for the boosting of the 1916 Cotton Palace, and urging its attendance by the Palestines.

Much attention has always been paid by the trippers to the boosting of Waco's chief exposition, and this will not be an exception. This advertising by the Y. M. B. L. has been one of the principal methods of securing publicity for the Cotton Palace in the past and has always proved efficacious in securing a large attendance by people from the neighboring counties, into which the trade trips have been made.

Arrangements have been made for receptions at nearly all the towns at which the special will make a stop. The most influential men in the towns have been drafted for the reception committees and an earnest welcome is assured the boosters. The large places where the special will stop will stage parades in honor of the visitors.

A number of the local police force will go with the traders and will be neatly clad in their white Cotton Palace uniforms. There will also be a band with the crusaders, which will furnish music during stops and help make the trip a roaring success.

The Southern Texas Traction company has graciously consented to cooperate with the Y. M. B. L. and in order to assure those who live far from the depot of arriving before the special leaves, will send cars on all lines one-half hour earlier than usual. These arrangements were made through H. B. Ross of the Southern Traction company.

A novel feature of the trip will be an inspection of the donkey that was presented to ex-Goxernor T. M. Campbell while here last year during the Cotton Palace. The custodian of the brute will bring him to Waco as a curiosity this year during the Cotton Palace, and as a democratic citizen of Waco, he will receive a visit of inspection by the trippers, who will decide whether the "thing" will enter the exhibits as a curiosity or fine democratic stock.

The itinerary of this, the last and most important of this summer's trips, is as follows:

	Arrive.	Leave.
Waco		6:30 am
Mart	7:17 am	7:37 am
Otto	7:40 am	7:54 am
Marlin	8:25 am	8:44 am

GLYNN'S KEY NOTE IS AMERICANISM

PEACE, PREPAREDNESS AND PROSPERITY DECLARED ISSUES ON WHICH PARTY STANDS.

WILSON HAILED AS STATESMAN

President Compared to Washington, Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson.

St. Louis, June 14.—With the assertion that no president since the civil war has had as crucial problems to solve; and no president has displayed a grasp more sure, a statesmanship more profound, as President Wilson, Hon. Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, opened the democratic national convention here today. Declaring that "Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity, are the issues upon which the democratic party stands, and the heart of democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party, as it hails the man who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity," he predicted the re-election of President Wilson.

Taking up our foreign relations that has been called into emphatic prominence by the world-wide war, the speaker declared that "We have entered this hall as democrats; we shall deliberate as Americans." * * * The policy of neutrality, he argued, is as truly American as the American flag. For two hundred years neutrality was a theory; America made it a fact. "It took Washington and his successors eighty years of endless negotiation to win recognition of American neutrality. And this eighty years of struggle wove the doctine of neutrality so closely into the warp and woof of our national life that to tear it out now would unravel the very threads of our existence." By the records of history Mr. Glynn maintained that if Washington and Lincoln were right, President Wilson is right. The neutrality that President Wilson stands for today was advocated by Washington, by Hamilton, by Jefferson and by Lincoln.

By citing precedents, Mr. Glynn justified and defended the course of the president in the Lusitania and similar incidents. "In the face of this record," he asked, "do republicans realize that when they arraign the policy of the president of the United States today, they arraign the policy of Harrison, of Baine, of Lincoln and of Grant? For the pleasure of criticizing a democratic president, are they willing to read out of the republican party the greatest men the republican party ever had? Are they willing to say that the republican party of today condemns what Hamilton did in revolutionary days, what Lincoln did in civil war days, and what Grant and Blains and Harrison did but yesterday?

"In his policy of peaceful negotiations today the president of the United States follows the example set him by the greatest presidents which the democratic party and the greatest presidents the republican party ever gave this nation."

Mr. Glynn impressed on his hearers that it was the business of this convention, "representing every section of the United States, speaking for every racial strain in America, to send forth a message to all the world that will leave no room for doubt.

"We must enable every real American to stand up and assert his Americanism. We must make the issue so clear that every ballot box in the land may become a monument to the loyalty of American manhood.

"The citizens of this country must stand behind their president because his policies are right. They will stand behind him because his policies are the policies which have brought the nation a century of prosperous and honored peace. They will stand behind him because they want these policies continued, that prosperity prolonged, that peace assured."

He pointed out that the promise made four years ago that a democratic administration would liberate the nation from the chains of industrial tyranny has been carried out. He eulogized the federal reserve act and declared that the "scholar-statesman whose rod has struck the golden rock of America's resources, to set free the wealth imprisoned for half a century, is a Moses who has led America's industries from the wilderness of doubt and despair to the Promised Land of Prosperity and Hope."

The laws restraining big business from stifling competition, the trades commission act, the movement to foster expansion of American trade, the close union of economic, commercial and financial interests between the United States and the nations of South America are shown to be legislation of the widest benefit. The Underwood tariff Mr. Glynn characterized as the "fairest and best of all we have enacted." Under the present administration the United States has enjoyed a wonderful era of good business and good times.

The American's ideals and his aspirations served as the basis for the speaker's opening discussion.

"We who stand today on the fertile soil of America, who live under the smiling skies of a free and fruitful land, must prove worthy of the trust that American sacrifice has imposed on every American.

"Disregarding the divisions that make one man a tory and another a whig, one man a republican and another a democrat, Americans will cast aside the tinsel of party labels and the mummery of party emblems.

"From the great pulsing heart of the nation will come a patriot command to crush partisanship, and rebuke whatever is mean or blind.

"That command will be heard by the ploughman in his field, and by the laborer at his bench. It will reach the merchant in his office and the lawyer at his desk. We would be false to ourselves and recreant to those who send us here if we permitted any thought of partisan profit, any consideration of political advantage to obscure our vision of the tremendous issues now before the people of the United States. We must cast aside all that is selfish, we must hold ourselves worthy of a nation's confidence by offering only the best of our intelligence, the flower of our patriotism toward to the solution of what all men perceive to be a crisis in the nation's affairs."

In asking for an endorsement of the president's peace policy, Mr. Glynn said:

"For two years the world has been afire; the civilization that we know has been torn by the mightiest struggle in its history. Sparks from Europe's conflagration have blazed in our own skies, echoes of her strife have sounded at our very doors. That fire still burns, that struggle still continues, but thus far the United States has held the flame at bay; thus far it has saved its people from participation in the conflict.

"What the people of the United States must determine through their suffrage is whether the course the country has pursued through this crucial period is to be continued; whether the principles that have been asserted as our national policy shall be indorsed or withdrawn.

"This is the paramount issue. No lesser issue must cloud it, no unrelated problems must confuse it."

In declaring that the policy of neutrality is as American as the American flag, Mr. Glynn asserted that:

"The first president of the United States was the first man to pronounce neutrality a rule of international conduct.

"In April, 1793, Washington declared the doctrine, and within a month, John Clay, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, in an epoch-making decision from the bench whose realization would insure universal and perpetual peace, wrote the principle into the law of this land. The Declaration of Independence had foretold it by declaring 'the rest of mankind enemies in war, in peace friends;' the constitution recognized it; but the first president of the United States, by proclamation, the first chief justice by interpretation gave it vitality and power.

"The president of the United States stands today where stood the men who made America and who saved America. He stands where John Adams stood, when he told King George that America was the land he loved and that peace was her grandeur and her welfare. He stands where General Grant stood when he said there never was a war that could not have been settled better some other way, and he has shown his willingness to try the ways of peace before he seeks the paths of war. He stands where George Washington stood when he prayed that this country would never unsheath the sword except in self-defense so long as justice and our essential rights could be preserved without it.

"For vain glory or for selfish purpose, others may cry up a policy of blood and iron, but the president of the United States has acted on the belief that the leader of a nation who plunges his people into an unnecessary war, like Pontius Pilate, vainly washes his hands of innocent blood while the earth quakes and the heavens are darkened and thousands give up the ghost."

Speaking of the opposition to the president's peace policy, the speaker continued:

"By opposing what we stand for today, the republican party opposes what Hamilton stood for a century ago. The founder of the republican party and the founder of the democratic party, placing their country's happiness above every other consideration, forgot partisanship and made American neutrality a national creed. We who follow Jefferson stand where Jefferson stood, but we look in vain for a sign from the present leaders of the republican party to show that they follow where Hamilton led. Where Hamilton counseled moderation they denounce it. Where Hamilton thought only of country they think only of self. Where Hamilton placed patriotism above partisanship they placed partisanship above patriotism. How then do they dare to speak for the great body of American citizens who form the rank and file of the republican party? Do these leaders believe that their republicanism is a better republicanism than Hamilton's, their Americanism a purer Americanism than that of Washington?

"If Washington was right, if Jefferson was right, if Hamilton was right, if Lincoln was right, then the president of the United States is right today; if the republican leaders are right then Lincoln was wrong and Jefferson was wrong and Hamilton was wrong and Washington was wrong."

The justification of our policy of neutrality is expressed by Mr. Glynn in these words:

"Before this declaration every war was a world-war; since this declaration nearly every war has been a local war. Before this declaration war was a whirlpool, ever-increasing in area and in its whirl dragging down the nations of the earth; since this declaration war has become a sea of trouble upon which nations embark only from self-will, from self-interest or the necessity of geographical position, of financial obligation or political alliance.

"Neutrality is the policy which has kept us at peace while Europe has been driving the nails of war through the hands and feet of a crucified humanity.

"The praises of this policy are not written in the ruins of American homes, not in the wreck of American industries, not in the mourning of American families; they are found in the myriad evidences of prosperity and plenty that makes this a contented land. From every whirling spindle in America, from every growing thing that breathes its prayer of plenty to the skies, from every quiet school, from every crowded mart, from every peaceful home, goes up a song of praise, a paean of thanksgiving to hymn a nation's tribute, to the statesmanship that has brought these things to pass."

The issue raised by democracy's opponents of the vigor with which our neutrality has been enforced is dealt with by the records of history:

"When Grant was president, during the war between Spain and the Spanish West Indies, a Spanish gunboat seized the vessel 'Virginus,' flying the American flag and a Spanish commandant in cold blood shot the captain of the 'Virginus,' thirty-six of the crew and sixteen of the passengers.

"But we didn't go to war. Grant settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Harrison was president the people of Chili conceived a violent dislike to the United States for our insistence upon neutrality during the Chilian revolution. When the feeling was at its height one junior officer from the United States warship Baltimore was killed outright in the streets of Valparaiso and sixteen of our sailors wounded, of whom one afterwards died.

"But we didn't go to war. Harrison settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Lincoln was president this country's rights were violated on every side. England, Russia, France and Spain were guilty of such flagrant violations that Secretary of State Seward advanced a plan to go to war with all of them at one and the same time.

"But we didn't go to war. Lincoln settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president is trying to do today.

"When Pierce was president the British minister in this country and three of his counsel violated our neutrality during the Crimean war. We gave these representatives of Great ritain their passports and sent them home.

"But we didn't go to war. Pierce settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United tSates is trying to do today.

"When Van Buren was president a detachment of Canadian militia, during the internal troubles in Canada, boarded the United States ship Carolina in the American waters of Niagara river, killed an American member of the crew, fired the ship and sent her adrift over Niagara Falls.

"But we didn't go to war. Van Buren settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Jefferson was president England seized hundreds of our ships and Napoleon hundreds more.

"When Adams was president, France preyed upon our commerce. She extended her seizure, searches and confiscations to the very waters of the United States themselves until she had piled up in our state department charges of over 2300 violations of neutrality's law.

"But we didn't go to war. Adams settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Washington was president and 'neutrality' first declared, war convulsed Europe, our ships dared not to put out to sea, commerce was paralyzed and business depressed. American passengers and American crews were thrown into prison and deprived of legal rights.

"But we didn't go to war. Washington settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today."

In concluding this issue, Mr. Glynn asks:

"Do the critics of the present administration believe that Lincoln should have risked national disaster by using the sword rather than the pen in pressing the Alabama claims? Are they willing to brand Grant as a coward because he kept us at peace with Spain?

In answer to those who say that President Wilson's policy does not satisfy anyone, Mr. Glynn replies:

"He means that it does not satisfy those who would map out a new and untried course for this nation to pursue, but they forget it does satisfy those who believe the United States should live up to the principles it has professed for a century or more.

"Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court says this policy has given America the greatest diplomatic victory of the past generation. Maximilian Hardin, Germany's noted editor, says that 'never once has this republic violated its neutrality,' and Gilbert K. Chesterton, the famous English journalist, says, 'it is the duty of the president of the United States to protect the interests of the people of the United States,' that 'he can't dip his country into hell just to show the world he has a keen sense of being an individual savior.'

"This policy," Mr. Glynn continues, "may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire-eater or the swashbuckler. But it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the God of Peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag has sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag and die for our flag, when reason primes the rifle, when honor draws the sword, when Justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.

"Fighting for every degree of injury," he maintained, "would mean perpetual war and this is the policy of our opponents, deny it how they will. It would give us a war abroad each time the fighting cock of the European weather vane shifted with the breeze. It would make America the cockpit of the world. We would be so busy settling other people's quarrels that we would have no time to attend to our own business."

In his treatment of the issue of preparedness, Mr. Glynn asserts that the genius of this country is for peace.

"We have built our greatness on the resources of nature and the peaceful toil of our people. The ring of the anvil, not the rattle of the saber, the song of the reaper, not the shriek of the soldier, the clatter of the shuttle, not the crack of the rifle, have won us the place we occupy in the councils of the world.

"Like the old Mohawk chief who loved peace, we would like to throw the tomahawk of war so high in the sky that no man's hand could ever pull it down. But when some other tribe among the races of men sends us a bundle of arrows wrapped in the skin of a rattle snake, we want, like old Governor Bradford of Massachusetts, to be in a position to send that rattle snake's skin back stuffed with powder and with ball.

"We have been carried too close to the rocks of war during the last two years to believe that those rocks do not exist. And looking into the future we can perceive that if our sovereignty is not challenged, if our peace is not assailed it will only be because the world knows that we are strong enough to defend ourselves from every foe.

"For these reasons this administration has done more for our army and our navy than any administration in our history.

"More than this, it has mobilized the resources of the nation to meet the needs of war. It has placed the wealth of the country back of the strength of the country, the toiler back of the soldier and the sailor.

"And to our opponents we say you can't create an army, can't create a navy in the course of a day; to them we say if our navy is not strong enough, our army not big enough the republican party is 80 per cent to blame, for the republican party has been in control of this nation 80 per cent of the time during the last fifty years.

"The democratic party advocates and seeks preparedness, but it is preparedness for defense, not preparedness for aggression.

"It is the preparedness which builds the nation's house upon a rock, so it will not fall when the rains descend and the floods come and the winds blow.

"A regard for national surety as well as a pride for personal honor will therefore bring the American people to the support of their president. Whether their blood is drawn from the banks of the Rhine, or where the River Shannon flows; whether they hail from Alpine valleys or the meadows of the Pyrenes, whether their descent be German or French, Irish or English, Austrian or Italian, Russian or Greek, the men who have sworn an oath of fealty to the ideals of America will be true.

"They may love the lands of their fathers much, but they love the land of their children more. They may cherish the memory of the sod from whence they sprang, but they stand ready to die for the soil that they have hallowed with their homes."

In his review of our domestic policy the temporary chairman pointed that the promise made by democracy four years ago had been faithfully kept.

"Today the prosperity which the nation enjoys bears witness that democracy has kept the faith. Today the gates of opportunity are open; the hosts of special privilege stand disarmed. Today the forces of government are encouraging, not blocking, the full expression of the nation's progress. Today the business man, the artisan and farmer find themselves free to enjoy the fruits of their labors, unhampered by the sinister power of special privilege or the selfish oppression of 'invisible government.'"

Of the federal reserve act, Mr. Glynn had this to say:

"In the panic of 1907, under the old system, New York could not lend a country bank $50,000 with which to meet factory payrolls; in 1915, under the new system, inaugurated by this democratic administration, New York loaned Europe $500,000,000, even though the financial centers of the world were disrupted by the world war, and there were still left in New York the largest bank deposits in its history.

"If this democratic administration had performed no other public service than the enactment of the federal reserve act, it would deserve the unstinted approval of a grateful nation. Thanks to democracy and to democracy's great leader, the business man who is struggling to establish himself may now work out his destiny without living in terror of panics and hard times. The toiler in the factory may ply his tasks in security, knowing that his employer's business is safe from assault. The farmer who must borrow to move his crops may do so without spending his days in anxiety, his nights in nightmares of foreclosure and disaster."

"The Underwood tariff," declared the speaker, "enacted by this administration, has banished greed from the gates of our ports and written justice into our tariff schedules.

"Of all the tariffs we ever enacted this is the fairest and best.

"Until the foreign war reduced importations no new tariff was ever more satisfactory. The highest protective tariff ever written would probably have given us no more revenue during this European war, and a higher tariff on the necessities of life would have placed a woeful burden on the poor man in the conditions which the war abroad has brought about.

"By the Underwood law this administration has taken the tariff out of politics; by the new tariff commission it proposes to take politics out of the tariff."

In the discussion of prosperity Mr. Glynn made particular reference to our industrial condition.

"Today prosperity shines from blazing furnaces and glowing forges. It echoes from busy docks and from thronged emporiums of trade. Its message of plenty fills the land with the chant of the spindle and of loom, lifting the mortgage from the poor man's home and promising his children a future that seemed impossible before.

"During the past four years this country has experienced a steady and continuous improvement in business. Wealth has increased 21 per cent, the value of increased products 39 per cent, capital 43 per cent, wages 54 per cent and exports 77 per cent. The floodtide of our prosperity has risen to such unprecedented heights that the only limit to trade is our ability to make and transport the commodities demanded at home and abroad. Our fields and our factories cry aloud for men and unemployment has ceased to be a problem. Wages have advanced, building operations have resumed, real estate has recovered its worth.

"There is not an idle car on our railroads or an idle ship at our docks. For the first time in history, America's greatest port has become the world's greatest port.

"The purchasing power of our people is greater than that of any other people on the globe. Never was there as much money in our vaults as today. The aggregate resources of our national banks are $300,000,000 more than the aggregate resources of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, th eBank of Russia, the Reichbank of Germany, the Bank of the Netherlands, the Swiss National bank and the Bank of Japan. We have $401,000,000 of money more than we had a year and a half ago and our gold supply exceeds by many hundreds of millions the gold supply of any other nation on earth.

"This avalanche of money poured into our pockets by the rest of the world as a tribute to our national resources and our fidelity to peaceful industry is not the measure of our prosperity. It is only the symbol. Compared with our trade at home, this foreign trade is a mere pittance.' Our domestic commerce today is larger than the foreign commerce of all the nations of the world combined.

"Against this actual condition our opponents raise an argument of 'ifs.' With greater truth we can also enter the realm of conjecture and declare that if another candidate had been elected four years ago the United States would be at war today. A ton of 'ifs' do not weigh as much as a single fact. Our opponents forget that 'if' the flight of the seagulls off the coast of the West Indies had not directed his course, Columbus would not have discovered America when he did. But the seagulls were there—'ifs' cannot banish them—and Columbus found our land."

Chairman Glynn concluded with praise for President Wilson, who, he said, has measured up to the best traditions of a great office.

"He has been wise with a wisdom that is steeped in the traditions of his country, with a wisdom that has been disciplined by training and broadened by instruction.

"He has been firm with the firmness that proceeds from deep conviction, with the firmness that is grounded in a duty well defined.

"He has been patient with the patience which believes and trusts that truth crushed to earth will rise again, with the patience that can endure and wait, watch and pray, for the certain vindication of justice, humanity and right.

"He has been patriotic with a patriotism that has never wavered, a patriotism that is as pure and strong as the faith that moved the fathers when they made our country free.

"And when the history of these days comes to be written, and the children of tomorrow read their nation's story, when time shall have dispelled all misconception, and the years shall have rendered their impartial verdict, one name will represent the triumph of American principles over the hosts of darkness and of death.

"That name will be the name of the great president who has made democracy proud that he is a democrat, and make Americans proud that he is an American.

"It will be the name of the statesman who has kept his country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the student and the scholar who has championed the cause of American freedom wherever he found it oppressed; the name of the patriot who has implanted his country's flag on the highest peak to which humanity has yet aspired; the name that carried the torch of progress to victory once and will carry it to victory again, the name of Woodrow Wilson, president and president-to-be."

TALLMAN DOES NOT QUIBBLE ABOUT IT

Sent Word to Daughter in Houston. Says Vitalitas Can't Be Beat.

Mr. J. H. Tallman, the well known novelty sign man whose home address is 103 East Boulevard, El Paso, has been so much helped by natural Vitalitas that he has given the following statement, in which he does not quibble about its merits:

"It is the best medicine on earth. You would say so, too, if you had gotten the relief that I have in the few days that I have taken it. Vitalitas helped me from the first. My stomach was in such condition that everything I would eat made me sick and I was thoroughly disheartened about myself. I thought there must be something that would right my trouble and soon became convinced that Vitalitas was the medicine I was looking for. My stomach has been benefited from the first, also a touch of rheumatism that I had. I feel better in every way. I wrote my daughter who lives in Houston to try Vitalitas, saying if she could not get it there I would send it to her from El Paso. It simply beats anything I ever heard of and I am glad to recommend it."

There is nothing known in Nature that equals Vitalitas as a tonic and corrective for such disorders as indigestion, rheumatism, nervous debility, etc. It is wonderfully effective. For sals by Powers-Kelly Drug Co., and all other druggists.

HOW MAGNESIA HELPS DYSPEPTICS

Patent Foods, Dieting And Medicines No Longer Necessary.

Many dyspeptics have now discontinued the use of expensive patent foods, are eating what they please in reason yet no longer take harmful drugs, medicines and artificial digestants to relieve their stomach trouble. Instead they just take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that they not only save money but enjoy much better health and the stomach no longer gives them trouble.

Those who have once tried bisurated magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know that this wonderful antacid and food corrective which absolutely does not injure the stomach and which can be obtained at little cost at almost any drug store will instantly neutralize all their excessive stomach acidity and prevent all possibility of their food souring or fermenting in the stotmach. Try this plan yourself but be sure to get bisurated magnesia as magnesia in other forms often have a strong laxative effect, which is not desirable

LARGE PIMPLES ALL OVER BODY

My Skin Was Sore and Inflamed. Would Itch and Burn. Bothered For Over Two Years.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was bothered with dry skin and pimples all over my body. They were large, red, and hard, and would fester and scale over, and my skin was sore and inflamed. The breaking out would itch and when I scratched they would get sore and burn. My clothing aggravated the breaking out on my body. I was bothered for over two years.

"I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and gave them a trial. After the first application I felt relief. I used two full-sized boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap and in less than two months I was healed." (Signed) Arthur E. Goodrich, Co. GLYNN'S KEY NOTE IS AMERICANISM

PEACE, PREPAREDNESS AND PROSPERITY DECLARED ISSUES ON WHICH PARTY STANDS.

WILSON HAILED AS STATESMAN

President Compared to Washington, Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson.

St. Louis, June 14.—With the assertion that no president since the civil war has had as crucial problems to solve, and no president has displayed a grasp more sure, a statesmanship more profound, as President Wilson, Hon. Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, opened the democratic national convention here today. Declaring that "Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity, are the issues upon which the democratic party stands, and the heart of democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party, as it hails the man who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity," he predicted the re-election of President Wilson.

Taking up our foreign relations that has been called into emphatic prominence by the world-wide war, the speaker declared that "We have entered this hall as democrats; we shall deliberate as Americans." * * * The policy of neutrality, he argued, is as truly American as the American flag. For two hundred years neutrality was a theory; America made it a fact. "It took Washington and his successors eighty years of endless negotiation to win recognition of American neutrality. And this eighty years of struggle wove the doctine of neutrality so closely into the warp and woof of our national life that to tear it out now would unravel the very threads of our existence." By the records of history Mr. Glynn maintained that if Washington and Lincoln were right, President Wilson is right. The neutrality that President Wilson stands for today was advocated by Washington, by Hamilton, by Jefferson and by Lincoln.

By citing precedents, Mr. Glynn justified and defended the course of the president in the Lusitania and similar incidents. "In the face of this record," he asked, "do republicans realize that when they arraign the policy of the president of the United States today, they arraign the policy of Harrison, of Baine, of Lincoln and of Grant? For the pleasure of criticizing a democratic president, are they willing to read out of the republican party the greatest men the republican party ever had? Are they willing to say that the republican party of today condemns what Hamilton did in revolutionary days, what Lincoln did in civil war days, and what Grant and Blains and Harrison did but yesterday?

"In his policy of peaceful negotiations today the president of the United States follows the example set him by the greatest presidents which the democratic party and the greatest presidents the republican party ever gave this nation."

Mr. Glynn impressed on his hearers that it was the business of this convention, "representing every section of the United States, speaking for every racial strain in America, to send forth a message to all the world that will leave no room for doubt.

"We must enable every real American to stand up and assert his Americanism. We must make the issue so clear that every ballot box in the land may become a monument to the loyalty of American manhood.

"The citizens of this country must stand behind their president because his policies are right. They will stand behind him because his policies are the policies which have brought the nation a century of prosperous and honored peace. They will stand behind him because they want these policies continued, that prosperity prolonged, that peace assured."

He pointed out that the promise made four years ago that a democratic administration would liberate the nation from the chains of industrial tyranny has been carried out. He eulogized the federal reserve act and declared that the "scholar-statesman whose rod has struck the golden rock of America's resources, to set free the wealth imprisoned for half a century, is a Moses who has led America's industries from the wilderness of doubt and despair to the Promised Land of Prosperity and Hope."

The laws restraining big business from stifling competition, the trades commission act, the movement to foster expansion of American trade, the close union of economic, commercial and financial interests between the United States and the nations of South America are shown to be legislation of the widest benefit. The Underwood tariff Mr. Glynn characterized as the "fairest and best of all we have enacted." Under the present administration the United States has enjoyed a wonderful era of good business and good times.

The American's ideals and his aspirations served as the basis for the speaker's opening discussion.

"We who stand today on the fertile soil of America, who live under the smiling skies of a free and fruitful land, must prove worthy of the trust that American sacrifice has imposed on every American.

"Disregarding the divisions that make one man a tory and another a whig, one man a republican and another a democrat, Americans will cast aside the tinsel of party labels and the mummery of party emblems.

"From the great pulsing heart of the nation will come a patriot command to crush partisanship, and rebuke whatever is mean or blind.

"That command will be heard by the ploughman in his field, and by the laborer at his bench. It will reach the merchant in his office and the lawyer at his desk. We would be false to ourselves and recreant to those who send us here if we permitted any thought of partisan profit, any consideration of political advantage to obscure our vision of the tremendous issues now before the people of the United States. We must cast aside all that is selfish, we must hold ourselves worthy of a nation's confidence by offering only the best of our intelligence, the flower of our patriotism toward to the solution of what all men perceive to be a crisis in the nation's affairs."

In asking for an endorsement of the president's peace policy, Mr. Glynn said:

"For two years the world has been afire; the civilization that we know has been torn by the mightiest struggle in its history. Sparks from Europe's conflagration have blazed in our own skies, echoes of her strife have sounded at our very doors. That fire still burns, that struggle still continues, but thus far the United States has held the flame at bay; thus far it has saved its people from participation in the conflict.

"What the people of the United States must determine through their suffrage is whether the course the country has pursued through this crucial period is to be continued; whether the principles that have been asserted as our national policy shall be indorsed or withdrawn.

"This is the paramount issue. No lesser issue must cloud it, no unrelated problems must confuse it."

In declaring that the policy of neutrality is as American as the American flag, Mr. Glynn asserted that:

"The first president of the United States was the first man to pronounce neutrality a rule of international conduct.

"In April, 1793, Washington declared the doctrine, and within a month, John Clay, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, in an epoch-making decision from the bench whose realization would insure universal and perpetual peace, wrote the principle into the law of this land. The Declaration of Independence had foretold it by declaring 'the rest of mankind enemies in war, in peace friends;' the constitution recognized it; but the first president of the United States, by proclamation, the first chief justice by interpretation gave it vitality and power.

"The president of the United States stands today where stood the men who made America and who saved America. He stands where John Adams stood, when he told King George that America was the land he loved and that peace was her grandeur and her welfare. He stands where General Grant stood when he said there never was a war that could not have been settled better some other way, and he has shown his willingness to try the ways of peace before he seeks the paths of war. He stands where George Washington stood when he prayed that this country would never unsheath the sword except in self-defense so long as justice and our essential rights could be preserved without it.

"For vain glory or for selfish purpose, others may cry up a policy of blood and iron, but the president of the United States has acted on the belief that the leader of a nation who plunges his people into an unnecessary war, like Pontius Pilate, vainly washes his hands of innocent blood while the earth quakes and the heavens are darkened and thousands give up the ghost."

Speaking of the opposition to the president's peace policy, the speaker continued:

"By opposing what we stand for today, the republican party opposes what Hamilton stood for a century ago. The founder of the republican party and the founder of the democratic party, placing their country's happiness above every other consideration, forgot partisanship and made American neutrality a national creed. We who follow Jefferson stand where Jefferson stood, but we look in vain for a sign from the present leaders of the republican party to show that they follow where Hamilton led. Where Hamilton counseled moderation they denounce it. Where Hamilton thought only of country they think only of self. Where Hamilton placed patriotism above partisanship they placed partisanship above patriotism. How then do they dare to speak for the great body of American citizens who form the rank and file of the republican party? Do these leaders believe that their republicanism is a better republicanism than Hamilton's, their Americanism a purer Americanism than that of Washington?

"If Washington was right, if Jefferson was right, if Hamilton was right, if Lincoln was right, then the president of the United States is right today; if the republican leaders are right then Lincoln was wrong and Jefferson was wrong and Hamilton was wrong and Washington was wrong."

The justification of our policy of neutrality is expressed by Mr. Glynn in these words:

"Before this declaration every war was a world-war; since this declaration nearly every war has been a local war. Before this declaration war was a whirlpool, ever-increasing in area and in its whirl dragging down the nations of the earth; since this declaration war has become a sea of trouble upon which nations embark only from self-will, from self-interest or the necessity of geographical position, of financial obligation or political alliance.

"Neutrality is the policy which has kept us at peace while Europe has been driving the nails of war through the hands and feet of a crucified humanity.

"The praises of this policy are not written in the ruins of American homes, not in the wreck of American industries, not in the mourning of American families; they are found in the myriad evidences of prosperity and plenty that makes this a contented land. From every whirling spindle in America, from every growing thing that breathes its prayer of plenty to the skies, from every quiet school, from every crowded mart, from every peaceful home, goes up a song of praise, a paean of thanksgiving to hymn a nation's tribute, to the statesmanship that has brought these things to pass."

The issue raised by democracy's opponents of the vigor with which our neutrality has been enforced is dealt with by the records of history:

"When Grant was president, during the war between Spain and the Spanish West Indies, a Spanish gunboat seized the vessel 'Virginus,' flying the American flag and a Spanish commandant in cold blood shot the captain of the 'Virginus,' thirty-six of the crew and sixteen of the passengers.

"But we didn't go to war. Grant settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Harrison was president the people of Chili conceived a violent dislike to the United States for our insistence upon neutrality during the Chilian revolution. When the feeling was at its height one junior officer from the United States warship Baltimore was killed outright in the streets of Valparaiso and sixteen of our sailors wounded, of whom one afterwards died.

"But we didn't go to war. Harrison settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Lincoln was president this country's rights were violated on every side. England, Russia, France and Spain were guilty of such flagrant violations that Secretary of State Seward advanced a plan to go to war with all of them at one and the same time.

"But we didn't go to war. Lincoln settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president is trying to do today.

"When Pierce was president the British minister in this country and three of his counsel violated our neutrality during the Crimean war. We gave these representatives of Great ritain their passports and sent them home.

"But we didn't go to war. Pierce settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United tSates is trying to do today.

"When Van Buren was president a detachment of Canadian militia, during the internal troubles in Canada, boarded the United States ship Carolina in the American waters of Niagara river, killed an American member of the crew, fired the ship and sent her adrift over Niagara Falls.

"But we didn't go to war. Van Buren settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Jefferson was president England seized hundreds of our ships and Napoleon hundreds more.

"When Adams was president, France preyed upon our commerce. She extended her seizure, searches and confiscations to the very waters of the United States themselves until she had piled up in our state department charges of over 2300 violations of neutrality's law.

"But we didn't go to war. Adams settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Washington was president and 'neutrality' first declared, war convulsed Europe, our ships dared not to put out to sea, commerce was paralyzed and business depressed. American passengers and American crews were thrown into prison and deprived of legal rights.

"But we didn't go to war. Washington settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today."

In concluding this issue, Mr. Glynn asks:

"Do the critics of the present administration believe that Lincoln should have risked national disaster by using the sword rather than the pen in pressing the Alabama claims? Are they willing to brand Grant as a coward because he kept us at peace with Spain?

In answer to those who say that President Wilson's policy does not satisfy anyone, Mr. Glynn replies:

"He means that it does not satisfy those who would map out a new and untried course for this nation to pursue, but they forget it does satisfy those who believe the United States should live up to the principles it has professed for a century or more.

"Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court says this policy has given America the greatest diplomatic victory of the past generation. Maximilian Hardin, Germany's noted editor, says that 'never once has this republic violated its neutrality,' and Gilbert K. Chesterton, the famous English journalist, says, 'it is the duty of the president of the United States to protect the interests of the people of the United States,' that 'he can't dip his country into hell just to show the world he has a keen sense of being an individual savior.'

"This policy," Mr. Glynn continues, "may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire-eater or the swashbuckler. But it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the God of Peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag has sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag and die for our flag, when reason primes the rifle, when honor draws the sword, when Justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.

"Fighting for every degree of injury," he maintained, "would mean perpetual war and this is the policy of our opponents, deny it how they will. It would give us a war abroad each time the fighting cock of the European weather vane shifted with the breeze. It would make America the cockpit of the world. We would be so busy settling other people's quarrels that we would have no time to attend to our own business."

In his treatment of the issue of preparedness, Mr. Glynn asserts that the genius of this country is for peace.

"We have built our greatness on the resources of nature and the peaceful toil of our people. The ring of the anvil, not the rattle of the saber, the song of the reaper, not the shriek of the soldier, the clatter of the shuttle, not the crack of the rifle, have won us the place we occupy in the councils of the world.

"Like the old Mohawk chief who loved peace, we would like to throw the tomahawk of war so high in the sky that no man's hand could ever pull it down. But when some other tribe among the races of men sends us a bundle of arrows wrapped in the skin of a rattle snake, we want, like old Governor Bradford of Massachusetts, to be in a position to send that rattle snake's skin back stuffed with powder and with ball.

"We have been carried too close to the rocks of war during the last two years to believe that those rocks do not exist. And looking into the future we can perceive that if our sovereignty is not challenged, if our peace is not assailed it will only be because the world knows that we are strong enough to defend ourselves from every foe.

"For these reasons this administration has done more for our army and our navy than any administration in our history.

"More than this, it has mobilized the resources of the nation to meet the needs of war. It has placed the wealth of the country back of the strength of the country, the toiler back of the soldier and the sailor.

"And to our opponents we say you can't create an army, can't create a navy in the course of a day; to them we say if our navy is not strong enough, our army not big enough the republican party is 80 per cent to blame, for the republican party has been in control of this nation 80 per cent of the time during the last fifty years.

"The democratic party advocates and seeks preparedness, but it is preparedness for defense, not preparedness for aggression.

"It is the preparedness which builds the nation's house upon a rock, so it will not fall when the rains descend and the floods come and the winds blow.

"A regard for national surety as well as a pride for personal honor will therefore bring the American people to the support of their president. Whether their blood is drawn from the banks of the Rhine, or where the River Shannon flows; whether they hail from Alpine valleys or the meadows of the Pyrenes, whether their descent be German or French, Irish or English, Austrian or Italian, Russian or Greek, the men who have sworn an oath of fealty to the ideals of America will be true.

"They may love the lands of their fathers much, but they love the land of their children more. They may cherish the memory of the sod from whence they sprang, but they stand ready to die for the soil that they have hallowed with their bbmes."

In his review of our domestic policy the temporary chairman pointed that the promise made by democracy four years ago had been faithfully kept.

"Today the prosperity which the nation enjoys bears witness that democracy has kept the faith. Today the gates of opportunity are open; the hosts of special privilege stand disarmed. Today the forces of government are encouraging, not blocking, the full expression of the nation's progress. Today the business man, the artisan and farmer find themselves free to enjoy the fruits of their labors, unhampered by the sinister power of special privilege or the selfish oppression of 'invisible government.'"

Of the federal reserve act, Mr. Glynn had this to say:

"In the panic of 1907, under the old system, New York could not lend a country bank $50,000 with which to meet factory payrolls; in 1915, under the new system, inaugurated by this democratic administration, New York loaned Europe $500,000,000, even though the financial centers of the world were disrupted by the world war, and there were still left in New York the largest bank deposits in its history.

"If this democratic administration had performed no other public service than the enactment of the federal reserve act, it would deserve the unstinted approval of a grateful nation. Thanks to democracy and to democracy's great leader, the business man who is struggling to establish himself may now work out his destiny without living in terror of panics and hard times. The toiler in the factory may ply his tasks in security, knowing that his employer's business is safe from assault. The farmer who must borrow to move his crops may do so without spending his days in anxiety, his nights in nightmares of foreclosure and disaster."

"The Underwood tariff," declared the speaker, "enacted by this administration, has banished greed from the gates of our ports and written justice into our tariff schedules.

"Of all the tariffs we ever enacted this is the fairest and best.

"Until the foreign war reduced importations no new tariff was ever more satisfactory. The highest protective tariff ever written would probably have given us no more revenue during this European war, and a higher tariff on the necessities of life would have placed a woeful burden on the poor man in the conditions which the war abroad has brought about.

"By the Underwood law this administration has taken the tariff out of politics; by the new tariff commission it proposes to take politics out of the tariff."

In the discussion of prosperity Mr. Glynn made particular reference to our industrial condition.

"Today prosperity shines from blazing furnaces and glowing forges. It echoes from busy docks and from thronged emporiums of trade. Its message of plenty fills the land with the chant of the spindle and of loom, lifting the mortgage from the poor man's home and promising his children a future that seemed impossible before.

"During the past four years this country has experienced a steady and continuous improvement in business. Wealth has increased 21 per cent, the value of increased products 39 per cent, capital 43 per cent, wages 54 per cent and exports 77 per cent. The floodtide of our prosperity has risen to such unprecedented heights that the only limit to trade is our ability to make and transport the commodities demanded at home and abroad. Our fields and our factories cry aloud for men and unemployment has ceased to be a problem. Wages have advanced, building operations have resumed, real estate has recovered its worth.

"There is not an idle car on our railroads or an idle ship at our docks. For the first time in history, America's greatest port has become the world's greatest port.

"The purchasing power of our people is greater than that of any other people on the globe. Never was there as much money in our vaults as today. The aggregate resources of our national banks are $300,000,000 more than the aggregate resources of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, th eBank of Russia, the Reichbank of Germany, the Bank of the Netherlands, the Swiss National bank and the Bank of Japan. We have $401,000,000 of money more than we had a year and a half ago and our gold supply exceeds by many hundreds of millions the gold supply of any other nation on earth.

"This avalanche of money poured into our pockets by the rest of the world as a tribute to our national resources and our fidelity to peaceful industry is not the measure of our prosperity. It is only the symbol. Compared with our trade at home, this foreign trade is a mere pittance.' Our domestic commerce today is larger than the foreign commerce of all the nations of the world combined.

"Against this actual condition our opponents raise an argument of 'ifs.' With greater truth we can also enter the realm of conjecture and declare that if another candidate had been elected four years ago the United States would be at war today. A ton of 'ifs' do not weigh as much as a single fact. Our opponents forget that 'if' the flight of the seagulls off the coast of the West Indies had not directed his course, Columbus would not have discovered America when he did. But the seagulls were there—'ifs' cannot banish them—and Columbus found our land."

Chairman Glynn concluded with praise for President Wilson, who, he said, has measured up to the best traditions of a great office.

"He has been wise with a wisdom that is steeped in the traditions of his country, with a wisdom that has been disciplined by training and broadened by instruction.

"He has been firm with the firmness that proceeds from deep conviction, with the firmness that is grounded in a duty well defined.

"He has been patient with the patience which believes and trusts that truth crushed to earth will rise again, with the patience that can endure and wait, watch and pray, for the certain vindication of justice, humanity and right.

"He has been patriotic with a patriotism that has never wavered, a patriotism that is as pure and strong as the faith that moved the fathers when they made our country free.

"And when the history of these days comes to be written, and the children of tomorrow read their nation's story, when time shall have dispelled all misconception, and the years shall have rendered their impartial verdict, one name will represent the triumph of American principles over the hosts of darkness and of death.

"That name will be the name of the great president who has made democracy proud that he is a democrat, and make Americans proud that he is an American.

"It will be the name of the statesman who has kept his country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the student and the scholar who has championed the cause of American freedom wherever he found it oppressed; the name of the patriot who has implanted his country's flag on the highest peak to which humanity has yet aspired; the name that carried the torch of progress to victory once and will carry it to victory again, the name of Woodrow Wilson, president and president-to-be."

TALLMAN DOES NOT QUIBBLE ABOUT IT

Sent Word to Daughter in Houston. Says Vitalitas Can't Be Beat.

Mr. J. H. Tallman, the well known novelty sign man whose home address is 103 East Boulevard, El Paso, has been so much helped by natural Vitalitas that he has given the following statement, in which he does not quibble about its merits:

"It is the best medicine on earth. You would say so, too, if you had gotten the relief that I have in the few days that I have taken it. Vitalitas helped me from the first. My stomach was in such condition that everything I would eat made me sick and I was thoroughly disheartened about myself. I thought there must be something that would right my trouble and soon became convinced that Vitalitas was the medicine I was looking for. My stomach has been benefited from the first, also a touch of rheumatism that I had. I feel better in every way. I wrote my daughter who lives in Houston to try Vitalitas, saying if she could not get it there I would send it to her from El Paso. It simply beats anything I ever heard of and I am glad to recommend it."

There is nothing known in Nature that equals Vitalitas as a tonic and corrective for such disorders as indigestion, rheumatism, nervous debility, etc. It is wonderfully effective. For sale by Powers-Kelly Drug Co., and all other druggists.

HOW MAGNESIA HELPS DYSPEPTICS

Patent Foods, Dieting And Medicines No Longer Necessary.

Many dyspeptics have now discontinued the use of expensive patent foods, are eating what they please in reason yet no longer take harmful drugs, medicines and artificial digestants to relieve their stomach trouble. Instead they just take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that they not only save money but enjoy much better health and the stomach no longer gives them trouble.

Those who have once tried bisurated magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know that this wonderful antacid and food corrective which absolutely does not injure the stomach and which can be obtained at little cost at almost any drug store will instantly neutralize all their excessive stomach acidity and prevent all possibility of their food souring or fermenting in the stotmach. Try this plan yourself but be sure to get bisurated magnesia as magnesia in other forms often have a strong laxative effect, which is not desirable

House Burns Near Gatesville.

Gatesville, June 14.—The large two-story residence of C. P. Liljeblad, eight miles north of town, burned down this morning about 3 o'clock. The family escaped from the building in night clothes. The loss of everything was complete, amounting to about $5,000, with $1,000 insurance.

LARGE PIMPLES ALL OVER BODY

My Skin Was Sore and Inflamed. Would Itch and Burn. Bothered For Over Two Years.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was bothered with dry skin and pimples all over my body. They were large, red, and hard, and would fester and scale over, and my skin was sore and inflamed. The breaking out would itch and when I scratched they would get sore and burn. My clothing aggravated the breaking out on my body. I was bothered for over two years.

"I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and gave them a trial. After the first application I felt relief. I used two full-sized boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap and in less than two months I was healed." (Signed) Arthur E. Goodrich, Co. Weather Not So Favorable for Cotton

Washington, June 14.—Reviewing crop growing conditions for the week ended yesterday, the national weather and crop bulletin today says:

"The weather was less favorable for cotton than prevailed during the first week of June. Rains hindered cultivation in the northern part of the region. While cotton is late in most of Texas, due to earlier unfavorable weather conditions, the plants have developed so rapidly in extreme Southern Texas that one bale was marketed from Cameron county on the 10th.

"Weather conditions were generally favorable for the cultivation of other crops in the southern states."

MISS MARY ALLEN HONORED BY MRS. RAGLAND

PARTY FOR MARSHALL AND GILBERT HAY

Mrs. John F. Marshall has two attractive little grandsons come to visit her all the way from Raleigh, N. C. These are Marshall and Gilbert Hay. As one of the first pleasures of their visit, about thirty or more children were invited by their grandmother to come on Tuesday from 5 to 7 o'clock to play on the Marshall lawn. There were all sorts of games and lots of soda pop. Cake and ice cream cones were served in the well-kept garden at the rear of the home. Those who came to play were: William Benjamin and Cornelia Witsell, Eugenia Early, Margaret Hoskins, Fred Hoskins, Jack Davis, Edward Rotan, John Grey Kendall, Francis Zizinia, Stanton Dossett, Francis Dossett, James Sturgis, Carroll Sturgis, Simon Wise, Eli Landham, Junior Wise, Edith Seley, Schon Landman, Elizabeth Miller, Jane Dodd Moore, Edward Bolton, Albert Clifton, George Clark, James Clark, Dorothy Bell, Kyle McKinney, Elizabeth Burrows, Grace Downs, Mildred McCullough and Francis Grider.

RECEPTION IS GIVEN AT CULVER HOME

For Miss Ethel Jackson and Mrs. J. P. Sample, who are on the eve of their departure from Waco, the former going to San Francisco and the latter to Topeka, Kans., the Missionary societies of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, of which both ladies have been active members, entertained in their honor. The home of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Culver was thrown open for the occasion and the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Barcus, better known as "Mother Barcus," the oldest member of the society. Baskets of daisies were used in decoration, and formed the decorative scheme for the punch table. Stately magnolias were banked in the drawing room. It is with regret Waco relinquishes these two useful and popular women. The house party was made up of Mesdames F. P. Culver, Barcus, Llewellyn Aubrey, R. L. Abbott, Grace Wigley, B. C. Nettles, F. A. Winchell, J. B. Smith, W. W. Lastinger, Robert Allen, George Barcus, Long, with Misses Bert Wright and Nellie McCartney.

LUNCHEON FOR MRS. KEITH WATSON MATTHEWS

The dozen luncheon guests which Mrs. S. E. Stratton bespoke on Tuesday were chosen from the most intimate friends of Mrs. Weith Watson Matthews, and the occasion was a prenuptial honor to that popular Waco woman. Mrs. Stratton favored the old-fashioned flowers in her decorations, using a large basket of cornflowers in the reception hall, and other bright colored posies, dear to our grandmothers, carried out the quaintly picturesque scheme in all of the rooms except the dining room. Here white seemed more in keeping. The purity of the white sweet pea and the fragrance of the jessamine combined to make a beautiful table. Throughout the luncheon the scheme of white and green was closely followed. With beautiful flowers and old friends, Mrs. Keith Watson Matthews will long remember this beautiful courtesy of Mrs. Stratton. To Waco people, Mrs. Watson will always represent a charming personality and a forceful, active worker in clubdom and all civic enterprises. The luncheon guests were Mesdames Charles Hamilton, J. D. Williamson, J. S. Hill, W. B. Hays, Allan Sanford, J. P. Massey, W. W. Seley, C. M. Seley, Irwin Clark, Pio Crespi, Keith Watson Matthews.

YOUNG MARRIED LADIES' BRIDGE CLUB

Red roses were used in the decorations at Tuesday's session of the Young Married Ladies' Bridge club, which was held with Mrs. Eva Glover Prendergast. The dining room was arranged in the form of a picnic luncheon, and during lulls in the games the players were at liberty to serve themselves at their own pleasure. This is an innovation, and an ideal manner of summer entertainment, where informality is to be desired. Mrs. Buford McWhirter received the head favor, and to Mrs. Harold Shear was given a white-and-black porcelain bon-bon box. The regular members played with the exception of Mrs. Gilbert Hay of North Carolina, and Mrs. Jack Little, who held substitute hands.

Society Notes

Mrs. Ira L. Hicks of Fourteenth and Morrow is entertaining for her daughter, Miss Rilla Hicks, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Mosley camp has been very popular. The following visitors are among those who have brought back reports of gay times there: Misses Lucile Gooch, Agnes Arbuckle, McWhartley, Ruby Rogers, Messrs. Harold Gooch, Hall of Chicago, J. D. Isaacs, Atkinson and Stanford.

Flag day was not forgotten in Waco and her patriotism was evidenced by Old Glory which floated high over many homes yesterday.

The Domestic Science club was recalled on Wednesday because of sickness in the home of the hostess, Mrs. Dorothy McCutcheon. The hostess for next week will be Mrs. S. P. Ross, who will entertain, however, at the suburban home of her mother, Mrs. T. J. Primm.

Mrs. C. C. Heithecker of Kansas and Miss Mittie Key Johnston of Louisiana will be house guests for the Hill anniversary reception.

Society Personals

Miss Catherine Lattimore leaves the last of the week for Galveston to visit her brother, Dr. John E. Lattimore, and Mrs. Schriminger.

Mrs. C. C. Heithecker of Kansas is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. G. Bostwick, of Terrace Row.

Miss Dorothy will return from the "State" tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Rumsey, Jr., motored down from Fort Worth and were passing guests of Judge and Mrs. T. F. Bryan. From Waco they took passage to points in Canada.

Miss Jo Glenn, who has been teaching in the Houston schools, is spending several days with Mrs. T. F. Bryan en route to her home in Ballinger.

Mrs. J. S. Hill has returned from Dallas.

Mrs. Eva Prendergast leaves on Friday for Curpus Christi.

Mrs. J. D. Williamson is in Dallas.

Hon. and Mrs. Tom Connally are up from Marlin, guests of their sister, Mrs. C. N. Smith.

Mrs. Joney Smith is spending this week in Corsicana.

Misses Virginia Gregory and Lula Strickland left Wednesday for Tennessee, where they will spend the summer months.

Little Misses May Kyle and Annie Louise Shumway are enjoying a house party in Cameron with the Misses Aiken.

Dr. B. L. Gayle has Miss Mittie Key Johnston as guest for several days.

Miss Ray Morks and Mr. William Marks are in Corsicana to attend the Marks-Cohen wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marks left last night for Corsicana to be present at the Marks-Cohen wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hulbert and little son left for California to spend the summer.

Mrs. E. T. Sligh and daughters, Robert Hatton, Arthur Coleman and Vernon Staley are in Galveston for several weeeks.

Mrs. Ernest Raines, the recent guest of Mrs. Sligh, has returned to Galveston.

PROVES SHE ISN'T A MERE BUTTERFLY

Miss Frances Moore at National Service School.

Miss Frances Moore is one of the younger social leaders of the national capital, but she is proving to the satisfaction of her friends that she isn't a mere butterfly. This picture of her was taken at the Women's National Service School.

Improvement Notes

A new front is being put in the Jurney building on the north side of the public square, which will change the entire appearance of the building. The old front has been torn out and the new one is to be put in, making the structure much more modern. Other changes will be made, also, involving the interior, and the building will be much more up-to-date when these changes shall have been completed.

The walls of the Fred-Glass building on Franklin street, between Second and Third streets, are going up right along, and this building will soon be showing up splendidly. It will front 100 feet on Franklin street.

A new awning is being put on the Square Bargain Store building, on the south side of the square, and this will add to the appearance of that structure.

A very showy and attractive electric sign has been placed on the building at Tenth and Austin streets occupied by J. M. Nash and associates, who handle the Dodge car. The electric sign is a large one, and prominently emphasizes the fact that Tenth and Austin streets is a section which aspires to be classed ere long with the "downtown" section of the city.

TO COAL THE WORLD'S NAVIES.

The Powers Keep Jealous Eyes on All Strategic Ports.

(George Harding in Harper's Magazine.)

Every world power casts covetous eyes on available sites for coaling ports for its naval and mercantile fleets. On the confined shores of the Yellow Sea three great powers established coaling bases—at Port Arthur, at Wei-hai-Wei and at Kiao-chau.

Our own government, with an ear open to faint sounds, keeps an eye peeled on St. Thomas and the coast of Mexico, ever watching for mysterious doings, or slightest suspicion of transfer of domain to another power. To guard the trade routes and approaches to the gulf of Mexico the navy department at Washington has established a most important coaling base at Guantanamo, Cuba. Thus all three routes to the gulf—through the Florida Straits between Key West and Cuba, through the Windward Passage between Guantanamo and Haiti, and the passages either side of Porto Rico—are now controlled by American bases.

In the Pacific the coaling station Honolulu, with a storage capacity of 165,000 tons, provides ample supplies for the needs of warships guarding the approaches across the Pacific. In contrast to the gulf of Mexico and the Pacific routes, and those to South American ports, the trade routes of the world are practically dominated in time of war by English coaling ports—an essential ownership to England, for of the forty-seven important steamship companies of the world today, thirty-two of them are British.

CALLS "PREPAREDNESS" CLUMSY.

A Chicago Teacher Suggests Substitution of the Word "Ready."

(Chicago Herald.)

Miss Grace Reed, principal of the Willard school, complains to the Herald that "preparedness" is too long, too clumsy and too difficult to roll over a patriot's tongue. She expresses doubt if any soldier or statesman will ever achieve fame with a command or a phase which has a sinker to it like "preparedness."

"Preparedness is an awkward word," Miss Reed says. "Why not get together on a thoroughly American slogan. Admiral Dewey, cool, typical American genius, said: 'You may fire when ready, Gridley.' 'Ready' is a word now hallowed in American history. He did not say, 'You may fire when prepared, Gridley.'

"I propose the 'ready' parade, or the 'readiness' parade, or the 'get ready' parade. I think we ought to have a vote on it."

Smart Straw Hat With Lace Veil Draped on One Side and Fastened on the Other With a Cameo Pin.

Ornamental Veils of Lace Are Used by the Milliners to Drape Hats, Even When They're Not Used Over the Face.

New York, June 14—Milliners like veils. It is always difficult to persuade them to renounce these face coverings, even for a short time. Women may complain that veils are bad for the eyes, that they hold all the particles of dust and germs that float against them, and sooner or later impart them to the face, that they are difficult to adjust and that when they are not skilfully adjusted they are woefully unbecoming; but the milliner merely smiles in a superior way and insists that if a woman is well dressed she must be veiled.

The adoration for the mesh covering for the face is almost oriental. There were seasons when our women were almost as slavish in their adherence to veils as the Turkish women. They were considered as essential to a costume as a pair of gloves. Heaps of them were carefully folded in sachet in the bureau drawers or in picture boxes, to be ready for all occasions and to suit all costumes.

About five years ago there was a noticeable diminution, however, in the wearing of veils, of which the public did not become cognizant until it was proclaimed over and over by the fashion reporters. Even then these reporters were called to account by the milliners, just as they were by the sellers of gloves when they asserted that London was leading the way in abandoning evening golves.

A fashion reporter who was at the Grand Prix at Deauville one Sunday afternoon in August cabled back to New York that not a single veil was worn by the women at the races, and to this remark exception was taken from every side where commercial interests were involved.

THE VEILS LOST OUT.

And yet that statement about the lack of veils at Deauville was true and important. From that time there was a lessening of the veil fever, and now no one makes a pretense of wearing them because they are considered necessary to good dressing. Women cling to them for tradition's sake or because the thin ones, neatly adjusted, keep the hair in place and make the skin look more attractive. However, it can be easily said that the majority of women go without veils the majority of the time.

Afternoon dancing is one of the factors toward a wholesale elimination of veils, for even though a woman may dance in gloves—which she rarely does in the afternoon—she does not want to dance in a veil.

The milliners, however, must find some way to induce women to buy the large quantities of expensive veils that are turned out into the market every year. One of the French designers hit upon the idea of draping the hat with a lace veil, somewhat like the fashion that was followed two decades ago, when women draped colored veils around Panama and straw hats for summer days. There always seem to be lace veils on hand, and, as natural colored straw hats have come back into fashion this season, the two things go together very well.

The drapery of the veil is not a difficult matter for the amateur and it may be that this new French fashion will find many followers in homes where economy in hats is a species of thrift that is annually followed.

BRIMS THAT TURN DOWN.

Much of the millinery drapery of the day is made more simple because the majority of the hats have brims that turn down instead of up. Even in turbans there is a visor-like shelf that darts downward toward the face. The hat in the sketch, which has a brim that turns downward, is a frank revival from another day, and its drapery of a handsome, cream lace veil, caught with a large cameo pin, seems to exude the odor of dried lavender. The veil is arranged so that it hangs down over one shoulder to the waist, and with the exception of the cameo, it forms the only trimming used.

PEPPER COOKERY.

Put a tablespoonful of lard into a good-sized saucepan and when hot, but not smoking, add half a cup of lean ham chopped fine, an onion minced fine, a green pepper minced fine and salt to taste. Stir about until all are browned but not scorched, then add a pint of picked fresh shrimps and stir about until the shrimps are thoroughly heated. Do not cook too long, but put in half a cup of washed and soaked rice, a small bay leaf, sprig of thyme and parsley. Cover and simmer with sufficient water added to cook the rice until each grain stands out distinct and alone.

CHILI CHICKEN.

This is a good way to treat an old fowl, or one past the allotted year of chickenhood: Truss it and boil until tender. Let it cool in the liquor, and then cut it in small, neat slices. Wash a cup of rice thoroughly and dry on a cloth. Fry it a few minutes in olive oil or vegetable fat; then add a peeled tomato, an onion cut fine, salt and pepper to taste, and a sweet chili cut fine. Put in enough of the broth to cover the whole, chicken included, and cook until the rice is tender. When nearly done, add the chicken and let it get well flavored with the seasonings, but do not let it cook fast.

TO SERVE COLD ROAST BEEF HOT.

Slice a quarter of a pound of beef suet into a saucepan and render it well. Then put in a sliced onion and fry it a nice brown. Then put in a very thick slice of underdone roast beef and brown on both sides. Take the juice of a large tomato and pulp of chili pepper, two whole cloves, one teaspoonful each of sugar and salt, dash of pepper and a teaspoonful of vinegar or Worcester sauce, add just enough water to keep the whole from scorching, cover tightly and place over a moderate heat, where it will cook slowly until tender. Serve with brown sauce. Instead of the sliced onion and vinegar, use little pickled onions browned in the suet.

FILLED PEPPERS.

Take as many large peppers as you need, either green or red, but of the sweet variety and as round as you can get them. Cut off the tops, take out the seeds, pour boiling water over them and cook gently for five minutes. Drain well, place in a baking dish and fill a mixture made according to these directions: Take enough of the white meat of chicken—other meats will do if you have no cooked chicken on hand—fill a cup with the meat chopped fine, one and a half cups of bread crumbs moistened with a little hot water to swell them, also a large tomato peeled and chopped, with two teaspoonfuls of grated or chopped onion, an ounce of butter, a level tablespoonful of chopped parsley, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper and a raw egg well beaten. Pour a little stock hot or water around the peppers and a very little over each one and bake twety-five minutes.

Texans Pull First Stunt.

Coliseum, St. Louis, June 14.—The Texas delegation to the convention put on the first stunt of the meeting today by tossing miniature bales of cotton from the floor to the galleries.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be made at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pledsure.

Weather Not So Favorable for Cotton

Washington, June 14.—Reviewing crop growing conditions for the week ended yesterday, the national weather and crop bulletin today says:

"The weather was less favorable for cotton than prevailed during the first week of June. Rains hindered cultivation in the northern part of the region. While cotton is late in most of Texas, due to earlier unfavorable weather conditions, the plants have developed so rapidly in extreme Southern Texas that one bale was marketed from Cameron county on the 10th.

"Weather conditions were generally favorable for the cultivation of other crops in the southern states."

MISS MARY ALLEN HONORED BY MRS. RAGLAND

PARTY FOR MARSHALL AND GILBERT HAY

Mrs. John F. Marshall has two attractive little grandsons come to visit her all the way from Raleigh, N. C. These are Marshall and Gilbert Hay. As one of the first pleasures of their visit, about thirty or more children were invited by their grandmother to come on Tuesday from 5 to 7 o'clock to play on the Marshall lawn. There were all sorts of games and lots of soda pop. Cake and ice cream cones were served in the well-kept garden at the rear of the home. Those who came to play were: William Benjamin and Cornelia Witsell, Eugenia Early, Margaret Hoskins, Fred Hoskins, Jack Davis, Edward Rotan, John Grey Kendall, Francis Zizinia, Stanton Dossett, Francis Dossett, James Sturgis, Carroll Sturgis, Simon Wise, Eli Landham, Junior Wise, Edith Seley, Schon Landman, Elizabeth Miller, Jane Dodd Moore, Edward Bolton, Albert Clifton, George Clark, James Clark, Dorothy Bell, Kyle McKinney, Elizabeth Burrows, Grace Downs, Mildred McCullough and Francis Grider.

RECEPTION IS GIVEN AT CULVER HOME

For Miss Ethel Jackson and Mrs. J. P. Sample, who are on the eve of their departure from Waco, the former going to San Francisco and the latter to Topeka, Kans., the Missionary societies of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, of which both ladies have been active members, entertained in their honor. The home of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Culver was thrown open for the occasion and the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Barcus, better known as "Mother Barcus," the oldest member of the society. Baskets of daisies were used in decoration, and formed the decorative scheme for the punch table. Stately magnolias were banked in the drawing room. It is with regret Waco relinquishes these two useful and popular women. The house party was made up of Mesdames F. P. Culver, Barcus, Llewellyn Aubrey, R. L. Abbott, Grace Wigley, B. C. Nettles, E. A. Winchell, J. B. Smith, W. W. Lastinger, Robert Allen, George Barcus, Long, with Misses Bert Wright and Nellie McCartney.

LUNCHEON FOR MRS. KEITH WATSON MATTHEWS

The dozen luncheon guests which Mrs. S. E. Stratton bespoke on Tuesday were chosen from the most intimate friends of Mrs. Weith Watson Matthews, and the occasion was a prenuptial honor to that popular Waco woman. Mrs. Stratton favored the old-fashioned flowers in her decorations, using a large basket of cornflowers in the reception hall, and other bright colored posies, dear to our grandmothers, carried out the quaintly picturesque scheme in all of the rooms except the dining room. Here white seemed more in keeping. The purity of the white sweet pea and the fragrance of the jessamine combined to make a beautiful table. Throughout the luncheon the scheme of white and green was closely followed. With beautiful flowers and old friends, Mrs. Keith Watson Matthews will long remember this beautiful courtesy of Mrs. Stratton. To Waco people, Mrs. Watson will always represent a charming personality and a forceful, active worker in clubdom and all civic enterprises. The luncheon guests were Mesdames Charles Hamilton, J. D. Williamson, J. S. Hill, W. B. Hays, Allan Sanford, J. P. Massey, W. W. Seley, C. M. Seley, Irwin Clark, Pio Crespi, Keith Watson Matthews.

"CARNIVAL OF SPRING" ON LIBRARY LAWN

The "Carnival of Spring," which will be given at 8 o'clock tonight on the library lawn, is a benefit for the Y. W. C. A. YOUNG MARRIED LADIES' BRIDGE CLUB

Red roses were used in the decorations at Tuesday's session of the Young Married Ladies' Bridge club, which was held with Mrs. Eva Glover Prendergast. The dining room was arranged in the form of a picnic luncheon, and during lulls in the games the players were at liberty to serve themselves at their own pleasure. This is an innovation, and an ideal manner of summer entertainment, where informality is to be desired. Mrs. Buford McWhirter received the head favor, and to Mrs. Harold Shear was given a white-and-black porcelain bon-bon box. The regular members played with the exception of Mrs. Gilbert Hay of North Carolina, and Mrs. Jack Little, who held substitute hands.

Society Notes

Mrs. Ira L. Hicks of Fourteenth and Morrow is entertaining for her daughter, Miss Rilla Hicks, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Mosley camp has been very popular. The following visitors are among those who have brought back reports of gay times there: Misses Lucile Gooch, Agnes Arbuckle, McWhartley, Ruby Rogers, Messrs. Harold Gooch, Hall of Chicago, J. D. Isaacs, Atkinson and Stanford.

Flag day was not forgotten in Waco and her patriotism was evidenced by Old Glory which floated high over many homes yesterday.

The Domestic Science club was recalled on Wednesday because of sickness in the home of the hostess, Mrs. Dorothy McCutcheon. The hostess for next week will be Mrs. S. P. Ross, who will entertain, however, at the suburban home of her mother, Mrs. T. J. Primm.

Mrs. C. C. Heithecker of Kansas and Miss Mittie Key Johnston of Louisiana will be house guests for the Hill anniversary reception.

Society Personals

Miss Catherine Lattimore leaves the last of the week for Galveston to visit her brother, Dr. John E. Lattimore, and Mrs. Schriminger.

Mrs. C. C. Heithecker of Kansas is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. G. Bostwick, of Terrace Row.

Miss Dorothy will return from the "State" tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Rumsey, Jr., motored down from Fort Worth and were passing guests of Judge and Mrs. T. F. Bryan. From Waco they took passage to points in Canada.

Miss Jo Glenn, who has been teaching in the Houston schools, is spending several days with Mrs. T. F. Bryan en route to her home in Ballinger.

Mrs. J. S. Hill has returned from Dallas.

Mrs. Eva Prendergast leaves on Friday for Curpus Christi.

Mrs. J. D. Williamson is in Dallas.

Hon. and Mrs. Tom Connally are up from Marlin, guests of their sister, Mrs. C. N. Smith.

Mrs. Joney Smith is spending this week in Corsicana.

Misses Virginia Gregory and Lula Strickland left Wednesday for Tennessee, where they will spend the summer months.

Little Misses May Kyle and Annie Louise Shumway are enjoying a house party in Cameron with the Misses Aiken.

Dr. B. L. Gayle has Miss Mittie Key Johnston as guest for several days.

Miss Ray Morks and Mr. William Marks are in Corsicana to attend the Marks-Cohen wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marks left last night for Corsicana to be present at the Marks-Cohen wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hulbert and little son left for California to spend the summer.

Mrs. E. T. Sligh and daughters, Robert Hatton, Arthur Coleman and Vernon Staley are in Galveston for several weeeks.

Mrs. Ernest Raines, the recent guest of Mrs. Sligh, has returned to Galveston.

Miss Frances Moore at National Service School.

Miss Frances Moore is one of the younger social leaders of the national capital, but she is proving to the satisfaction of her friends that she isn't a mere butterfly. This picture of her was taken at the Women's National Service School.

Improvement Notes

A new front is being put in the Jurney building on the north side of the public square, which will change the entire appearance of the building. The old front has been torn out and the new one is to be put in, making the structure much more modern. Other changes will be made, also, involving the interior, and the building will be much more up-to-date when these changes shall have been completed.

The walls of the Fred-Glass building on Franklin street, between Second and Third streets, are going up right along, and this building will soon be showing up splendidly. It will front 100 feet on Franklin street.

A new awning is being put on the Square Bargain Store building, on the south side of the square, and this will add to the appearance of that structure.

A very showy and attractive electric sign has been placed on the building at Tenth and Austin streets occupied by J. M. Nash and associates, who handle the Dodge car. The electric sign is a large one, and prominently emphasizes the fact that Tenth and Austin streets is a section which aspires to be classed ere long with the "downtown" section of the city.

TO COAL THE WORLD'S NAVIES.

The Powers Keep Jealous Eyes on All Strategic Ports.

(George Harding in Harper's Magazine.)

Every world power casts covetous eyes on available sites for coaling ports for its naval and mercantile fleets. On the confined shores of the Yellow Sea three great powers established coaling bases—at Port Arthur, at Wei-hai-Wei and at Kiao-chau.

Our own government, with an ear open to faint sounds, keeps an eye peeled on St. Thomas and the coast of Mexico, ever watching for mysterious doings, or slightest suspicion of transfer of domain to another power. To guard the trade routes and approaches to the gulf of Mexico the navy department at Washington has established a most important coaling base at Guantanamo, Cuba. Thus all three routes to the gulf—through the Florida Straits between Key West and Cuba, through the Windward Passage between Guantanamo and Haiti, and the passages either side of Porto Rico—are now controlled by American bases.

In the Pacific the coaling station Honolulu, with a storage capacity of 165,000 tons, provides ample supplies for the needs of warships guarding the approaches across the Pacific. In contrast to the gulf of Mexico and the Pacific routes, and those to South American ports, the trade routes of the world are practically dominated in time of war by English coaling ports—an essential ownership to England, for of the forty-seven important steamship companies of the world today, thirty-two of them are British.

CALLS "PREPAREDNESS" CLUMSY.

A Chicago Teacher Suggests Substitution of the Word "Ready."

(Chicago Herald.)

Miss Grace Reed, principal of the Willard school, complains to the Herald that "preparedness" is too long, too clumsy and too difficult to roll over a patriot's tongue. She expresses doubt if any soldier or statesman will ever achieve fame with a command or a phase which has a sinker to it like "preparedness."

"Preparedness is an awkward word," Miss Reed says. "Why not get together on a thoroughly American slogan. Admiral Dewey, cool, typical American genius, said: 'You may fire when ready, Gridley.' 'Ready' is a word now hallowed in American history. He did not say, 'You may fire when prepared, Gridley.'

"I propose the 'ready' parade, or the 'readiness' parade, or the 'get ready' parade. I think we ought to have a vote on it."

Ornamental Veils of Lace Are Used by the Milliners to Drape Hats, Even When They're Not Used Over the Face.

New York, June 14—Milliners like veils. It is always difficult to persuade them to renounce these face coverings, even for a short time. Women may complain that veils are bad for the eyes, that they hold all the particles of dust and germs that float against them, and sooner or later impart them to the face, that they are difficult to adjust and that when they are not skilfully adjusted they are woefully unbecoming; but the milliner merely smiles in a superior way and insists that if a woman is well dressed she must be veiled.

The adoration for the mesh covering for the face is almost oriental. There were seasons when our women were almost as slavish in their adherence to veils as the Turkish women. They were considered as essential to a costume as a pair of gloves. Heaps of them were carefully folded in sachet in the bureau drawers or in picture boxes, to be ready for all occasions and to suit all costumes.

About five years ago there was a noticeable diminution, however, in the wearing of veils, of which the public did not become cognizant until it was proclaimed over and over by the fashion reporters. Even then these reporters were called to account by the milliners, just as they were by the sellers of gloves when they asserted that London was leading the way in abandoning evening golves.

A fashion reporter who was at the Grand Prix at Deauville one Sunday afternoon in August cabled back to New York that not a single veil was worn by the women at the races, and to this remark exception was taken from every side where commercial interests were involved.

THE VEILS LOST OUT.

And yet that statement about the lack of veils at Deauville was true and important. From that time there was a lessening of the veil fever, and now no one makes a pretense of wearing them because they are considered necessary to good dressing. Women cling to them for tradition's sake or because the thin ones, neatly adjusted, keep the hair in place and make the skin look more attractive. However, it can be easily said that the majority of women go without veils the majority of the time.

Afternoon dancing is one of the factors toward a wholesale elimination of veils, for even though a woman may dance in gloves—which she rarely does in the afternoon—she does not want to dance in a veil.

The milliners, however, must find some way to induce women to buy the large quantities of expensive veils that are turned out into the market every year. One of the French designers hit upon the idea of draping the hat with a lace veil, somewhat like the fashion that was followed two decades ago, when women draped colored veils around Panama and straw hats for summer days. There always seem to be lace veils on hand, and, as natural colored straw hats have come back into fashion this season, the two things go together very well.

The drapery of the veil is not a difficult matter for the amateur and it may be that this new French fashion will find many followers in homes where economy in hats is a species of thrift that is annually followed.

BRIMS THAT TURN DOWN.

Much of the millinery drapery of the day is made more simple because the majority of the hats have brims that turn down instead of up. Even in turbans there is a visor-like shelf that darts downward toward the face. The hat in the sketch, which has a brim that turns downward, is a frank revival from another day, and its drapery of a handsome, cream lace veil, caught with a large cameo pin, seems to exude the odor of dried lavender. The veil is arranged so that it hangs down over one shoulder to the waist, and with the exception of the cameo, it forms the only trimming used.

PEPPER COOKERY.

Put a tablespoonful of lard into a good-sized saucepan and when hot, but not smoking, add half a cup of lean ham chopped fine, an onion minced fine, a green pepper minced fine and salt to taste. Stir about until all are browned but not scorched, then add a pint of picked fresh shrimps and stir about until the shrimps are thoroughly heated. Do not cook too long, but put in half a cup of washed and soaked rice, a small bay leaf, sprig of thyme and parsley. Cover and simmer with sufficient water added to cook the rice until each grain stands out distinct and alone.

CHILI CHICKEN.

This is a good way to treat an old fowl, or one past the allotted year of chickenhood: Truss it and boil until tender. Let it cool in the liquor, and then cut it in small, neat slices. Wash a cup of rice thoroughly and dry on a cloth. Fry it a few minutes in olive oil or vegetable fat; then add a peeled tomato, an onion cut fine, salt and pepper to taste, and a sweet chili cut fine. Put in enough of the broth to cover the whole, chicken included, and cook until the rice is tender. When nearly done, add the chicken and let it get well flavored with the seasonings, but do not let it cook fast.

TO SERVE COLD ROAST BEEF HOT.

Slice a quarter of a pound of beef suet into a saucepan and render it well. Then put in a sliced onion and fry it a nice brown. Then put in a very thick slice of underdone roast beef and brown on both sides. Take the juice of a large tomato and pulp of chili pepper, two whole cloves, one teaspoonful each of sugar and salt, dash of pepper and a teaspoonful of vinegar or Worcester sauce, add just enough water to keep the whole from scorching, cover tightly and place over a moderate heat, where it will cook slowly until tender. Serve with brown sauce. Instead of the sliced onion and vinegar, use little pickled onions browned in the suet.

FILLED PEPPERS.

Take as many large peppers as you need, either green or red, but of the sweet variety and as round as you can get them. Cut off the tops, take out the seeds, pour boiling water over them and cook gently for five minutes. Drain well, place in a baking dish and fill a mixture made according to these directions: Take enough of the white meat of chicken—other meats will do if you have no cooked chicken on hand—fill a cup with the meat chopped fine, one and a half cups of bread crumbs moistened with a little hot water to swell them, also a large tomato peeled and chopped, with two teaspoonfuls of grated or chopped onion, an ounce of butter, a level tablespoonful of chopped parsley, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper and a raw egg well beaten. Pour a little stock hot or water around the peppers and a very little over each one and bake twety-five minutes.

Texans Pull First Stunt.

Coliseum, St. Louis, June 14.—The Texas delegation to the convention put on the first stunt of the meeting today by tossing miniature bales of cotton from the floor to the galleries.

ON WITH THE BATTLE.

The campaign for submission is on in earnest, and will be waged vigorously until the July primary. That much was assured when the pro conference at Fort Worth selected Mr. M. H. Wolfe, the well known business man of Dallas, to manage the state campaign.

Mass meetings have been called for every county in the state, to be held on Saturday, June 17, at the court house, at 2 o'clock p. m., to perfect county organization. A call has been made by Waco prohibitionists for such a meeting here. It is the plan of the leaders to organize for a whirlwind campaign, and to put every pro in the state to work.

The antis, who were in the control of the state executive committee, were reluctant to submit the issue to the July primary, but finally consented to do so because they did not believe the pros could organize and make a winning campaign within six weeks. If one-tenth of the pros in Texas do what all concede to be their duty as citizens, the majority for submission will go above 50,000.

If the report is true that the retreating Austrian army on the Far Eastern front started with nearly a million men, and has dwindled to little more than a half million, it means that the Russians have begun their long expected drive for the control of the Balkans, and that unless Germany is able to send a new army to the relief of her consort, the day of calamity is at hand for the latter. Austria is not equal to the contest with both Italy and Russia, which now assail her along a battle front extending for hundreds of miles. She started the row. It is not unlikely that she will be the first to cry "enough."

Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee gives a very cordial invitation to the progressives to join the democratic party. Like the young fellow whose best girl was entertaining another fellow, and who went to prayer meeting and was called on to lead in prayer, they can say, "O Lord, I come to thee, because thou knowest I've nowhere else to go."

Mr. Bryan wore a broad smile when the crowd gave him an ovation at St. Louis. If he is as happy as he looks, Big Bill of Berlin may well envy him.

Walking in a preparedness parade at Washington, wearing a blue serge coat, white duck trousers and shoes, socks and tie to match, the president got over a mile in fifteen minutes. If Hughes proposes to try to keep up with that man, he needs a Mogul engine and a tow-line in front of him, and a billy goat in the rear.

"When America speaks,' says the president, "the world is going to know that she means what she says." The late incident at Chicago shows what a vast difference is between a policy of that sort and the policy of extravagant assertion and slim performance.

The record of what Wilson has done, as told by Chairman Glynn in opening the St. Louis convention, appeals more strongly to the independent voter than the hazy insinuations of Hughes as to what he would do if he had a chance.

That story about Hughes proposing to use a big stick in the campaign, and to flay the bosses, need not cause Teddy to bolt his doors and windows. Hughes wouldn't know the difference between his stick and a back-log.

The Colonel says he will keep up the fight for preparedness. But the question now is whether he knows the difference between a blunderbuss loaded with beans and one loaded with buckshot.

Limit the fight to the single issue of submission, advised the Fort Worth conference. That means a cordial lift from many antis who believe the people are entitled to vote on the prohibition issue with Mexico eliminated.

Wilson represents the Monroe doctrine as it is, and Hughes represents it as it would be if operated on by a circular saw, and run through a threshing machine.

The St. Louis convention is doing the work cut out for it by the people. The Chicago convention undid the plans made by the republican masses.

One of the greatest years for cotton ever known should go down in history embellished with the greatest Cotton Palace the world ever saw.

Carranza should not become impatient. We will have a knock-out drop ready for him before the moon changes again.

Gasoline is coming down, but the fine for breaking the speed limit remains at the same old figure.

Roosevelt has a cold. He is also suffering from prostration of the epistletory glands.

The future sale of automobile parts and accessories to garage owners and junk dealers will be inspected each day by a special officer in Fort Worth, who will work under the direction of the police department. The decision to appoint a "junk warden" followed reports from many automobile owners who have suffered losses during the last few months. Statements of seven young men charged with theft in connection with the taking of automobile parts led many of these owners to go to police headquarters and give descriptions of automobile parts that have been taken.

There is a merry war on between grocery stores in San Antonio and price-slashing is the result. The war was started by invasion of the local field of a string of stores, which announced a campaign of low prices that threatened to put a number of rival concerns out of business. Then came another firm that cut the prices again and now another firm has put the price down even lower. The rival firms are dabbling heavily in printers' ink, prices are going down, down, down, and the consumer is buying more and living well.

Robert M. Field, a San Antonio boy, was awarded the first prize of $100 offered by the Texas Intercollegiate Peace association for the best essay on "Peace." The award was made Tuesday by the board of regents of the University of Texas, where Field has been a student since September, 1914.

MARLIN BALL FANS ATTEND ENNIS GAME

"DROUTH" IN FALLS COUNTY IS MAKING LESS WORK FOR PEACE OFFICERS.

Flower Day Observed by Marlin W. C. T. U.—Federal Building Is Almost Finished.

Marlin, June 14.—At 8 o'clock this morning a special train, bound for Ennis, pulled out fro mthe Marlin depot bearing over 100 enthusiastic boosters and baseball fans to see the ball game in the Ennis park this afternoon between Marlin and Ennis teams. The Marlin high school band accompanied the delegation to furnish music for the occasion.

City and county courts and the grand jury adjourned for the day and numbers of officers, including County Judge F. S. Heffner and Mayor E. W. Bounds, went on the excursion.

A big barbecue and other attractions at Ennis were offered as inducements by the people of that city to aid in getting the Marlin delegation started.

Peace officers continue to complain of dull times and long for the day when the fee system will be abolished and a regular "meal ticket system" inaugurated, as since the west side of the Brazos half of Falls county went dry and the Falls County Anti-Vice league put on a clean-up campaign on this side, arrests have been few and far between, consisting largely of a few drunks, mostly negroes, and once in awhile a stranger who gets too much.

The grand jury now in session is reported to have much less work than any such body has had in a long time, most of the cases being probed being for petty thieving and minor penal offenses.

The revival services at the Methodist church continue to grow in interest and the converted Paris lawyer, R. L. Lewis, is remaining here assisting Evangelist McIntosh in his work.

Mr. Lewis, since his conversion a year ago, has been devoting much of his time to this class of work, doing so at his own expense. He not only speaks in the church meetings, but is active at the street open-air meetings.

The new federal postoffice building being constructed at a cost of about $67,500, has the appearance of being ready for occupancy, but Federal Building Inspector Miller states the inside work will not be completed until the latter part of September, placing it at the disposal of the local postoffice force October 1.

This afternoon was observed as Flower Day by the local W. C. T. U., the members of which held their annual mission meeting at 5 o'clock at the hot well pavilion. A large number of potted plants were distributed throughout the city to the sick and numbers sent to offices over the city with compliments of the union.

The following compose a party making an automobile trip to Schadrach Mills: Misses Fleta Mae Curry, Marjorie Rogers of Marlin; Misses Lastinger of Waco and Endaly of Fort Worth; Messrs. Horace Chilton, Albert Chilton, Edgar Hutchings Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snead, and Mr. and Mrs. Earle C. Smith.

Property in Lamb County Growing in Value

Littlefield, June 14.—Tax Assessor Willis reports the total valuation of property rendered for taxes in 1916 $3,823,303. This is an increase of more than $250,000 over the 1915 rendition.

Jacob G. Loewen and Miss Tina Reimer were married by Rev. Mr. Houek in the school auditorium Monday. This is the nineteenth wedding here during the year and was the first among the German Mennonites. The minister came all the way from Kansas to perform the ceremony and the German language was used entirely.

New Democratic National Committee

Alabama, Edward D. Smith; Arizona, Fred T. Cotter; Arkansas, Wallace Davis; California, I. Dockweiler; Colorado, John T. Barnett; Connecticut, Homer S. Cummings; Delaware, Willard Saulsbury; Florida, J. T. G. Crawford; Georgia, Clark Howell; Idaho, R. H. Elder; Illinois, Charles Boschenstein; Indiana, E. G. Hoffman; Iowa, W. W. Campbell at Comanche.

Comanche, June 14.—Ex-Gov. Thomas M. Campbell, candidate for United States senator, spoke here yesterday afternoon to a large and appreciative audience. He spoke for about two hours, dwelling at length upon his record as governor, the Gibson bill and his tax record, as compared to the succeeding administration. A great many farmers were present, in spite of the fact that this is a very busy season with them. At the close of his speech, a rousing ovation was given him.

In the case of H. A. Wootton et al vs. W. C. Jones, from Tom Green, motion to advance the cause was submitted and granted, cause advanced and set for hearing and submission on next Wednesday, June 21, 1916.

Convention at Gatesville.

Gatesville, June 14.—The Sunday school and Epworth league convention of Gatesville district convened here last night and will hold sessions till tomorrow. There are about 100 out-of-town delegates in attendance.

In Kansas City Forty Years Ago.

(From the Kansas City Times, June 10, 1876.)

Honest John Gilday, known to almost every one in the city, announces his purpose to seek the democratic nomination for county marshal. With his unquestioned fitness for the place and his claims on his party, Gilday is sure to make a strong race.

A new enterprise indicating Kansas City's growth and prosperity is the recently formed grain dealing firm of Kearney & Piper. Colonel Kearney and Mr. Piper are both recognized as among Kansas City's most substantial and progressive business men, and their association together means much for the grain business here.

A fine audience of Wyandotte's most intelligent people gathered in Dunning's hall last night to hear the interesting and instructive lecture on "Light" by General Fraser, superintendent of schools. Mr. Ernest Root won much applause with a solo which he sang pleasingly before the lecture began.

Captain Silvers, to whom belongs the credit of having organized Kansas City's fire department, has returned to this city from St. Louis, where recently he has been in business.

It is understood that Stilson Hutchins of St. Louis and our own Colonel Crisp have gone East to assist John G. Thompson in persuading Tilden to withdraw as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in favor of Thurman of Ohio. They will represent that the West is obdurately and unmanageably hostile to Tilden for the presidency, but can be prevailed upon to accept Thurman, with Tilden as secretary of the treasury and cabinet boss.

Harry Dewar, one of Kansas City's bright young business men, was married in Detroit Thursday to Miss Allie G. Rice, one of the Michigan city's loveliest daughters.

The Kansas delegation to the republican national convention passed through the city last night on the way to Cincinnati. Among its members were noticed Judge A. H. Horton, Judge D. P. Lowe, Judge T. C. Sears, F. M. Shaw, T. Dwight Thacher, O. H. Sheldon, A. L. Redden, Cyrus Leland, A. J. Banta and William Martindale. A canvass of the delegation showed it to be solid for Blaine.

The Hon. Sant Haff of Muncie and Col. Frank H. Betton of Pomeroy were among the rural statesmen spending the day in Wyandotte yesterday.

The Lindell hotel, at Fifth and Wyandotte streets, will close this morning. High rent is said to be the cause. It is rumored, however, that it will be reopened within a few days by a well known local hotel man.

Blind Billy Buker was in Wyandotte yesterday singing the Sankey songs and trying to start a street corner revival. He drew quite a crowd, but his voice is cracked and unmelodious, and, when it became apparent that his singing was not appreciated, poor Billy broke down and cried like a child.

Mrs. Green, wife of Col. Amos Green, was the victim of robbers recently while on a visit to her old home in Paris, Ill. Word received by the police department here is to the effect that clothing and jewelry valued at $500 were stolen.

A new enterprise is making a flourishing start on Delaware street near Eighth. It is a well equipped blacksmith shop under the management of Thomas Tanney, formerly of Denver.

A protest having been filed with the county court a day or two ago against the payment of any more of the interest or principal of certain township bonds, the validity of which is held by some to have been affected by the recent supreme court decision, a similar document but of opposite support was presented yesterday. It insists that the Bates county decision does not apply to the local bonds, and demands that the court continue to provide for the interest and principal aforesaid until these bonds themselves have been adjudged illegal or until an injunction shall stop such payment. It is signed by John J. Mastin, S. E. Ward, T. H. Mastin, J. Q. Watkins, Karnes & Ess, Edward H. Allen, K. Coates, Francis Foster, C. J. White, E. L. Martin and M. Diveley.

SECOND CLIP OF WOOL SELLS FOR GOOD PRICE HERE

(San Angelo Standard.)

At prices ranging from 25 to 32 cents per pound, Gilmore T. Gwin, local wool commission merchant, has sold his second clip of the season. Two hundred thousand pounds have been purchased by H. P. Roddie of Brady and representatives of Boston houses.

The wool is now being shipped to Galveston over the Santa Fe; thence northward to Boston and other points by boat.

To date Mr. Gwin has sold 700,000 pounds of wool. His first sale involved a half million pounds.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

ALLIES.

By LOUISE OLIVER.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It all began the day Eleanor Bell turned to Robin, a casual onlooker at the tennis court, and said sweetly: "Won't you play in this set with me, Mr. Dean? I'm afraid to ask, I'm such a horrid player; but——"

Robin had not allowed her to finish, in his haste to accept. He flushed consciously as he answered: "Thank you, very much, Miss Belle. I'd be very much honored, indeed, to play with you." And as she gave him a sidelong look out of her wonderful eyes, which seemed to say "You are a man after my own heart, and I have just discovered it," his own poor heart almost gave a jump right out of his mouth, and he added, impulsively, "I'd eat a peck of that sand, Miss Belle, if you'd ask me to, like that."

She laughed. "But I don't intend to make such a demand now, Mr. Dean," she said, with another look that thrilled him afresh.

And that is the way it began, for up to that minute Robin had regarded Eleanor Belle as an unapproachable planet of the upper heavens, with a group of satelites all her own, who far surpassed him in brilliancy and age. He belonged to a set known as "The Kids."

Craig Halsted and Mary Lane, on the other side of the net nodded understandingly to one another. "Neil's caught another fish," whispered Craig.

"Just a minnow!" laughed Mary. "Isn't she the limit? I wonder what she does it for!"

"She'd better be careful. One of the minnows might grow into a whale and eat her up," answered Craig lightly, as he sent the ball over the net.

But after all that wasn't the real beginning either. That happened years before, one day when Robin was 6 years old and Betty Wright was 3. That day a friendly collie dog had knocked Betty down and in sheer exuberance of spirits was kissing her all over her little face when Robin came along on roller skates and bravely gave the tormentor a whack with a stick and drove him away. The little golden-haired girl had smiled adorably and held out two chubby hands. "Me love you!" she said. And Robin had kissed her as impulsively as, fifteen years later, he had offered to devour part of the tennis court at Eleanor Belle's command.

Betty and Robin had grown up chums, fighting each other's battles, sharing each other's joys, triumphing in each other's victories.

Even now, Robin flushed with conscious pride as he thought of Betty. "Perhaps Miss Belle will let me walk home with her and we will pass Bet's home. Won't she be surprised, though, to see me chumming with such a queen!"

Robin and Eleanor Belle won the set.

"What a splendid player you are, Robin! You don't mind me calling you Robin, do you?" She flashed a splendid smile at him and held out her hand. "I want to congratulate you. You are the first man who has beaten Craig Halsted this year."

The "minnow" gasped with a conglomeration of feelings, but managed a reply of some sort. He did walk home with Eleanor, and they did pass "Bet's" house, but so complete was his infatuation that he didn't see his old chum waving at him from a side porch swing.

But before they had quite reached home, one of the charmer's satellites passed, a man six or seven years Robin's senior. "What are your hours, Nell?" he called. "You ought to hang out a sign!"

Robin turned a hot red. The reference to a kindergarten went home and he felt like fighting. Then his good sense came to his rescue and he paid no attention. That was the manly thing to do!

When he had left Eleanor at her door he went back to Betty's stepping on clouds instead of the pavement. This time he saw his chum on the swing.

"Hello, Bet!"

"Hello, Bob! Wonder you wouldn't speak as you pass by. What's up between you and Nellie Belle? You looked as thick as thieves going along a minute ago." The boy dectected a note of amazement in her voice, but shrugged his shoulders indifferently as though what had happened was an everyday occurrance.

"Oh, we played tennis together and I thought I'd better take her home."

"She's older than you, Rob!"

"Not much! Besides, it doesn't make any difference. It's all the way you act."

Betty was silent.

"She's certainly a queen, isn't she, Bet? And didn't she look pretty in that pink sweater!"

"She certainly did, Bob. You have good taste.' Betty slid out of the swing. "I must go and fix the salad now, so run along home. Bye-bye."

In the days that followed, Robin lived in a happy haze of unreality and dreams. Eleanor was kind, too kind for his peace of mind, and she had allowed him to call. But he found some of the satellites around when he went. That was no fun and he rather guessed they were making sport of him anyway. So, knowing the power of ridicule, he stayed away and had to content himself with the telephone, notes and messages in boxes of candy and flowers.

He found a willing ally in Betty, to whom he took all his troubles. There was the time the candy store burned down! Many a box of delectable sweets came from Betty's kitchen intended for the fair Eleanor. And many a bit of shopping she did for Rob upon a birthday or like occasion when a woman's taste was required. She managed his campaign to perfection and kept him posted as to the goings and comings of his rivals and planned opportunities for him to meet the object of his dreams.

"You're a brick, Bet! What on earth would I do without y-u?" declared Robin one day.

"Oh, you'll get along all right some day when things get settled and you and Eleanor are married."

"Married!" he cried. "Do you think she—oh, Bet, do you think she cares for me?"

"She must, or she wouldn't have let you do all you've done. You've been awfully good to her, Rob! Think of all the things you've sent her and the money you have spent on her. Besides, she must know that you care."

"Yes, I guess she does know it by this time. But really I've never actually told her that I loved her."

"Well, why don't you? You've known her a good while, and you are rich enough to support her and you always say age doesn't make and difference. Why don't you, tell her that you love her? Faint hea—you know."

"I believe I will, Bet, this very night if none of those fools is hanging around. They think I'm a kid, but I'll show them. Craig Halsted has nearly driven me crazy with his guying. Say, Betty," in sudden panic, "how do you propose to a girl?"

She laughed. "I can make your candy and do your shopping and arrange your meetings, but I can't do your proposing. Every one seems to have his own way," demurely.

"How do you know?"

"Oh, I know!"

"Why, how many proposals have you had to talk so?" in the tone of a patronizing big brother.

"Well—there's one, two, three," counting on her fingers, "four, five this summer. No so bad!"

"Betty! I didn't dream you were such a flirt. When has all this been going on?"

"Going on?"

"I think it is scandalous!"

"So do I! But," with demurely lifted brows, "I can't help it if they love me."

"Betty Wright! This doesn't sound like you. My old chum! You"—anxious—"haven't accepted any of them, have you?"

"I'm not saying."

"But—why, Betty, what would I do if you got married?"

"Would it make any difference? I could still help you. Eleanor could come——"

"Darn Eleanor! It's you I'm worrying about, Betty. I don't want you to get married"—their eyes met and held—"to anybody but me," he finishd. "It's you I love, Betty—no one else. I've just found it out, but it's true. Look here, dear, you aren't really engaged, are you?"

"Not precisely," she laughed. Then added: "Eleanor is going to marry Craig after Christmas, but don't tell—it's a secret."

EDUCATION

You teach your children all sorts of things; reading, writing, arithmetic, science and literature.

Why don't you teach them the most important thing of all? Thrift!

Thrift has to be learned. It hardly ever comes by nature.

Encourage saving. Let the boys and girls have their own capital, their own savings bank account, and keep adding to it.

They will love it, if you show them how.

ON WITH THE BATTLE.

The campaign for submission is on in earnest, and will be waged vigorously until the July primary. That much was assured when the pro conference at Fort Worth selected Mr. M. H. Wolfe, the well known business man of Dallas, to manage the state campaign.

Mass meetings have been called for every county in the state, to be held on Saturday, June 17, at the court house, at 2 o'clock p. m., to perfect county organization. A call has been made by Waco prohibitionists for such a meeting here. It is the plan of the leaders to organize for a whirlwind campaign, and to put every pro in the state to work.

The antis, who were in the control of the state executive committee, were reluctant to submit the issue to the July primary, but finally consented to do so because they did not believe the pros could organize and make a winning campaign within six weeks. If one-tenth of the pros in Texas do what all concede to be their duty as citizens, the majority for submission will go above 50,000.

If the report is true that the retreating Austrian army on the Far Eastern front started with nearly a million men, and has dwindled to little more than a half million, it means that the Russians have begun their long expected drive for the control of the Balkans, and that unless Germany is able to send a new army to the relief of her consort, the day of calamity is at hand for the latter. Austria is not equal to the contest with both Italy and Russia, which now assail her along a battle front extending for hundreds of miles. She started the row. It is not unlikely that she will be the first to cry "enough."

Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee gives a very cordial invitation to the progressives to join the democratic party. Like the young fellow whose best girl was entertaining another fellow, and who went to prayer meeting and was called on to lead in prayer, they can say, "O Lord, I come to thee, because thou knowest I've nowhere else to go."

Mr. Bryan wore a broad smile when the crowd gave him an ovation at St. Louis. If he is as happy as he looks, Big Bill of Berlin may well envy him.

Walking in a preparedness parade at Washington, wearing a blue serge coat, white duck trousers and shoes, socks and tie to match, the president got over a mile in fifteen minutes. If Hughes proposes to try to keep up with that man, he needs a Mogul engine and a tow-line in front of him, and a billy goat in the rear.

"When America speaks," says the president, "the world is going to know that she means what she says." The late incident at Chicago shows what a vast difference is between a policy of that sort and the policy of extravagant assertion and slim performance.

The record of what Wilson has done, as told by Chairman Glynn in opening the St. Louis convention, appeals more strongly to the independent voter than the hazy insinuations of Hughes as to what he would do if he had a chance.

That story about Hughes proposing to use a big stick in the campaign, and to flay the bosses, need not cause Teddy to bolt his doors and windows. Hughes wouldn't know the difference between his stick and a back-log.

The Colonel says he will keep up the fight for preparedness. But the question now is whether he knows the difference between a blunderbuss loaded with beans and one loaded with buckshot.

Limit the fight to the single issue of submission, advised the Fort Worth conference. That means a cordial lift from many antis who believe the people are entitled to vote on the prohibition issue with Mexico eliminated.

Wilson represents the Monroe doctrine as it is, and Hughes represents it as it would be if operated on by a circular saw, and run through a threshing machine.

The St. Louis convention is doing the work cut out for it by the people. The Chicago convention undid the plans made by the republican masses.

One of the greatest years for cotton ever known should go down in history embellished with the greatest Cotton Palace the world ever saw.

Carranza should not become impatient. We will have a knock-out drop ready for him before the moon changes again.

Gasoline is coming down, but the fine for breaking the speed limit remains at the same old figure.

The future sale of automobile parts and accessories to garage owners and junk dealers will be inspected each day by a special officer in Fort Worth, who will work under the direction of the police department. The decision to appoint a "junk warden" followed reports from many automobile owners who have suffered losses during the last few months. Statements of seven young men charged with theft in connection with the taking of automobile parts led many of these owners to go to police headquarters and give descriptions of automobile parts that have been taken.

There is a merry war on between grocery stores in San Antonio and price-slashing is the result. The war was started by invasion of the local field of a string of stores, which announced a campaign of low prices that threatened to put a number of rival concerns out of business. Then came another firm that cut the prices again and now another firm has put the price down even lower. The rival firms are dabbling heavily in printers' ink, prices are going down, down, down, and the consumer is buying more and living well.

Robert M. Field, a San Antonio boy, was awarded the first prize of $100 offered by the Texas Intercollegiate Peace association for the best essay on "Peace." The award was made Tuesday by the board of regents of the University of Texas, where Field has been a student since September, 1914.

MARLIN BALL FANS ATTEND ENNIS GAME

"DROUTH" IN FALLS COUNTY IS MAKING LESS WORK FOR PEACE OFFICERS.

Flower Day Observed by Marlin W. C. T. U.—Federal Building Is Almost Finished.

Marlin, June 14.—At 8 o'clock this morning a special train, bound for Ennis, pulled out fro mthe Marlin depot bearing over 100 enthusiastic boosters and baseball fans to see the ball game in the Ennis park this afternoon between Marlin and Ennis teams. The Marlin high school band accompanied the delegation to furnish music for the occasion.

City and county courts and the grand jury adjourned for the day and numbers of officers, including County Judge F. S. Heffner and Mayor E. W. Bounds, went on the excursion.

A big barbecue and other attractions at Ennis were offered as inducements by the people of that city to aid in getting the Marlin delegation started.

Peace officers continue to complain of dull times and long for the day when the fee system will be abolished and a regular "meal ticket system" inaugurated, as since the west side of the Brazos half of Falls county went dry and the Falls County Anti-Vice league put on a clean-up campaign on this side, arrests have been few and far between, consisting largely of a few drunks, mostly negroes, and once in awhile a stranger who gets too much.

The grand jury now in session is reported to have much less work than any such body has had in a long time, most of the cases being probed being for petty thieving and minor penal offenses.

The revival services at the Methodist church continue to grow in interest and the converted Paris lawyer, R. L. Lewis, is remaining here assisting Evangelist McIntosh in his work.

Mr. Lewis, since his conversion a year ago, has been devoting much of his time to this class of work, doing so at his own expense. He not only speaks in the church meetings, but is active at the street open-air meetings.

The new federal postoffice building being constructed at a cost of about $67,500, has the appearance of being ready for occupancy, but Federal Building Inspector Miller states the inside work will not be completed until the latter part of September, placing it at the disposal of the local postoffice force October 1.

This afternoon was observed as Flower Day by the local W. C. T. U., the members of which held their annual mission meeting at 5 o'clock at the hot well pavilion. A large number of potted plants were distributed throughout the city to the sick and numbers sent to offices over the city with compliments of the union.

The following compose a party making an automobile trip to Schadrach Mills: Misses Fleta Mae Curry, Marjorie Rogers of Marlin; Misses Lastinger of Waco and Endaly of Fort Worth; Messrs. Horace Chilton, Albert Chilton, Edgar Hutchings Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snead, and Mr. and Mrs. Earle C. Smith.

Property in Lamb County Growing in Value

Littlefield, June 14.—Tax Assessor Willis reports the total valuation of property rendered for taxes in 1916 $3,823,363. This is an increase of more than $250,000 over the 1915 rendition.

Jacob G. Loewen and Miss Tina Reimer were married by Rev. Mr. Houck in the school auditorium Monday. This is the nineteenth wedding here during the year and was the first among the German Mennonites. The minister came all the way from Kansas to perform the ceremony and the German language was used entirely.

New Democratic National Committee

Alabama, Edward D. Smith; Arizona, Fred T. Cotter; Arkansas, Wallace Davis; California, I. Dockweiler; Colorado, John T. Barnett; Connecticut, Homer S. Cummings; Delaware, Willard Saulsbury; Florida, J. T. G. Crawford; Georgia, Clark Howell; Idaho, R. H. Elder; Illinois, Charles Boschenstein; Indiana, E. G. Hoffman; Iowa, W. W. McGraw; Wisconsin, Joseph Martin; Wyoming, John E. Osborne; Alaska, T. J. Donohoe; Hawaii, John H. Wilson; Philippines, Robert E. Manley; Porto Rico, Andres B. Crosas; District of Columbia, ——.

Campbell at Comanche.

Comanche, June 14.—Ex-Gov. Thomas M. Campbell, candidate for United States senator, spoke here yesterday afternoon to a large and appreciative audience. He spoke for about two hours, dwelling at length upon his record as governor, the Gibson bill and his tax record, as compared to the succeeding administration. A great many farmers were present, in spite of the fact that this is a very busy season with them. At the close of his speech, a rousing ovation was given him.

In Kansas City Forty Years Ago.

(From the Kansas City Times, June 10, 1876.)

Honest John Gilday, known to almost every one in the city, announces his purpose to seek the democratic nomination for county marshal. With his unquestioned fitness for the place and his claims on his party, Gilday is sure to make a strong race.

A new enterprise indicating Kansas City's growth and prosperity is the recently formed grain dealing firm of Kearney & Piper. Colonel Kearney and Mr. Piper are both recognized as among Kansas City's most substantial and progressive business men, and their association together means much for the grain business here.

A fine audience of Wyandotte's most intelligent people gathered in Dunning's hall last night to hear the interesting and instructive lecture on "Light" by General Fraser, superintendent of schools. Mr. Ernest Root won much applause with a solo which he sang pleasingly before the lecture began.

Captain Silvers, to whom belongs the credit of having organized Kansas City's fire department, has returned to this city from St. Louis, where recently he has been in business.

It is understood that Stilson Hutchins of St. Louis and our own Colonel Crisp have gone East to assist John G. Thompson in persuading Tilden to withdraw as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in favor of Thurman of Ohio. They will represent that the West is obdurately and unmanageably hostile to Tilden for the presidency, but can be prevailed upon to accept Thurman, with Tilden as secretary of the treasury and cabinet boss.

Harry Dewar, one of Kansas City's bright young business men, was married in Detroit Thursday to Miss Allie G. Rice, one of the Michigan city's loveliest daughters.

The Kansas delegation to the republican national convention passed through the city last night on the way to Cincinnati. Among its members were noticed Judge A. H. Horton, Judge D. P. Lowe, Judge T. C. Sears, F. M. Shaw, T. Dwight Thacher, O. H. Sheldon, A. L. Redden, Cyrus Leland, A. J. Banta and William Martindale. A canvass of the delegation showed it to be solid for Blaine.

The Hon. Sant Haff of Muncie and Col. Frank H. Betton of Pomeroy were among the rural statesmen spending the day in Wyandotte yesterday.

The Lindell hotel, at Fifth and Wyandotte streets, will close this morning. High rent is said to be the cause. It is rumored, however, that it will be reopened within a few days by a well known local hotel man.

Blind Billy Buker was in Wyandotte yesterday singing the Sankey songs and trying to start a street corner revival. He drew quite a crowd, but his voice is cracked and unmelodious, and, when it became apparent that his singing was not appreciated, poor Billy broke down and cried like a child.

Mrs. Green, wife of Col. Amos Green, was the victim of robbers recently while on a visit to her old home in Paris, Ill. Word received by the police department here is to the effect that clothing and jewelry valued at $500 were stolen.

A new enterprise is making a flourishing start on Delaware street near Eighth. It is a well equipped blacksmith shop under the management of Thomas Tanney, formerly of Denver.

A protest having been filed with the county court a day or two ago against the payment of any more of the interest or principal of certain township bonds, the validity of which is held by some to have been affected by the recent supreme court decision, a similar document but of opposite support was presented yesterday. It insists that the Bates county decision does not apply to the local bonds, and demands that the court continue to provide for the interest and principal aforesaid until these bonds themselves have been adjudged illegal or until an injunction shall stop such payment. It is signed by John J. Mastin, S. E. Ward, T. H. Mastin, J. Q. Watkins, Karnes & Ess, Edward H. Allen, K. Coates, Francis Foster, C. J. White, E. L. Martin and M. Diveley.

SECOND CLIP OF WOOL SELLS FOR GOOD PRICE HERE

(San Angelo Standard.)

At prices ranging from 25 to 32 cents per pound, Gilmore T. Gwin, local wool commission merchant, has sold his second clip of the season. Two hundred thousand pounds have been purchased by H. P. Roddie of Brady and representatives of Boston houses.

The wool is now being shipped to Galveston over the Santa Fe; thence northward to Boston and other points by boat.

To date Mr. Gwin has sold 700,000 pounds of wool. His first sale involved a half million pounds.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

ALLIES.

By LOUISE OLIVER.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It all began the day Eleanor Bell turned to Robin, a casual onlooker at the tennis court, and said sweetly: "Won't you play in this set with me, Mr. Dean? I'm afraid to ask, I'm such a horrid player; but——"

Robin had not allowed her to finish, in his haste to accept. He flushed consciously as he answered: "Thank you, very much, Miss Belle. I'd be very much honored, indeed, to play with you." And as she gave him a sidelong look out of her wonderful eyes, which seemed to say "You are a man after my own heart, and I have just discovered it," his own poor heart almost gave a jump right out of his mouth, and he added, impulsively, "I'd eat a peck of that sand, Miss Belle, if you'd ask me to, like that."

She laughed. "But I don't intend to make such a demand now, Mr. Dean," she said, with another look that thrilled him afresh.

And that is the way it began, for up to that minute Robin had regarded Eleanor Belle as an unapproachable planet of the upper heavens, with a group of satelites all her own, who far surpassed him in brilliancy and age. He belonged to a set known as "The Kids."

Craig Halsted and Mary Lane, on the other side of the net nodded understandingly to one another. "Nell's caught another fish," whispered Craig.

"Just a minnow!" laughed Mary. "Isn't she the limit? I wonder what she does it for!"

"She'd better be careful. One of the minnows might grow into a whale and eat her up," answered Craig lightly, as he sent the ball over the net.

But after all that wasn't the real beginning either. That happened years before, one day when Robin was 6 years old and Betty Wright was 3. That day a friendly collie dog had knocked Betty down and in sheer exuberance of spirits was kissing her all over her little face when Robin came along on roller skates and bravely gave the tormentor a whack with a stick and drove him away. The little golden-haired girl had smiled adorably and held out two chubby hands. "Me love you!" she said. And Robin had kissed her as impulsively as, fifteen years later, he had offered to devour part of the tennis court at Eleanor Belle's command.

Betty and Robin had grown up chums, fighting each other's battles, sharing each other's joys, triumphing in each other's victories.

Even now, Robin flushed with conscious pride as he thought of Betty. "Perhaps Miss Belle will let me walk home with her and we will pass Bet's home. Won't she be surprised, though, to see me chumming with such a queen!"

Robin and Eleanor Belle won the set.

"What a splendid player you are, Robin! You don't mind me calling you Robin, do you?" She flashed a splendid smile at him and held out her hand. "I want to congratulate you. You are the first man who has beaten Craig Halsted this year."

The "minnow" gasped with a conglomeration of feelings, but managed a reply of some sort. He did walk home with Eleanor, and they did pass "Bet's" house, but so complete was his infatuation that he didn't see his old chum waving at him from a side porch swing.

But before they had quite reached home, one of the charmer's satellites passed, a man six or seven years Robin's senior. "What are your hours, Nell?" he called. "You ought to hang out a sign!"

Robin turned a hot red. The reference to a kindergarten went home and he felt like fighting. Then his good sense came to his rescue and he paid no attention. That was the manly thing to do!

When he had left Eleanor at her door he went back to Betty's stepping on clouds instead of the pavement. This time he saw his chum on the swing.

"Hello, Bet!"

"Hello, Bob! Wonder you wouldn't speak as you pass by. What's up between you and Nellie Belle? You looked as thick as thieves going along a minute ago." The boy dectected a note of amazement in her voice, but shrugged his shoulders indifferently as though what had happened was an everyday occurrance.

"Oh, we played tennis together and I thought I'd better take her home."

"She's older than you, Rob!"

"Not much! Besides, it doesn't make any difference. It's all the way you act."

Betty was silent.

"She's certainly a queen, isn't she, Bet? And didn't she look pretty in that pink sweater!"

"She certainly did, Bob. You have good taste." Betty slid out of the swing. "I must go and fix the salad now, so run along home. Bye-bye."

In the days that followed, Robin lived in a happy haze of unreality and dreams. Eleanor was kind, too kind for his peace of mind, and she had allowed him to call. But he found some of the satellites around when he went. That was no fun and he rather guessed they were making sport of him anyway. So, knowing the power of ridicule, he stayed away and had to content himself with the telephone, notes and messages in boxes of candy and flowers.

He found a willing ally in Betty, to whom he took all his troubles. There was the time the candy store burned down! Many a box of delectable sweets came from Betty's kitchen intended for the fair Eleanor. And many a bit of shopping she did for Rob upon a birthday or like occasion when a woman's taste was required. She managed his campaign to perfection and kept him posted as to the goings and comings of his rivals and planned opportunities for him to meet the object of his dreams.

"You're a brick, Bet! What on earth would I do without y u?" declared Robin one day.

"Oh, you'll get along all right some day when things get settled and you and Eleanor are married."

"Married!" he cried. "Do you think she—oh, Bet, do you think she cares for me?"

"She must, or she wouldn't have let you do all you've done. You've been awfully good to her, Rob! Think of all the things you've sent her and the money you have spent on her. Besides, she must know that you care."

"Yes, I guess she does know it by this time. But really I've never actually told her that I loved her."

"Well, why don't you? You've known her a good while, and you are rich enough to support her and you always say age doesn't make and difference. Why don't you tell her that you love her? Faint hea—you know."

"I believe I will, Bet, this very night if none of those fools is hanging around. They think I'm a kid, but I'll show them. Craig Halsted has nearly driven me crazy with his guying. Say, Betty," in sudden panic, "how do you propose to a girl?"

She laughed. "I can make your candy and do your shopping and arrange your meetings, but I can't do your proposing. Every one seems to have his own way," demurely.

"How do you know?"

"Oh, I know!"

"Why, how many proposals have you had to talk so?" in the tone of a patronizing big brother.

"Well—there's one, two, three," counting on her fingers, "four, five this summer. No so bad!"

"Betty! I didn't dream you were such a flirt. When has all this been going on?"

"Going on?"

"I think it is scandalous!"

"So do I! But," with demurely lifted brows, "I can't help it if they love me."

"Betty Wright! This doesn't sound like you. My old chum! You"—anxious—"haven't accepted any of them, have you?"

"I'm not saying."

"But—why, Betty, what would I do if you got married?"

"Would it make any difference? I could still help you. Eleanor could come——"

"Darn Eleanor! It's you I'm worrying about, Betty. I don't want you to get married"—their eyes met and held—"to anybody but me," he finish. "It's you I love, Betty—no one else. I've just found it out, but it's true. Look here, dear, you aren't really engaged, are you?"

"Not precisely," she laughed. Then added: "Eleanor is going to marry Craig after Christmas, but don't tell—it's a secret."

EDUCATION

You teach your children all sorts of things; reading, writing, arithmetic, science and literature.

Why don't you teach them the most important thing of all? Thrift!

Thrift has to be learned. It hardly ever comes by nature.

Encourage saving. Let the boys and girls have their own capital, their own savings bank account, and keep adding to it.

They will love it, if you show them how.

Judge McCullough Submits Platform and Asks Support

Tom L. McCullough.

In announcing my candidacy for congress from this district, I am seeking to show the people reasons for my election. The day has past when men can be elected to office solely upon their reputations as good citizens, while this cuts an important part in their consideration, other matters must be carefully weighed. What a man stands for and his ability to do these things is the maximum consideration now. Realizing this to be true, I submit, briefly, my platform and ask your support upon it.

I stand for preparedness. I favor a strong navy, a small army and a great citizen soldiery.

I favor a system of rural credit associations, adaptable to local and special industries.

I favor farm land banks to handle land securities on long time, say thirty years, to aid citizens in acquiring, improving and operating farms. I would limit the rate of interest charged by banks on funds supplied by the government.

I favor Brazos navigation and reclamation by aid of the federal government.

I favor a workmen's compensation act and an employers' liability law. In raising the increased revenues required I favor a further extension of the income tax, and also an inheritance tax law. I favor a tariff for revenue only; also a permanent non-partisan tariff commission advisory to congress.

Recognizing the vital importance, the dignity and humanity of labor, I favor its protection. I believe labor is entitled to an equitable share of the wealth it creates.

I will support a resolution submitting to the several states, a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for use as a beverage.

Hoping to have a careful consideration of these fundamental contentions, I shall be proud of your vote and influence.

Respectfully,
(Pol. Adv.) TOM L. McCULLOUGH.

CHARGED WITH BEING SENTIMENTAL.

"I need not remind you how much sentiment has been poured out in honor of the flag of the United States. Sometimes we have been charged with being a very sentimental people, fond of expressing in general rhetorical phrases principles not sufficiently defined in action and I dare say there have been times of happy and careless ease in this country when all that it has been necessary to do for the honor of the flag was to put our sentiments into poetic expressions, into the words that for the time being satisfied our hearts. But this is not a day of sentiment. Sentiment is a propulsive power, but it does not propel in the way that is serviceable to the nation unless it have a definite purpose before it. This is not merely a day of sentiment. It is a day of purposes.

"It is an eloquent symbol of the unity of our history that upon this monument which commemorates the man who did most to establish the American union we should have hoisted those stars that have so multiplied since his time, associated with those lines of red and white which mean all that is pure in our purpose and all that is red in our blood in the service of a nation whose history has been full of inspiration because of his example. But Washington was one of the least sentimental men that America has ever produced. The thing that thrills me about Washington is that he was impatient of any sentiment that has not got definite purpose in it. His letters run along the lines of action, not merely along the lines f sentiment, and the most inspiring times that this nation has ever seen have been the times sentiment had to be translated into action.

NATION TO BE TESTED AGAIN.

"Apparently this nation is again and again and again to be tested and always tested in the same way. The last supreme test this nation went through was the test of the civil war. You know how deep that cut. You know what exigent issues of life were at issue in that great struggle.

"Where are now the divisions of sentiment which cut us asunder at the time of the civil war? Did you not see the blue and the grey mingled this morning in the procession? Did you not see the sons of a subsequent generation walking together in happy comradeship? Was there any contradiction of feeling or division of sentiment evident there for a moment? Nothing cuts so deep as a civil war, and yet all the wounds of that war have been healed not only, but the very passion of that war seems to have contributed to the strength of national feeling which now moves as a single body politic.

"And yet again the test is applied, my fellow countrymen. A new sort of division of feeling has sprung up amongst us. You know that we are derived in our citizenship from every nation in the world. It is not singular that sentiment should be disturbed by what is going on on the other side of the water, but while sentiment may be disturbed, loyalty ought not to be.

MOST FOREIGN-BORN ARE LOYAL.

"I want to be scrupulously just, my fellow citizens, in assessing that circumstances of this day and I am sure that you wish with me to deal out with an even hand the praise and the blame of this day of test. I believe that the vast majority of those men whose lineage is directly derived from the nations now at war are just as loyal to the flag of the United States as any native citizen of this beloved land, but there are some men of that extraction who are not and they not only in past months, but at the present time, are doing their best to undermine the influence of the government of the United States in the interest of matters which are foreign to us and which are not derived from the questions of our own politics.

"There is disloyalty active in the United States and it must be absolutely crushed. It proceeds from a minority, a very small minority, but a very active and subtle minority. It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it; and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of political blackmail, saying, 'Do what we wish in the interest of foreign sentiment or we will wreak our vengeance at the polls.' That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with a might and triumph of sentiment which will teach these gentlemen once for all that loyalty to this flag is the first test of tolerance in the United States.

"That is the lesson I have come to remind you of on this day—no mere sentiment. It runs into your daily life and conversation. Are you going yourselves, individually and collectively, to see to it that no man is tolerated who does not do honor to that flag? It is not a matter of force. It is not a matter, that is to say, of physical force. It is a matter of greater force than that which is physical. It is a matter of spiritual force. It is to be achieved as we think, as we purpose, as we believe and when the world finally learns that America is indivisible, then the world will learn how truly and profoundly great and powerful America is.

FULL MEANING OF FLAG DESIRED.

"I realize personally, my fellow citizens, the peculiar significance of the flag of the United States at this time because there was a day not many years ago when, although I thought I knew what the flag stood for, it had not penetrated my whole consciousness as it has now. If you could have gone with me through the space of the last years and could have felt the subtle impact of intrigue and sedition and have realized with me that those to whom you have intrusted authority are trustees not only of the power, but of the very spirit and purpose of the United States, you would realize with me the solemnity with which I look upon that sublime symbol of our unity and power. I want you to share that consciousness with me. I want you to realize that in what I am saying I am merely your spokesman, merely trying to interpret your thoughts, merely trying to put into inadequate words the purpose that is in your hearts. I regard this day as a day of re-dedication to all the ideals of the United States.

"I took the liberty a few weeks ago to ask our fellow citizens all over the United States to gather together in celebration of this day, the anniversary of the adoption of our present flag as the emblem of the nation. I had no legal right to declare it a holiday, I had no legal right to ask for the cessation of business, but when you read the papers tomorrow morning I think you will see that authority was not necessary; that the people of the country were waiting for an opportunity to cease their ordinary business and gather together in united demonstration of their feeling as a nation.

"It was a very happy thought that led the committee of gentlemen who had charge of the demonstration of the forenoon to choose the Fourteenth of June for the parade which most of us have witnessed. It is a tiresome thing, my fellow citizens, to stand for hours and see a parade go by, but I want to take you into this secret—it was not half as tiresome as the inauguration parade. The inauguration parade is a very interesting thing, but it is painfully interesting to the man who is being inaugurated because there then lie ahead of him the four years of responsibility whose horoscope cannot be cast by any man. But today was interesting because the inauguration parade of the day of my inauguration is more than three years gone by. I have gone through deep waters with you in the meantime. This parade was not a demonstration in honor of any man. It was an outpouring of people to demonstrate a great national sentiment. I was not the object of it, I was one citizen among millions whose hearts were in union with it. I felt caught up and buoyed along by the great stream of human purpose which seemed to flow there in front of me by the stand by the white house and I shall go away from this meeting as I came away from the parade, with all the deepest purposes of my heart renewed; and as I see the winds lovingly unfold the beautiful lines of our great flag I shall seem to see a hand pointing the way of duty no matter how hard, no matter how long which we shall tread while we vindicate the glory and honor of the United States."

Philadelphia in Line.

Philadelphia, June 14.—Speaking at the Flag Day exercises at the Betsy Ross house here today, Dr. C. J. Hexamer, president of the National German-American alliance, declared that true Americanism knows no distinction of race or creed.

"True Americanism," he said, "demands a true neutrality, solely for the defense of American rights and in the best interest of the United States against any aggression."

Dr. Hexamer said Americans had experienced much and "some of us have endured much" since the outbreak of the European war.

"As experience is the best teacher, we have all learned many important lessons," he added.

Mayor Smith presided at the flag day exercises at Independence hall, where at noon a state flag of Louisiana, sent here by Mayor Behrman of New Orleans, was to be raised above the historic edifice. At the same time an American flag sent from Philadelphia to the Southern city was to be sent aloft and the school children of both cities were to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Dixie" as the emblems were unfurled.

of Mexico and that subject would be covered by implication in general declarations outlining relations of the United States with other governments. This portion of the platform would declare unequivocally for the right of every nation to regulate its own international affairs and would point out that this government would be satisfied with nothing less for itself.

PROTECTION OF AMERICAN CITIZENS.

Rights of American citizens would be dealt with in a plank declaring for their protection at home and abroad. In a defense of American neutrality as strict and honest, one of the provisions would make an apparent, though no specific reference to charges of partiality to the entente allies and would point out that questions involving not life, but only property, can be settled by indemnity and reparation when the passions of war have subsided.

A permanent peace tribunal would be advocated as a court of arbitral justice to which all disputes between nations should be referred.

While the platform would deal with the peaceful settlement of disputes between nations, it would be outspoken in its declarations that the navy should be of proportions and efficiently to make effective the Monroe doctrine and that the standing army should be of sufficient strength to secure the country against unexpected aggression.

The platform in the same connection would declare for a sufficient reserve force to secure the nation against invasion and aggression at all times. Coupled with this declaration for a strong army and navy would be a straight-forward pronouncement against all wars of aggrandizement and against violations of territorial integrity.

Touching international questions, the platform would declare for an eight-hour day for working men and also civil service pensions, with a declaration that the government should care for those upon whom it depends to man its operating machinery. One plank would deal with child labor and another would advocate legislation in the interest of labor in all government institutions.

TO STAND BY THE ADMINISTRATION.

In several scheduled planks the legislative record of the administration would be set forth with reference to the federal reserve law, the trade commission act, the shipping act, the tariff commission bill, rural credits legislation and other measures passed by congress or now being pressed by the administration. Then the platform would contain a definite announcement that when the program now under way is completed there will be no more legislation which the business world could regard as restraining.

The draft as Secretary Baker brought it from the white house made no claims for general approval of the president's course for "peace and prosperity," but the president's friends are determined that the platform would not be complete without a strong presentment on that point.

WILL REDRAFT SUFFRAGE PLANK.

A plank on woman's suffrage which was suggested by the president probably will be redrafted. Indications tonight are that the plank will not be unlike the republican plank, recognizing the right of suffrage for women, but holding to the right of the states to regulate the ballot themselves.

The platform committee organized today by electing Senator Stone chairman and Lewis Bickness of South Dakota as secretary. It started public hearings with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. Before taking a recess for dinner it had listened to advocates of planks against militarism and representatives of the Woman's Peace party. Senator Stone said he did not know whether or not the prohibition forces would present their views to the committee. He said the sub-committee of nine which will do the real work of making the platform with President Wilson's own draft as a basis, would not be appointed until the entire committee finishes the open hearings.

President Gompers began by declaring that the democratic party had done well by labor but that it must go still further.

"You have only done half enough," said Mr. Gompers. "The future of any political party depends on what it will undertake to do for the masses of the people."

GOMPERS SCORES REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Mr. Gompers said he appeared before the republican committee with his demands for labor.

"They asked us to condense them," he added, "and when they appeared in the republican platform it took a microscope to find them."

The labor leader said he was for "preparedness, physical, mental and spiritual, and particularly industrial."

Mrs. W. E. Thomas of Chicago, representing the Woman's Peace party, told the committee the time was ripe for a plank by which the United States might take a lead in establishing an international court of justice and another for a referendum vote before the United States could declare war except when its territory was invaded or a treaty guaranteed by it had been violated.

CHARGED WITH BEING SENTIMENTAL.

"I need not remind you how much sentiment has been poured out in honor of the flag of the United States. Sometimes we have been charged with being a very sentimental people, fond of expressing in general rhetorical phrases principles not sufficiently defined in action and I dare say there have been times of happy and careless ease in this country when all that it has been necessary to do for the honor of the flag was to put our sentiments into poetic expressions, into the words that for the time being satisfied our hearts. But this is not a day of sentiment. Sentiment is a propulsive power, but it does not propel in the way that is serviceable to the nation unless it have a definite purpose before it. This is not merely a day of sentiment. It is a day of purposes.

"It is an eloquent symbol of the unity of our history that upon this monument which commemorates the man who did most to establish the American union we should have hoisted those stars that have so multiplied since his time, associated with those lines of red and white which mean all that is pure in our purpose and all that is red in our blood in the service of a nation whose history has been full of inspiration because of his example. But Washington was one of the least sentimental men that America has ever produced. The thing that thrills me about Washington is that he was impatient of any sentiment that has not got definite purpose in it. His letters run along the lines of action, not merely along the lines f sentiment, and the most inspiring times that this nation has ever seen have been the times sentiment had to be translated into action.

NATION TO BE TESTED AGAIN.

"Apparently this nation is again and again and again to be tested and always tested in the same way. The last supreme test this nation went through was the test of the civil war. You know how deep that cut. You know what exigent issues of life were at issue in that great struggle.

"Where are now the divisions of sentiment which cut us asunder at the time of the civil war? Did you not see the blue and the grey mingled this morning in the procession? Did you not see the sons of a subsequent generation walking together in happy comradeship? Was there any contradiction of feeling or division of sentiment evident there for a moment? Nothing cuts so deep as a civil war, and yet all the wounds of that war have been healed not only, but the very passion of that war seems to have contributed to the strength of national feeling which now moves as a single body politic.

"And yet again the test is applied, my fellow countrymen. A new sort of division of feeling has sprung up amongst us. You know that we are derived in our citizenship from every nation in the world. It is not singular that sentiment should be disturbed by what is going on on the other side of the water, but while sentiment may be disturbed, loyalty ought not to be.

MOST FOREIGN-BORN ARE LOYAL.

"I want to be scrupulously just, my fellow citizens, in assessing that circumstances of this day, and I am sure that you wish with me to deal out with an even hand the praise and the blame of this day of test. I believe that the vast majority of those men whose lineage is directly derived from the nations now at war are just as loyal to the flag of the United States as any native citizen of this beloved land, but there are some men of that extraction who are not and they not only in past months, but at the present time, are doing their best to undermine the influence of the government of the United States in the interest of matters which are foreign to us and which are not derived from the questions of our own politics.

"There is disloyalty active in the United States and it must be absolutely crushed. It proceeds from a minority, a very small minority, but a very active and subtle minority. It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it; and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of political blackmail, saying, 'Do what we wish in the interest of foreign sentiment or we will wreak our vengeance at the polls.' That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with a might and triumph of sentiment which will teach these gentlemen once for all that loyalty to this flag is the first test of tolerance in the United States.

"That is the lesson I have come to remind you of on this day—no mere sentiment. It runs into your daily life and conversation. Are you going yourselves, individually and collectively, to see to it that no man is tolerated who does not do honor to that flag? It is not a matter of force. It is not a matter, that is to say, of physical force. It is a matter of greater force than that which is physical. It is a matter of spiritual force. It is to be achieved as we think, as we purpose, as we believe and when the world finally learns that America is indivisible, then the world will learn how truly and profoundly great and powerful America is.

FULL MEANING OF FLAG DESIRED.

"I realize personally, my fellow citizens, the peculiar significance of the flag of the United States at this time because there was a day not many years ago when, although I thought I knew what the flag stood for, it had not penetrated my whole consciousness as it has now. If you could have gone with me through the space of the last years and could have felt the subtle impact of intrigue and sedition and have realized with me that those to whom you have intrusted authority are trustees not only of the power, but of the very spirit and purpose of the United States, you would realize with me the solemnity with which I look upon that sublime symbol of our unity and power. I want you to share that consciousness with me. I want you to realize that in what I am saying I am merely your spokesman, merely trying to interpret your thoughts, merely trying to put into inadequate words the purpose that is in your hearts. I regard this day as a day of re-dedication to all the ideals of the United States.

"I took the liberty a few weeks ago to ask our fellow citizens all over the United States to gather together in celebration of this day, the anniversary of the adoption of our present flag as the emblem of the nation. I had no legal right to declare it a holiday, I had no legal right to ask for the cessation of business, but when you read the papers tomorrow morning I think you will see that authority was not necessary; that the people of the country were waiting for an opportunity to cease their ordinary business and gather together in united demonstration of their feeling as a nation.

Judge McCullough Submits Platform and Asks Support

Tom L. McCullough.

In announcing my candidacy for congress from this district, I am seeking to show the people reasons for my election. The day has past when men can be elected to office solely upon their reputations as good citizens, while this cuts an important part in their consideration, other matters must be carefully weighed. What a man stands for and his ability to do these things is the maximum consideration now. Realizing this to be true, I submit, briefly, my platform and ask your support upon it.

I stand for preparedness. I favor a strong navy, a small army and a great citizen soldiery.

I favor a system of rural credit associations, adaptable to local and special industries.

I favor farm land banks to handle land securities on long time, say thirty years, to aid citizens in acquiring, improving and operating farms. I would limit the rate of interest charged by banks on funds supplied by the government.

I favor Brazos navigation and reclamation by aid of the federal government.

I favor a workmen's compensation act and an employers' liability law. In raising the increased revenues required I favor a further extension of the income tax, and also an inheritance tax law. I favor a tariff for revenue only; also a permanent non-partisan tariff commission advisory to congress.

Recognizing the vital importance, the dignity and humanity of labor, I favor its protection. I believe labor is entitled to an equitable share of the wealth it creates.

I will support a resolution submitting to the several states, a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for use as a beverage.

Hoping to have a careful consideration of these fundamental contentions, I shall be proud of your vote and influence.

Respectfully,
(Pol. Adv.) TOM L. McCULLOUGH.

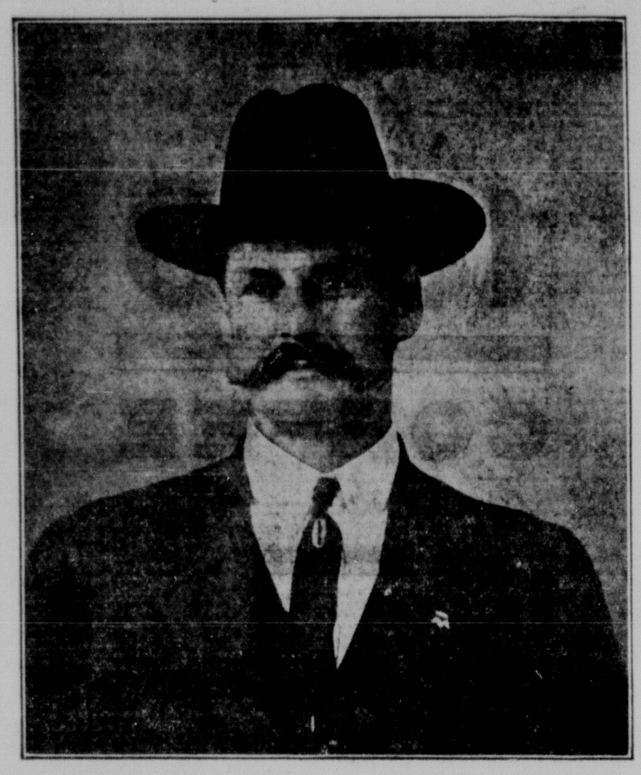
Bob Buchannan for Sheriff of McLennan County



In offering myself for sheriff of McLennan county, Texas, I realize the importance of the office.

I was born in McLennan county and have been raised in the city of Waco. The people know me and my qualifications for the office of sheriff. I have served as a public officer for fourteen years; as a member of the police force, assistant chief of police and deputy sheriff. I ran for sheriff four years ago and carried in that race the entire county east of the river and the city of Waco. I lost that race only by one hundred and one votes and I feel that I am better qualified now than I was then.

I pledge myself, if elected, to make a good, clean, conservative officer; to see that the duties of the office are promptly and properly executed; to be courteous to the people and faithful to my trust. I feel that those who know me well know that I will carry out every pledge.

The office will be kept open night and day and ready to respond to every call at all hours.

With my acquaintance in the county, my record as an officer, the race that I made four years ago, and the fact that my opponent has already served two terms, all in mind, I feel that I have a just right to ask the people to vote for me for sheriff for this year, and I earnestly solicit their votes.

Very respectfully,
BOB BUCHANNON.

Hon. John D. Robinson of Bell county was in the city yesterday.

James Burck and wife of Dallas were here yesterday for awhile.

Dr. J. A. Craven goes to Lubbock next week and will be absent ten days.

Richard Zander of Philadelphia was in the city yesterday for awhile on business.

M. J. Montgomery, a prominent citizen of McGregor, spent yesterday in the city.

Dr. M. D. Baker, who has been ill for some little time, is still confined to his room.

Ben Hartley of Weatherford spent a part of yesterday in the city on business.

F. L. Jones, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island railroad, spent yesterday in the city.

Miss D'Alva Hale, formerly of Waco, stopped off between trains in the Y. W. C. A. rooms on her way to Belton yesterday.

N. S. Davis, traveling freight and passenger agent of the Worth & Denver City railroad, was here yesterday from Fort Worth.

¶ CITY NEWS BRIEFS ¶

There was no business in the courts here yesterday, but a jury in the Nineteenth district court will report for duty this morning.

The following marriage licenses were issued yesterday: D. T. Wilson and Miss Treasure Connolly, W. L. Johnson and Miss Lorela Foster.

The Philathea class of the Morrow Street Methodist church will give an ice cream social at 8 o'clock this evening on the lawn of Mrs. J. F. Hopkins, 928 North Twelfth street. Everybody is invited and a pleasant time is assured for all.

Miss Kate Friend has been appointed by the Welfare league and the City Federation of Women's clubs as representative of Waco for the meeting of the Texas Town and City Planning association which meets in Dallas June 26th and 27th.

There is more interest in the farm deals in this section than for some time past, it is stated, and probably the high prices of cotton and cotton seed have had something to do with this condition. Some nice farm deals are being made, and others are on tapis.

Practically all the old cotton in this section has been shipped out, it is stated by railroad men, except the cotton around compresses and a very little held in yards. The railroads are handling very little of the fleecy staple out now, and in fact are watching developments of the new crop.

Perhaps the most beautiful crepe myrtle trees in Waco are on the lawns of the James B. Baker and W. L. Geer homes on Columbus street at and near Ninth street. These trees are not only gorgeous bloomers and of a beautiful tint, but are so disposed as to give a most pleasing effect.

"It is remarkable how people call the wrong numbers of city departments and thus stop busy officials from work," said one of the officials yesterday. He stated that many people fail to make investigations of the department they want to get in touch with, and call the first department that even suggests itself as being the right one, thus causing much delay and confusion often.

Waco people read with interest and satisfaction that rain has at last fallen in the region around Corpus Christi, after a drouth of ten months. This is an unusual condition for the Corpus Christi country, as they ordinarily get rains from the big waters lying alongside, but for some meterological or other reason this failed to bring results in the present case.

Four of the Sisters of St. Mary will leave today, two of them going to Washington to attend the summer school conducted by the Catholic University of America, the other going to the mother house of the United States order, St. Joseph's academy, at Lockport, N. Y. One of the very handsome buildings of the Catholic university was the gift of a Waco woman to the Sisters of St. Mary, known as St. Mary's house of studies.

A pleasant time was had Tuesday evening in the hospitable home of Presiding Elder J. A. Whitehurst of the Waco district, M. E. church south, at which time the Methodist pastors and lay leaders of the city were invited to be present at Mr. Whitehurst's residence and meet Rev. J. A. G. Shipley, missionary to China, who is here on furlough. The time was enjoyed by all who were present, and Presiding Elder Whitehurst and family made it agreeable for all.

Local News

Mrs. J. L. Hubby.

The funeral of Mrs. J. L. Hubby took place at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning from the residence, 931 South Sixth street, Rev. J. M. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating.

Interment was at Oakwood cemetery. There were many beautiful flowers sent as a last testimonial of the esteem in which Mrs. Hubby and other members of the family were held.

A service was held at the residence and a brief ceremony followed at the grave, and the last resting place was piled high with beautiful flowers.

Children Will Give Mother Goose Play on Library Lawn

"A Vision of Youth" is the name of a playlet to be given tonight on the Waco public library lawn by children residing in that vicinity. Little Miss Martha Henshaw is the director, with able assistants among her playmates. The production is entirely the result of the efforts of children from 10 to 13 years old. The costuming is unique and fanciful, and the conception itself is original and said to be well worked out.

Children representing time-honored characters in juvenile fiction will appear before Father Time. Mother Goose celebrities will figure prominently as will well known characters in favorite fairy stories.

A feature of the play will be four children dressed as A. B. C. blocks, the letters "Y. W. C. A." being displayed prominently, as the play is being given for the benefit of this new organization.

Last year this same set of children staged a playlet, clearing between $14 and $16, which they presented to the public health nurse, Miss Laura Edwards. The admission price is popular, being only 25c, and the children are hoping for a good attendance.

Speakers Will Debate National Prohibition This Evening

The Waco Speakers' club will meet in the Chamber of Commerce suite this evening promptly at 7:45, at which time the following program will be carried out:

Oration by Speaker T. E. Leach.

Question for debate, "Resolved, That the democratic party should adopt a plank for national prohibition." The affirmative will be represented by Cecil E. McGuffin and Ferdinand S. Marrs, while the negative speakers will be P. C. Wiley and Frank L. Wilcox.

On account of the question for discussion being a very important issue just at this time, it is expected that a good crowd will be in evidence. The public in general, interested in this question, is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

The meetings of the Waco Speakers' club are open to any young men in the city who wish to develop debating and oratorical qualities and a cordial reception awaits all who may take advantage of this opportunity.

Temple Boosters Will Make Figure-eight Excursion

The Bell county fair at Midway, between Belton and Temple, will be boosted by means of a Temple excursion July 12 of rather a novel itinerary. The trip will swing the boosters within a radius of forty miles of Temple with their city as the pivot. Dan H. McKenzie, secretary of the Bell county fair, and A. E. Noble, secretary of the Young Men's Business League, were in Waco yesterday and spoke of the plans for the trip.

The plan of the boosters is to leave Temple at 7 a. m. July 12, on the Santa Fe, to McGregor, thence to Waco, thence down the Katy to Temple and Taylor, and all intermediate points, on the International & Great Northern to Milano and intermediate points; from Milano to Temple and all intermediate points on the Santa Fe.

The Temple live wires will pull off a parade and take lunch in their own town. The trip covers 185 miles and at no time will the excursionists be over forty miles from Temple.

Various committees, including those on speakers, decorations, refreshments, music, etc., have been provided for, and the trip of the Templeites will be one of the best they have ever pulled off, they think.

The reason for the trip is to boost the Bell county fair, to be given at Midway, Bell county, the second annual exhibition. This is one of the largest county fairs of the state, the grounds are ideally located and the attractions and races will be better than ever. The dates of the Bell county fair this year are October 3 to 7, inclusive.

Two Wacoans Will Be Present at Great S. S. Convention

C. H. Machen, prominently connected with the Baraca work in Texas, will leave today for the international convention at Minneapolis, Minn., of the Baraca and Philathea classes. Mr. Machen will speak on "How to Keep Young Men in Sunday School," at the convention. James Jenkins, a vice president of the national organization, left this city for the convention yesterday. Both Wacoans will appear several times on the program in sectional and round table discussions.

DAZZLING RECORD OF WACO INSTITUTION

Business College Graduates Testify to Excellence of Courses of Instruction.

Prof. R. H. Hill's magnificent record as a business instructor is something of which the whole state of Texas may be proud. Genius and talent are irresistible, and shine out of the dim mist like the sublime peaks of the eternal mountains as they catch the golden gleams of the coming dawn. That Professor Hill has done a work of magnificent sweep and undoubted possibilities, goes without saying. The thousands of young men who are rapidly rising to eminence and distinction in the business world as a result of the training received from Professor Hill speak in a language it is impossible to misunderstand of the unsurpassed excellence of this institution. "Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Here is what some of our graduates say:

New York City, Feb. 7, 1907.
To Whom This May Interest:

This is to certify that during 1901 I attended Hill's Business college, Waco, Texas, and studied bookkeeping and penmanship. This course prepared me to keep books in a bank, as was demonstrated by actual experience, and to teach penmanship. I have done penmanship work in connection with public schools in 180 cities, in twenty-three states, having taught in twenty-three towns and cities in Texas. I earn annually from $3500 to $4000. I do this by applying the knowledge gained at Hill's Business college. If Texas people want the very best in commercial lines they should not look to the east, but patronize Hill's Business college in their own state. There is but little here that is as good and none that is better. I look back upon that course as of the most practical value of any I ever received. For a pupil to attend Hill's Business college is to make an investment that will pay 100 per cent dividends many times through life. Yours sincerely,
R. N. MARRS.

Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—I take this opportunity of expressing to you my hearty endorsement of your school and the Success system of shorthand taught by you. The system and your methods of instruction are, in my opinion, unsurpassed. The foundation of what success I have achieved in the shorthand profession was laid in your school.
Yours very truly,
HALL ETTER,
Official Stenographer, Fifty-fourth District Court.

Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—It affords me pleasure to say that I was once a pupil of Hill's Business college, Waco, Texas. Having looked up the matter of commercial schools, I decided that this was the most thorough, practical and up-to-date, and I have ever since been proud of the distinction of having been a pupil of this institution. Any one who anticipates taking a commercial course can not make a mistake by entering this good institution.
Very truly yours,
W. H. FUQUA,
President First National Bank,
Amarillo, Texas.

Hill's Business College, Waco, Texas.

Gentlemen—Having attended your institution, I know exactly what it is. I have carefully noticed that all students that graduate from that school come out prepared to take hold of any kind of a set of books, and hold their positions. Your friend,
I. C. THURMOND,
Cashier First National Bank,
Elk City, Okla.

Kind Friends—I write this to let you know what a high regard I have for Hill's Business college (Little Rock, Ark.). I entered your college to take a course in shorthand and typewriting, and within eight weeks was prepared to hold a good position, and within nine weeks was placed in a first-class position, where I am still employed.
(MISS) BUFORD MITCHELL.

Temple, Texas, Fem. 24, 1914.
Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—I am glad of the opportunity to say a good word for Hill's Business college. If I can at any time call on some prospective student here, kindly advise me. I am still with the First National bank, and have been ever since leaving your school, with the exception of one year.

With all kinds of good wishes, I am,
Yours sincerely,
(MISS) IDA WOOD.

Annual Retreat of Sisters of St. Mary Begins July 2

The annual retreat of the Sisters of St. Mary will begin at Fort Worth July 2 and continue for eight weeks. Sisters of St. Mary from all the houses of Texas will be present. The towns represented will be Waco, Dallas, Fort Worth, Denison, Sherman and Wichita Falls. This annual retreat is a custom of the Catholic church and is a period of retirement and meditation. A priest of the Vincentian order, sent from St. Louis to Texas, will be in charge.

Provident Heights Baptist S. S. Has Picnic Today

Provident Heights Baptist church Sunday school classes will go on a picnic today to Walkers Crossing. The time for assembling is set for 8:30 this morning, and adequate conveyance will be provided for all. A large crowd, a good time and plenty of eats are expected.

Primary Case Submitted.

Austin, June 14.—In the supreme court today was submitted on brief the case from Tarrant county involving the constitutionality of the action of the state democratic executive committee in levying an assessment on county candidates to meet the expense of a second senatorial primary. The case is known as the Beene case and [illegible] through the lower courts of Tarrant county the action of the com[illegible] was upheld. It is believed that it will be decided during the term of court to close June 24.

Clothes Made Here? Sure, Just Try Out Hammond-Vawter

The many customers of the Hammond-Vawter Tailoring company would feel the loss in more than one way if this establishment was not in existence. That you "don't miss water until the well is dry" is certainly true and can be applied in this case. This company maintains a service not equaled by another concern of its kind in the state. Suits are made on short notice and pants are made right here in Waco in six hours' time.

Fifteen workmen, all who spend their money in this city, are maintained by the Hammond-Vawter company and every dollar that goes into this company is a Waco dollar and remains so. Without the pressure of low prices, the lead being set by this firm, prices on men's suits would advance at least five dollars, it has been stated. The benefit from such progressive tailors can readily be seen.

Because of the concern being a Waco concern, it deserves the support of every loyal Wacoan. The more business they handle, the better their opportunity is for extending low prices to the public and thus helping solve the high cost of living problem. Even though the products have recently experienced from 100 per cent to 300 per cent advance in prices brought on by the European conflict, it is understood that the Hammond-Vawter company will not advance their prices, as will practically all other business houses be forced to do this summer or fall.

A concern such as the Hammond-Vawter company that helps keep Waco dollars at home is a big asset to a city. The company is interested in Waco's welfare and have demonstrated their loyal support in making Waco one of the south's leading metropolis of the south, in many different ways. Practically all movements that have been launched to make a bigger and better Waco, have received the endorsement and co-operation of the Hammond-Vawter company.

Few are the reliable shops in existence anywhere that will press a suit for twenty-five cents. This is fifty per cent under the nearest opponent and the company is to be congratulated upon giving Waco an establishment that will accurately and properly press a suit for twenty-five cents. Telephone calls are given prompt attention and the work that is turned out is an equal to the work of fancy-priced tailors and is superior to many of them.

Six years of experience has taught the company the way to handle the public and that is by turning out A-1 work and work that they are proud of and are ever willing to claim. The increasing business has been responsible for the cut prices and the customers of Waco are the ones that have reaped the results and benefited.

J. M. Penland

J. M. Penland, president of the Waco Chamber of Commerce and also a director of that organization, is one of the foremost men in all activities looking to the upbuilding of this city and section, albeit he is modest in demeanor almost to a fault. The Rotarians of the Twelfth district of Texas are presenting his name for governor of this district at the international meeting of Rotarians in Cincinnati this summer. He is president of the Waco Drug company and is also a past president of the Waco Rotary club, being a charter member of the Waco organization. He was one of the delegates from the Waco Rotary club to the international Rotary convention in Houston in 1914. He has done excellent service in the Y. M. B. L., and is, in fact, at home in any position, official or in the ranks, when it comes to working for Waco. Mr. Penland is chairman of out-of-town eats on the trade trip.

Recital Tonight.

F. Arthur Johnson wishes to remind all interested in music of the recital to be given tonight in the auditorium of Goggan's piano store. A large number of seats have been provided and an effort will be made to give all a comfortable seat.

A special feature of the recital is the fifty-hand piece, a waltz, played on thirteen pianos at the same time. Thirty-eight hands and nine pianos all playing at the same time on the same piece will be another feature of the program. This is a unique undertaking, and staged for the first time in Waco. The program was published in Sunday's News.

Sam Fleming Is Running On Record for Re-Election

S. S. FLEMING

When the subject of this article announced for the office of sheriff of McLennan county four years ago, he made a compact with himself and religiously adhered to the terms of the compact all during the campaign; that his part thereof would be to run on his own merit, and if his competitors had demerits, the public would learn of them from other sources than from the lips of Sam Fleming.

The wisdom of this course of conduct was demonstrated by his election. During the present canvass Fleming is again running on his own merit, supplemented by the record made by him and his deputies during his occupancy of the office.

No man can hold an office, especially an office of the character and responsibility of such a one as sheriff of McLennan county, and please everybody. Necessarily some people disagree with him, and there are some who totally disregard the truth of their statements and pervert the facts, who take a trivial personal circumstance, distort and magnify it, make a mountain out of a mole hill and by endless repetition and skillful insinuation finally succeed in generating some hostile sentiment against the candidate. To this character of detraction and campaigning Fleming is giving little heed, but with a consciousness of duty well performed and a stewardship faithful and honorable, is persuing the even tenor of his way, challenging the most searching investigation into his official and personal conduct.

In the conduct of the peoples' affairs a deep-seated sense of duty is ever present as the impelling force of every act and all the conduct of Sam Fleming. In his administration of the sheriff's office he has elevated the standard of accountability to the public, and with a regime of rare virility, efficiency, activity and humanity, he has coupled and embraced the idea of democratic simplicity, as contemplated by the democratic fathers in the rules laid down for the guidance of public servants.

Sam Fleming has always done the work in hand carefully, earnestly, and with all his ability, firmly, courteously, realizing that this is the way to a successful administration, rather than trust to some chance circumstance or lucky strike to insure for himself popularity and prestige. While his administration has ever been noted for firmness, when demanded by the call of duty, he has at all times maintained the ability to throw off the burdens and cares that afflict others, by helping them to do likewise. Another thing about Sam Fleming, he is never self-centered except in the larger and broader sense of being of assistance to his fellow man.

Mr. Fleming is diseased with a broad philanthropy. He believes in the equality of man. He carries with him in the daily walk of his officialdom none of the "boast of heraldry or the pomp of power." He is just as courteous, just as obliging, just as accommodating as sheriff as he was when selling buggies and cultivators for the hardware company. He presents to the voters for their endorsement the record made by him and his corps of splendid deputies. He has not "bended the pregnant hinges of the knee, that thrift might follow fawning," but has done his duty, as it has pleased God to give him reason to understand it, without fear or favor, and if the voters exercise as much judgment in selecting a man to attend to their public affairs as they exercise with respect to the management and conduct of their personal and private business, confidently and gratefully he awaits the result of the July primaries.

Growing Business Compels Home Bakery to Secure New and Larger Quarters

For the last four years the Home Bakery has been located at 610 Washington street and like Waco it has enjoyed prosperity and progress, which has necessitated the management to arrange for more adequate and larger quarters. As a result announcement has been made by S. Bahme, the manager, that the concern would move to 115 Elm street about the first of June.

During the four years' time that the bakery has been located at 610 Washington street there has been a steady business built up. When the Home Bakery first opened at this location the building and equipment were sufficient to meet with their orders. But the business has increased and, determined to give the best service possible, the new headquarters have been selected.

The equipment of a bakery often amounts to a great deal and the best products are obtained when the best equipment is used. The new location of the Home Bakery will be equipped with everything that goes to make up a first-class and model establishment. The building will be modern and up-to-date throughout and will be one which any establishment of this kind should feel proud.

Few bakeries are managed as ably as is the Home Bakery. S. Bahme, who is at the head of the concern, is one of the best known bakers in this section of the country and has built up a reputation of being a real master baker. He has been located in Waco for eight years, during which time he has devoted his entire time toward building up the bakery business and his efforts have certainly borne rich fruit. His experience in this line of business is unlimited and his able management has been one of the principal factors in the progress and advancement of the Home Bakery.

Quality first and service next has been one of the mottoes of the firm and its employes. All products of the Home Home Bakery are turned out by experienced employes who take an interest in the establishment which they are working for and the result has been quite noticeable. Mr. Bahme attributes the success of his company to the co-operation of his employes in making the bakery one of the leading ones both in quality and in service.

Housewives are realizing more than ever that baker's bread is more economical and can be obtained every day fresh where it is of great trouble to the housewife to have fresh home-made bread every day, Mr. Bahme said. He stated that there was once a time when many housewives relied mostly upon home-made bread but that the improved baker establishments and able and experienced men in charge has reduced this number.

Mr. Bahme is satisfied that the new location of the concern will prove of advantage and is confident that his establishment will continue to enjoy increasing sales.

Bob Buchannan for Sheriff of McLennan County

In offering myself for sheriff of McLennan county, Texas, I realize the importance of the office.

I was born in McLennan county and have been raised in the city of Waco. The people know me and my qualifications for the office of sheriff. I have served as a public officer for fourteen years; as a member of the police force, assistant chief of police and deputy sheriff. I ran for sheriff four years ago and carried in that race the entire county east of the river and the city of Waco. I lost that race only by one hundred and one votes and I feel that I am better qualified now than I was then.

I pledge myself, if elected, to make a good, clean, conservative officer; to see that the duties of the office are promptly and properly executed; to be courteous to the people and faithful to my trust. I feel that those who know me well know that I will carry out every pledge.

The office will be kept open night and day and ready to respond to every call at all hours.

With my acquaintance in the county, my record as an officer, the race that I made four years ago, and the fact that my opponent has already served two terms, all in mind, I feel that I have a just right to ask the people to vote for me for sheriff for this year, and I earnestly solicit their votes.

Very respectfully,
BOB BUCHANNON.

¶ PERSONAL MENTION ¶

Henry Alberts of Houston was in Waco yesterday.

O. S. Telle of Dallas was here on business yesterday.

E. Kavanaugh of Hillsboro was here yesterday on business.

Hon. John D. Robinson of Bell county was in the city yesterday.

James Burck and wife of Dallas were here yesterday for awhile.

Dr. J. A. Craven goes to Lubbock next week and will be absent ten days.

Richard Zander of Philadelphia was in the city yesterday for awhile on business.

M. J. Montgomery, a prominent citizen of McGregor, spent yesterday in the city.

Dr. M. D. Baker, who has been ill for some little time, is still confined to his room.

Ben Hartley of Weatherford spent a part of yesterday in the city on business.

F. L. Jones, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island railroad, spent yesterday in the city.

Miss D'Alva Hale, formerly of Waco, stopped off between trains in the Y. W. C. A. rooms on her way to Belton yesterday.

N. S. Davis, traveling freight and passenger agent of the Worth & Denver City railroad, was here yesterday from Fort Worth.

¶ CITY NEWS BRIEFS ¶

There was no business in the courts here yesterday, but a jury in the Nineteenth district court will report for duty this morning.

The following marriage licenses were issued yesterday: D. T. Wilson and Miss Treasure Connolly, W. L. Johnson and Miss Lorela Foster.

The Philathea class of the Morrow Street Methodist church will give an ice cream social at 8 o'clock this evening on the lawn of Mrs. J. F. Hopkins, 928 North Twelfth street. Everybody is invited and a pleasant time is assured for all.

Miss Kate Friend has been appointed by the Welfare league and the City Federation of Women's clubs as representative of Waco for the meeting of the Texas Town and City Planning association which meets in Dallas June 26th and 27th.

There is more interest in the farm deals in this section than for some time past, it is stated, and probably the high prices of cotton and cotton seed have had something to do with this condition. Some nice farm deals are being made, and others are on tapis.

Practically all the old cotton in this section has been shipped out, it is stated by railroad men, except the cotton around compresses and a very little held in yards. The railroads are handling very little of the fleecy staple out now, and in fact are watching developments of the new crop.

Perhaps the most beautiful crepe myrtle trees in Waco are on the lawns of the James B. Baker and W. L. Geer homes on Columbus street at and near Ninth street. These trees are not only gorgeous bloomers and of a beautiful tint, but are so disposed as to give a most pleasing effect.

"It is remarkable how people call the wrong numbers of city departments and thus stop busy officials from work," said one of the officials yesterday. He stated that many people fail to make investigations of the department they want to get in touch with, and call the first department that even suggests itself as being the right one, thus causing much delay and confusion often.

Waco people read with interest and satisfaction that rain has at last fallen in the region around Corpus Christi, after a drouth of ten months. This is an unusual condition for the Corpus Christi country, as they ordinarily get rains from the big waters lying alongside, but for some meterological or other reason this failed to bring results in the present case.

Four of the Sisters of St. Mary will leave today, two of them going to Washington to attend the summer school conducted by the Catholic University of America, the other going to the mother house of the United States order, St. Joseph's academy, at Lockport, N. Y. One of the very handsome buildings of the Catholic university was the gift of a Waco woman to the Sisters of St. Mary, known as St. Mary's house of studies.

A pleasant time was had Tuesday evening in the hospitable home of Presiding Elder J. A. Whitehurst of the Waco district, M. E. church south, at which time the Methodist pastors and lay leaders of the city were invited to be present at Mr. Whitehurst's residence and meet Rev. J. A. G. Shipley, missionary to China, who is here on furlough. The time was enjoyed by all who were present, and Presiding Elder Whitehurst and family made it agreeable for all.

Directors of Cotton Palace Meet Monday

W. J. Neale will be asked to report on his visits to eastern booking agencies relative to a band for the 1916 Texas Cotton Palace at a meeting of the exposition directors scheduled for next Monday night. The meeting was called for last Monday night, but postponed because of the absence from the city of Secretary S. N. Mayfield. Routine matters are slated for the meeting.

DAZZLING RECORD OF WACO INSTITUTION

Business College Graduates Testify to Excellence of Courses of Instruction.

Prof. R. H. Hill's magnificent record as a business instructor is something of which the whole state of Texas may be proud. Genius and talent are irresistible, and shine out of the dim mist like the sublime peaks of the eternal mountains as they catch the golden gleams of the coming dawn. That Professor Hill has done a work of magnificent sweep and undoubted possibilities, goes without saying. The thousands of young men who are rapidly rising to eminence and distinction in the business world as a result of the training received from Professor Hill speak in a language it is impossible to misunderstand of the unsurpassed excellence of this institution. "Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Here is what some of our graduates say:

New York City, Feb. 7, 1907.
To Whom This May Interest:

This is to certify that during 1901 I attended Hill's Business college, Waco, Texas, and studied bookkeeping and penmanship. This course prepared me to keep books in a bank, as was demonstrated by actual experience, and to teach penmanship. I have done penmanship work in connection with public schools in 180 cities, in twenty-three states, having taught in twenty-three towns and cities in Texas. I earn annually from $3500 to $4000. I do this by applying the knowledge gained at Hill's Business college. If Texas people want the very best in commercial lines they should not look to the east, but patronize Hill's Business college in their own state. There is but little here that is as good and none that is better. I look back upon that course as of the most practical value of any I ever received. For a pupil to attend Hill's Business college is to make an investment that will pay 100 per cent dividends many times through life. Yours sincerely,
R. N. MARRS.

Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—I take this opportunity of expressing to you my hearty endorsement of your school and the Success system of shorthand taught by you. The system and your methods of instruction are, in my opinion, unsurpassed. The foundation of what success I have achieved in the shorthand profession was laid in your school.
Yours very truly,
HALL ETTER,
Official Stenographer, Fifty-fourth District Court.

Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—It affords me pleasure to say that I was once a pupil of Hill's Business college, Waco, Texas. Having looked up the matter of commercial schools, I decided that this was the most thorough, practical and up-to-date, and I have ever since been proud of the distinction of having been a pupil of this institution. Any one who anticipates taking a commercial course can not make a mistake by entering this good institution.
Very truly yours,
W. H. FUQUA,
President First National Bank,
Amarillo, Texas.

Hill's Business College, Waco, Texas.

Gentlemen—Having attended your institution, I know exactly what it is. I have carefully noticed that all students that graduate from that school come out prepared to take hold of any kind of a set of books and hold their positions. Your friend,
I. C. THURMOND,
Cashier First National Bank,
Elk City, Okla.

Kind Friends—I write this to let you know what a high regard I have for Hill's Business college (Little Rock, Ark.). I entered your college to take a course in shorthand and typewriting, and within eight weeks was prepared to hold a good position, and within nine weeks was placed in a first-class position, where I am still employed.
(MISS) BUFORD MITCHELL.
Temple, Texas, Fem. 24, 1914.

Prof. R. H. Hill, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir—I am glad of the opportunity to say a good word for Hill's Business college. If I can at any time call on some prospective student here, kindly advise me. I am still with the First National bank, and have been ever since leaving your school, with the exception of one year.

With all kinds of good wishes, I am,
Yours sincerely,
(MISS) IDA WOOD.

Annual Retreat of Sisters of St. Mary Begins July 2

The annual retreat of the Sisters of St. Mary will begin at Fort Worth July 2 and continue for eight weeks. Sisters of St. Mary from all the houses of Texas will be present. The towns represented will be Waco, Dallas, Fort Worth, Denison, Sherman and Wichita Falls. This annual retreat is a custom of the Catholic church and is a period of retirement and meditation. A priest of the Vincentian order, sent from St. Louis to Texas, will be in charge.

Provident Heights Baptist S. S. Has Picnic Today

Provident Heights Baptist church Sunday school classes will go on a picnic today to Walkers Crossing. The time for assembling is set for 8:30 this morning, and adequate conveyance will be provided for all. A large crowd, a good time and plenty of eats are expected.

Primary Case Submitted.

Austin, June 14.—In the supreme court today was submitted on brief the case from Tarrant county involving the constitutionality of the action of the state democratic executive committee in levying an assessment on county candidates to meet the expense of a second senatorial primary. The case is known as the Beene case and coming through the lower courts of Tarrant county the action of the committee was upheld. It is believed that it will be decided during the term of court to close June 24.

Clothes Made Here? Sure, Just Try Out Hammond-Vawter

The many customers of the Hammond-Vawter Tailoring company would feel the loss in more than one way if this establishment was not in existence. That you "don't miss water until the well is dry" is certainly true and can be applied in this case. This company maintains a service not equaled by another concern of its kind in the state. Suits are made on short notice and pants are made right here in Waco in six hours' time.

Fifteen workmen, all who spend their money in this city, are maintained by the Hammond-Vawter company and every dollar that goes into this company is a Waco dollar and remains so. Without the pressure of low prices, the lead being set by this firm, prices on men's suits would advance at least five dollars, it has been stated. The benefit from such progressive tailors can readily be seen.

Because of the concern being a Waco concern, it deserves the support of every loyal Wacoan. The more business they handle, the better their opportunity is for extending low prices to the public and thus helping solve the high cost of living problem. Even though the products have recently experienced from 100 per cent to 300 per cent advance in prices brought on by the European conflict, it is understood that the Hammond-Vawter company will not advance their prices, as will practically all other business houses be forced to do this summer or fall.

A concern such as the Hammond-Vawter company that helps keep Waco dollars at home is a big asset to a city. The company is interested in Waco's welfare and have demonstrated their loyal support in making Waco one of the south's leading metropolis of the south, in many different ways. Practically all movements that have been launched to make a bigger and better Waco, have received the endorsement and co-operation of the Hammond-Vawter company.

Few are the reliable shops in existence anywhere that will press a suit for twenty-five cents. This is fifty per cent under the nearest opponent and the company is to be congratulated upon giving Waco an establishment that will accurately and properly press a suit for twenty-five cents. Telephone calls are given prompt attention and the work that is turned out is an equal to the work of fancy-priced tailors and is superior to many of them.

Six years of experience has taught the company the way to handle the public and that is by turning out A-1 work and work that they are proud of and are ever willing to claim. The increasing business has been responsible for the cut prices and the customers of Waco are the ones that have reaped the results and benefited.

J. M. Penland

J. M. Penland, president of the Waco Chamber of Commerce and also a director of that organization, is one of the foremost men in all activities looking to the upbuilding of this city and section, albeit he is modest in demeanor almost to a fault. The Rotarians of the Twelfth district of Texas are presenting his name for governor of this district at the international meeting of Rotarians in Cincinnati this summer. He is president of the Waco Drug company and is also a past president of the Waco Rotary club, being a charter member of the Waco organization. He was one of the delegates from the Waco Rotary club to the international Rotary convention in Houston in 1914. He has done excellent service in the Y. M. B. L., and is, in fact, at home in any position, official or in the ranks, when it comes to working for Waco. Mr. Penland is chairman of out-of-town eats on the trade trip.

Recital Tonight.

F. Arthur Johnson wishes to remind all interested in music of the recital to be given tonight in the auditorium of Goggan's piano store. A large number of seats have been provided and an effort will be made to give all a comfortable seat.

A special feature of the recital is the fifty-hand piece, a waltz, played on thirteen pianos at the same time. Thirty-eight hands and nine pianos all playing at the same time on the same piece will be another feature of the program. This is a unique undertaking, and staged for the first time in Waco. The program was published in Sunday's News.

Sam Fleming Is Running On Record for Re-Election

S. S. FLEMING

When the subject of this article announced for the office of sheriff of McLennan county four years ago, he made a compact with himself and religiously adhered to the terms of the compact all during the campaign; that his part thereof would be to run on his own merit, and if his competitors had demerits, the public would learn of them from other sources than from the lips of Sam Fleming.

The wisdom of this course of conduct was demonstrated by his election. During the present canvass Fleming is again running on his own merit, supplemented by the record made by him and his deputies during his occupancy of the office.

No man can hold an office, especially an office of the character and responsibility of such a one as sheriff of McLennan county, and please everybody. Necessarily some people disagree with him, and there are some who totally disregard the truth of their statements and pervert the facts, who take a trivial personal circumstance, distort and magnify it, make a mountain out of a mole hill and by endless repetition and skillful insinuation finally succeed in generating some hostile sentiment against the candidate. To this character of detraction and campaigning Fleming is giving little heed, but with a consciousness of duty well performed and a stewardship faithful and honorable, is persuing the even tenor of his way, challenging the most searching investigation into his official and personal conduct.

In the conduct of the peoples' affairs a deep-seated sense of duty is ever present as the impelling force of every act and all the conduct of Sam Fleming. In his administration of the sheriff's office he has elevated the standard of accountability to the public, and with a regime of rare virility, efficiency, activity and humanity, he has coupled and embraced the idea of democratic simplicity, as contemplated by the democratic fathers in the rules laid down for the guidance of public servants.

Sam Fleming has always done the work in hand carefully, earnestly, and with all his ability, firmly, courteously, realizing that this is the way to a successful administration, rather than trust to some chance circumstance or lucky strike to insure for himself popularity and prestige. While his administration has ever been noted for firmness, when demanded by the call of duty, he has at all times maintained the ability to throw off the burdens and cares that afflict others, by helping them to do likewise. Another thing about Sam Fleming, he is never self-centered except in the larger and broader sense of being of assistance to his fellow man.

Mr. Fleming is diseased with a broad philanthropy. He believes in the equality of man. He carries with him in the daily walk of his officialdom none of the "boast of heraldry or the pomp of power." He is just as courteous, just as obliging, just as accommodating as sheriff as he was when selling buggies and cultivators for the hardware company. He presents to the voters for their endorsement the record made by him and his corps of splendid deputies. He has not "bended the pregnant hinges of the knee, that thrift might follow fawning," but has done his duty, as it has pleased God to give him reason to understand it, without fear or favor, and if the voters exercise as much judgment in selecting a man to attend to their public affairs as they exercise with respect to the management and conduct of their personal and private business, confidently and gratefully he awaits the result of the July primaries.

Growing Business Compels Home Bakery to Secure New and Larger Quarters

For the last four years the Home Bakery has been located at 610 Washington street and like Waco it has enjoyed prosperity and progress, which has necessitated the management to arrange for more adequate and larger quarters. As a result announcement has been made by S. Bahme, the manager, that the concern would move to 115 Elm street about the first of June.

During the four years' time that the bakery has been located at 610 Washington street there has been a steady business built up. When the Home Bakery first opened at this location the building and equipment were sufficient to meet with their orders. But the business has increased and, determined to give the best service possible, the new headquarters have been selected.

The equipment of a bakery often amounts to a great deal and the best products are obtained when the best equipment is used. The new location of the Home Bakery will be equipped with everything that goes to make up a first-class and model establishment. The building will be modern and up-to-date throughout and will be one which any establishment of this kind should feel proud.

Few bakeries are managed as ably as is the Home Bakery. S. Bahme, who is at the head of the concern, is one of the best known bakers in this section of the country and has built up a reputation of being a real master baker. He has been located in Waco for eight years, during which time he has devoted his entire time toward building up the bakery business and his efforts have certainly borne rich fruit. His experience in this line of business is unlimited and his able management has been one of the principal factors in the progress and advancement of the Home Bakery.

Quality first and service next has been one of the mottoes of the firm and its employes. All products of the Home Bakery are turned out by experienced employes who take an interest in the establishment which they are working for and the result has been quite noticeable. Mr. Bahme attributes the success of his company to the co-operation of his employes in making the bakery one of the leading ones both in quality and in service.

Housewives are realizing more than ever that baker's bread is more economical and can be obtained every day fresh where it is of great trouble to the housewife to have fresh home-made bread every day, Mr. Bahme said. He stated that there was once a time when many housewives relied mostly upon home-made bread but that the improved baker establishments and able and experienced men in charge has reduced this number.

Mr. Bahme is satisfied that the new location of the concern will prove of advantage and is confident that his establishment will continue to enjoy increasing sales.

PASSENGER STEAMER RUNS ASHORE IN FOG ON THE PACIFIC COAST

San Francisco, June 14.—The passenger steamer Bear of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship company went ashore in a fog at Sugar Loaf, a promontory seventy miles south of Eureka, according to advices received here. The battleship Oregon is reported standing by. A lifesaving crew from Eureka has gone to the vessel's aid.

News of the disaster was received by the radio oeprator at the United States naval training station here. The lifesavers left Eureka at 11:15 p. m. The sea was reported calm, but there was a heavy fog. A number of small boats were reported leaving for the Bear and it was believed the passengers were being transferred to the Oregon.

Form of Poison Used Enters Into Trial of William Orpet

Waukegan, Ill., June 14.—William Marshall, a golf professional employed at the Onwentsia Country club at Lake Forest, was the principal witness today at the trial of William H. Orpet on a charge of murdering Marion Lambert, February 9, last.

Other witnesses were Dr. John L. Taylor, coroner, and Dr. D. M. Parmenter, who expressed the opinion that the cyanide of potassium which caused Marion's death was taken in liquid form and therefore must have been contained in a bottle. Marshall said picnic parties frequented the woods and there were many bottles of every description scattered about. He was on the stand all afternoon undergoing cross-examination as to the footprints in Helms Woods, where the body was found.

Funston Moving Twentieth Infantry

Columbus, N. M., June 14.—General Funston has ordered officers and men of the First battalion of the Twentieth infantry, stationed here, to assemble preparatory to being moved to Fort Bliss. The battalion will be succeeded by three companies of coast artillery now en route from the east.

Four companies of the New Mexican National guard have been mustered into the federal service to date and six others will be enrolled shortly.

German Merchantmen Sunk.

Nykoping, Sweden, via London, June 14.—Thirteen German merchantmen, which were coming from the north, convoyed by an auxiliary cruiser and some torpedo boats and armed trawlers, were attacked early this morning by a squadron of Russian destroyers, torpedo boats and submarines near the Swedish coast. The German convoy was dispersed and the merchantmen fled toward the coast.

It is reported that some of the vessels were sunk.

BIG RAILROAD STRIKE SEEMS INEVITABLE

EMPLOYES REJECT COMPROMISE PROPOSAL, BUT GIVE MANAGERS MORE TIME.

Both Sides Agree That Chances Are Slim of Agreement Being Reached.

New York, June 14.—A continuance of the conference between representatives of 350,000 railroad workers and their employers called to avert a possible general strike involving the roads in the United States, hinged tonight upon the decision of the railroad managers as to whether they would offer a specific compromise to the demands of their employes. The men flatly rejected today the railroads' tentative compromise proposal and adjournment was taken until tomorrow, when the managers will report whether they are prepared to present a definite proposition.

The railroad management, immediately following the adjournment, went into an executive session that continued until late tonight. Leaders of the men announced that no matter what the offer of the railroads it will be rejected unless all existing double-compensation rules are retained. They are willing to compromise on the other issues involved—the eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime.

In their tentative compromise the railroads have indicated their willingness to grant the demands of the men on condition that the double compensation rules be abolished.

Late tonight the railroad managers authorized the statement that it was highly probable that no counter proposition would be made to the workers. Leaders of the railroad brotherhoods also announced that they expected the railroads would fail to meet their demands and are ready to leave for their homes and send out a call to vote on a general strike.

Dallas Embezzler Sentenced.

Dallas, June 14.—The closing chapter in the embezzlement of about $15,000 from the tax funds of the city of Dallas was writeen today in Judge R. B. Seay's court when H. F. Roberts was given a five-year sentence in the state penitentiary. The sentence came following a plea of guilty.

H. F. McGoun was given ten years in the penitentiary Tuesday for his part in the affair.

DAY IN CONGRESS.

Senate.

No session; meets at noon Friday.

House.

Met at 11 a. m. Military committee ordered favorable report on army appropriation bill.

Republican Leader Mann proposed adjournment on account of the many bills pending, but it was voted down, 92 to 62.

Adjourned at 12:35 p. m. until noon Thursday.

Wagoner Teacher Takes Stand in Own Behalf

Muskogee, Okla., June 14.—Corley P. McDarment, Wagoner high school teacher, took the witness stand in the district court here today and told his story of the affray in the laboratory of the school at noon on February 10 in which Edgar Watts, a pupil, lost his life.

Rising from the witness stand, McDarment enacted the death struggle. He had gone into the laboratory first, he said, Edgar Watts had followed and Clark Moss had entered behind Watts, locking the door. At an exclamation from Watts, McDarment turned and found Moss holding a revolver in his face. He struck it and it was discharged. Edgar Watts fell dying. In the struggle with Moss, the revolver was fired several times more, McDarment did not know how many times, he said. He was horrified to see Moss fall to the floor, his face covered with blood, he continued.

Moss, as the state's star witness, had testified that McDarment had first shot him in the back and then standing above him had shot him three times more as he begged for his life.

Fort Smith Bank Officials Indicted

Fort Smith, Ark., June 14.—Six indictments were returned tonight by the federal grand jury against T. W. M. Boone, president; H. A. Ball, cashier; Andrew H. Dowd and E. M. Dickenson, assistant cashiers of the American National bank, which closed its doors on March 24. All four are named in one of the indictments containing sixty counts, charging conspiracy to defraud the institution of $115,000.

Boone was arrested tonight and released on $10,000 bond. The other three defendants were arrested shortly after the bank closed its doors. Dickensen is said to have made a confession to federal officers.

Canadians Hold Captured Trench

London, June 15, 12:15 a. m.—The Canadians are still holding to the positions they recaptured from the Germans Tuesday near Zillibeke, east of Ypres, although they have been heavily shelled by the Germans, according to an official announcement tonight. Since the Canadians won back their lost ground there have been no further infantry engagements in this vciinity.

During the day more prisoners were taken, chiefly wounded men who were found during the clearing of the ground. The total taken is three officers and 158 of other ranks, adds the statement.

Italian Cabinet Virtually Formed

Rome, June 14.—The new cabinet, which is to replace that of Antonio Salandra which resigned last Sunday, has been virtually formed. Paolo Boselli, who will be the new premier but will have no other fortfolio, is 79 years old. He is the dean of parliament, having been a deputy since 1870. He held his first ministerial portfolio forty years ago.

It is asserted that Baron Sonnino has definitely refused to remain the head of the foreign ministry and he probably will be substituted by Vittorio E. Orlando, who was minister of justice in the Salandra cabinet. The other ministers probably will include William Marconi. The ministers of war and marine in the Salandra cabinet probably will retain these posts.

To Transfer Gavira.

El Paso, June 14.—Gen. Gabriel Gavira, commander of the zone of northern Chihuahua, is to be transferred to San Luis Potosi, according to statements today by officers of the Carranza garrison in Juarez. Merchants of Juarez held a meeting there tonight, but it was asserted the discussion was confined to the currency problem. This problem is further complicated in Juarez by the use of American coin in competition with Carranza paper.

NEW RULER OF CHINA IS FOR OPEN DOOR; IS PROGRESSIVE AND LIKED BY PEOPLE

Li Yuan Hung.

Yi Yuan Hung, the new president of China, although a military man, desires peace at almost any price. He is in favor of the open door policy; wants better schools; is progressive and well liked by the people.

ROOSEVELT IN PAIN AND STILL ON FENCE

FEARS THAT FORMER PRESIDENT HAD HEART ATTACK PROVE GROUNDLESS.

Colonel Refuses to Discuss Politics. Bull Moose Not Sure of Course.

New York, June 14.—Theodore Roosevelt underwent an X-ray examination here today for what he characterized as "possibly a slight breaking of the muscles" around the rib which was broken when he was thrown from a horse, May 24, 1915. Fears that the former president had suffered a heart attack were allayed tonight when he received several newspaper correspondents.

Colonel Roosevelt explained that he contracted a severe cold while returning several months ago from the West Indies and that at intervals since then he had been subjected to coughing spells. One of these occurred this morning and the former president sought a throat specialist, who said tonight:

"There does not seem any possible chance of serious discomfort to the patient."

Colonel Roosevelt was in excellent humor, but his face appeared worn and haggard. Asked if he were in pain, he replied that the question reminded him of a picture he once had seen wherein a timid rider was depicted as about to mount a shying horse. The rider, the colonel said, turned to the groom and inquired whether the horse was "quiet."

"Perfectly quiet," the groom answered, "if you don't cough or sneeze or touch your hat."

Colonel Roosevelt again refused to discuss politics. He said, however, that after lunching with Raymond Robins, who was chairman of the progressive national convention, he had received Gov. Hiram Johnson of California in his rooms and that they had talked for an hour.

Colonel Roosevelt also saw Lucien Bonheur, a prominent local progressive who later gave out a statement in which he said "that friends of Colonel Roosevelt are incensed because certain members of the progressive party have been saying Colonel Roosevelt betrayed the party."

Mr. Robins when seen after his conference with Colonel Roosevelt declared the former president was "in fighting trim, ready to go ahead with any plan decided upon by the progressives."

Asked if the progressives would support Mr. Hughes for president, he said:

"That is up to the colonel. So far as I am concerned the situation has not changed. I can't say now what Colonel Roosevelt will do. Things may not shape up definitely until after the meeting of the executive committee on June 26."

Louisiana Senator Charged With Using Knife on Reporter

Baton Rouge, La., June 14.—State Senator H. G. Fields of Union was arrested here today charged with "stabbing and wounding with intent to kill" David Ewing, local correspondent for a New Orleans newspaper.

The arrest followed an altercation during the noon recess of the legislature between Senator Fields and Ewing, during which the senator was alleged to have cut Ewing several times with a knife. Ewing, it was stated, severely beat the legislator with his fists. Neither was seriously injured.

Senator Fields, on the floor of the senate this morning denounced as incorrect a published report of a meeting of a committee of which he is a member.

Senator Fields furnished bond and was released a few minutes after his arrest.

Sonora Women Ready to Fight in Case America Intervenes

Douglas, Ariz., June 14.—Mrs. Rosaura V. Detevar of Agua Prieta, president of the Sonora Women's Rifle association, received a letter from Governor Adolfo de la Huerta of Sonora today, accepting her proffer of the services of the 2000 members of the association as soldiers in case of American intervention. The governor thanked her for the spirit of patriotism exhibited by the offer which had been submitted with a list of names of members of the association. Instructors have been appointed to drill both women and men who are organizing rifle clubs.

Mexicans Report Capture of Bandits

Chihuahua, Mex., June 14.—Gen. Ignacio Ramos reported today to General Jacinto Trevino, Carranza commander of the north, that he had captured and executed five memebrs of the bandit band under Nicholas Hernandez. General Ramos recently has been pursuing a band of 600 outlawse concentrated in the Rio Florida district.

Reports also were received that a former Villista general, Jose Maria Rios, who has been operating in Southern Chihuahua, asking amnesty for himself and a small command. Colonel Carranza also reported the appeal of Candido Chacon, a brother of the notorious bandit, J. Chacon, killed recently near Parral, and his band, asking amnesty. An entire band of would-be raiders numbering forty-six men has been captured at Lampozos by General Carlos.

General Trevino stated today that he regards it of utmost importance to his country that further border complications through raids be prevented.

Germans Say Crew Blew Up Herzmann

Amsterdam, Via London, June 15.—1:15 a. m.—The following statement has been given out in Berlin in connection with the attack by Russian warships in the Baltic:

"During the night of June 13, the German auxiliary cruiser Herzmann was attacked by four Russian destroyers southwest of Stockholm. After a courageous resistance the vessel was set afire by shells and was blown up by her crew. The commander and most of the crew were saved."

Negro Baptists Meet.

Memphis, Tenn., June 14.—Several hundred delegates from a majority of the states were present here today for the annual convention of the Negro National Baptist Sunday school congress and the National Baptist Young Peoples' union. The introductory sermon was preached tonight by the Rev. S. E. J. Watson of Texas.

Engineers Off to Front.

Chattanooga, June 14.—Company F, Fourth battalion, United States engineers, left here today aboard a special train for Fort Sam Houston. Capt. P. H. Emerson was in command of the company of 116 men, which had been detailed temporarily to the southern military training camp at Fort Oglethorpe.

10,000 Horsepower Additional

Additional boilers are being installed in our East Waco power plant. These boilers will increase the generating capacity 10,000 horsepower, making a total available capacity of 20,000 electric horsepower.

Electricity is fast supplanting all other kinds of power north and south of Waco, the electricity being supplied from this big Waco plant.

We will be pleased to arrange a personally conducted trip through this most modern power plant in the country for any business man who has power problems on his hands.

PRESIDENT WOULD MAKE AMERICANISM CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Washington, June 14.—President Wilson today approved a plank on Americanism for the democratic national platform which arraigns individuals or associations seeking to embarrass the government in negotiations with foreign nations and condemns any political party which modifies its policy for fear of political consequences.

The president decided to challenge openly Americans of alien birth opposing his foreign policies. Learning from editorials in some foreign language papers that they were supporting the republican nominee, Mr. Wilson sent word to his personal representative in St. Louis to make the plank on Americanism direct and unequivocal.

The plank on Americanism, drawn partly here and partly in St. Louis, tonight was ready for submission to the resolutions committee of the convention. It carries out some of the ideas expressed by the president in a flag day address here today accusing a small group of Americans of foreign extraction of "levying political blackmail" to gain their ends. It further states that the democratic party will not be influenced by such "blackmail" and, in effect, challenges the republican nominee to take a similar stand.

The foreign-born Americans are severely criticised for interfering in behalf of foreign nations in the relations between the United States and other countries.

Mr. Wilson considers the campaign for the presidency on in earnest and his spokesmen say he will keep constantly on the aggressive.

Austrians on Retreat.

Geneva, via Paris, June 14.—It is reported that from Innsbruck since June 7 the Austrians have been compelled to abandon between thirty-five and forty-five square miles of Italian territory which they gained during the first rush of their offensive. The Austrians have evacuated Chiese in the fear that their retreat would be cut off.

The Austrian general who was appointed governor of the Italian province of Verona is said to have been captured with his troops at Dubno by the Russians.

More Gold From Canada.

New York, June 14.—The receipt today of an additional $3,200,000 gold from Canada by J. P. Morgan & Co., brings the total imports from across the border in the last five weeks to well above the $50,000,000 mark, with no signs of abatement.

Fast Called in Russia.

London, June 14, 7:16 p. m.—The Russian duma has adopted a bill calling for the abstention from eating meat four days in each week, according to a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd.

Wind Destroys Zeppelin.

Amsterdam, June 14, via London, June 15, 12:08 a. m.—A Zeppelin was destroyed Monday in a windstorm near Chattelineu, South Belgium, according to frontier correspondents.

Danish Paper Tells of Russian Naval Victory in Baltic

Copenhagen, via London, June 14, 9:20 p. m.—Describing the Baltic fight, the Dagens Nyheder says that the Russian squadron won an important victory. The Russians had six destroyers and several submarines and were going at such speed that the Germans were taken completely by surprise, only fired one shot and then made for port in the utmost haste.

"It is believed," says the paper, "that twelve merchantment were sunk, while a German armed trawler which arrived at Nykoping had 150 men aboard from a German destroyer that had been sent to the bottom. The German auxiliary cruiser was the Konig von Sachzn, which was also seen to sink and it is supposed that all of her crew were drowned."

El Paso Flag Day Parade Causes Alarm in Juarez

El Paso, June 14.—A Flag day parade here caused alarm in Juarez, across the Rio Grande, where it was considered an anti-Mexican demonstration, and reports that fires had been started in the Mexican quarter and the Mexican consulate attacked were circulated.

Andres Garcia, Mexican consul here, quieted the anxious telephone inquiries of General Gonzales, commandant at Juarez and the excitement in the Mexican town then subsided.

Delegations of naturalized Mexicans, Chinese and many American refugees from Mexico marched in the parade with commercial and professional representatives.

Contested Seats Are Disposed Of

St. Louis, June 14.—The credentials committee tonight disposed of all the delegate contests by ratifying the action of the national committee in overruling the contestsants from the District of Columbia and from Hawaii and by dividing equally the six seats to which Porto Rico is entitled between the delegation seated by the national committee and the contestants.

Georgia Prohibition Law Upheld

Macon, Ga., June 14.—Three federal judges upheld Georgia's new prohibition law today in a decision declaring confiscated two carloads of whisky, seized by a Georgia sheriff. The judges—Pardee, Newman and Speer—overruled the contention of the Ocilla, Pine Bloom and Valdosta railroad that the law is unconstitutional.

Cleveland's Widow Operated On.

New York, June 14.—Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., wife of Professor Preston of Princeton, and widow of Grover Cleveland, was operated on here today at a hospital. It was said at the hospital that the operation was a success and Mrs. Preston was doing nicely.

NOMINATIONS NOT EXPECTED TO COME BEFORE FRIDAY NIGHT

St. Louis, June 14.—If more than one speech seconding each nomination for vice president is made in the democratic convention, all except the first will be limited to five minutes, according to a rule adopted tonight by a subcommittee on rules.

The question of changing the rule requiring the votes of two-thirds of the delegates to make a nomination was not raised at any meeting today. In previous conventions a minority has demanded a change so that a majority would nominate.

The permanent organization committee failed to establish a quorum tonight and will meet tomorrow to organize.

Senator James of Kentucky was made permanent chairman.

When the full committee on rules meets tomorrow, Chairman Glasgow of Pennsylvania will endeavor to have adopted a hurry-up program for the convention. He wants nominations to be made Thursday night or not later than Friday morning, with adjournment of the convention by noon Friday.

Convention managers did not think the program to make nominations Friday night would be changed.

A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania started the report that a sub-committee of the rules committee would submit a report to the convention directing that the nominations be held Thursday night.

When Senator Stone, chairman of the resolutions committee heard that a move was on foot to close proceedings quickly he remarked that the resolutions sub-committee which is drafting the platform would be busy all Thursday. National Chairman McCombs said that the convention was under moral obligation to continue until Friday night.

Senator Hollis of the resolutions committee said it would be impossible to conclude the convention tomorrow night, and Senator Reed of Missouri expressed the same view.

PASSENGER STEAMER RUNS ASHORE IN FOG ON THE PACIFIC COAST

San Francisco, June 14.—The passenger steamer Bear of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship company went ashore in a fog at Sugar Loaf, a promontory seventy miles south of Eureka, according to advices received here. The battleship Oregon is reported standing by. A lifesaving crew from Eureka has gone to the vessel's aid.

News of the disaster was received by the radio oeprator at the United States naval training station here. The lifesavers left Eureka at 11:15 p. m. The sea was reported calm, but there was a heavy fog. A number of small boats were reported leaving for the Bear and it was believed the passengers were being transferred to the Oregon.

Form of Poison Used Enters Into Trial of William Orpet

Waukegan, Ill., June 14.—William Marshall, a golf professional employed at the Onwentsia Country club at Lake Forest, was the principal witness today at the trial of William H. Orpet on a charge of murdering Marion Lambert, February 9, last.

Other witnesses were Dr. John L. Taylor, coroner, and Dr. D. M. Parmenter, who expressed the opinion that the cyanide of potassium which caused Marion's death was taken in liquid form and therefore must have been contained in a bottle. Marshall said picnic parties frequented the woods and there were many bottles of every description scattered about. He was on the stand all afternoon undergoing cross-examination as to the footprints in Helms Woods, where the body was found.

Funston Moving Twentieth Infantry

Columbus, N. M., June 14.—General Funston has ordered officers and men of the First battalion of the Twentieth infantry, stationed here, to assemble preparatory to being moved to Fort Bliss. The battalion will be succeeded by three companies of coast artillery now en route from the east.

Four companies of the New Mexican National guard have been mustered into the federal service to date and six others will be enrolled shortly.

German Merchantmen Sunk.

Nykoping, Sweden, via London, June 14.—Thirteen German merchantmen, which were coming from the north, convoyed by an auxiliary cruiser and some torpedo boats and armed trawlers, were attacked early this morning by a squadron of Russian destroyers, torpedo boats and submarines near the Swedish coast. The German convoy was dispersed and the merchantmen fled toward the coast.

It is reported that some of the vessels were sunk.

BIG RAILROAD STRIKE SEEMS INEVITABLE

EMPLOYES REJECT COMPROMISE PROPOSAL, BUT GIVE MANAGERS MORE TIME.

Both Sides Agree That Chances Are Slim of Agreement Being Reached.

New York, June 14.—A continuance of the conference between representatives of 350,000 railroad workers and their employers called to avert a possible general strike involving the roads in the United States, hinged tonight upon the decision of thereilroad managers as to wnether they would offer a specific compromise to the demands of their employes. The men flatly rejected today the railroads' tentative compromise proposal and adjournment was taken until tomorrow, when the managers will report whether they are prepared to present a definite proposition.

The railroad management, immediately following the adjournment, went into an executive session that continued until late tonight. Leaders of the men announced that no matter what the offer of the railroads it will be rejected unless all existing double-compensation rules are retained. They are willing to compromise on the other issues involved—the eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime.

In their tentative compromise the railroads have indicated their willingness to grant the demands of the men on condition that the double compensation rules be abolished.

Late tonight the railroad managers authorized the statement that it was highly probable that no counter proposition would be made to the workers. Leaders of the railroad brotherhoods also announced that they expected the railroads would fail to meet their demands and are ready to leave for their homes and send out a call to vote on a general strike.

Dallas Embezzler Sentenced.

Dallas, June 14.—The closing chapter in the embezzlement of about $15,000 from the tax funds of the city of Dallas was writeen today in Judge R. B. Seay's court when H. F. Roberts was given a five-year sentence in the state penitentiary. The sentence came following a plea of guilty.

H. F. McGoun was given ten years in the penitentiary Tuesday for his part in the affair.

DAY IN CONGRESS.

Wagoner Teacher Takes Stand in Own Behalf

Muskogee, Okla., June 14.—Corley P. McDarment, Wagoner high school teacher, took the witness stand in the district court here today and told his story of the affray in the laboratory of the school at noon on February 10 in which Edgar Watts, a pupil, lost his life.

Rising from the witness stand, McDarment enacted the death struggle. He had gone into the laboratory first, he said, Edgar Watts had followed and Clark Moss had entered behind Watts, locking the door. At an exclamation from Watts, McDarment turned and found Moss holding a revolver in his face. He struck it and it was discharged. Edgar Watts fell dying. In the struggle with Moss, the revolver was fired several times more, McDarment did not know how many times, he said. He was horrified to see Moss fall to the floor, his face covered with blood, he continued.

Moss, as the state's star witness, had testified that McDarment had first shot him in the back and then standing above him had shot him three times more as he begged for his life.

Fort Smith Bank Officials Indicted

Fort Smith, Ark., June 14.—Six indictments were returned tonight by the federal grand jury against T. W. M. Boone, president; H. A. Ball, cashier; Andrew H. Dowd and E. M. Dickenson, assistant cashiers of the American National bank, which closed its doors on March 24. All four are named in one of the indictments containing sixty counts, charging conspiracy to defraud the institution of $115,000.

Boone was arrested tonight and released on $10,000 bond. The other three defendants were arrested shortly after the bank closed its doors. Dickensen is said to have made a confession to federal officers.

Canadians Hold Captured Trench

London, June 15, 12:15 a. m.—The Canadians are still holding to the positions they recaptured from the Germans Tuesday near Zillibeke, east of Ypres, although they have been heavily shelled by the Germans, according to an official announcement tonight. Since the Canadians won back their lost ground there have been no further infantry engagements in this vcilnity.

During the day more prisoners were taken, chiefly wounded men who were found during the clearing of the ground. The total taken is three officers and 158 of other ranks, adds the statement.

Italian Cabinet Virtually Formed

Rome, June 14.—The new cabinet, which is to replace that of Antonio Salandra which resigned last Sunday, has been virtually formed. Paolo Boselli, who will be the new premier but will have no other fortfolio, is 79 years old. He is the dean of parliament, having been a deputy since 1876. He held his first ministerial portfolio forty years ago.

It is asserted that Baron Sonnino has definitely refused to remain the head of the foreign ministry and he probably will be substituted by Vittorio E. Orlando, who was minister of justice in the Salandra cabinet. The other ministers probably will include William Marconi. The ministers of war and marine in the Salandra cabinet probably will retain these posts.

To Transfer Gavira.

El Paso, June 14.—Gen. Gabriel Gavira, commander of the zone of northern Chihuahua, is to be transferred to San Luis Potosi, according to statements today by officers of the Carranza garrison in Juarez. Merchants of Juarez held a meeting there tonight, but it was asserted the discussion was confined to the currency problem. This problem is further complicated in Juarez by the use of American coin in competition with Carranza paper.

Louisiana Senator Charged With Using Knife on Reporter

Baton Rouge, La., June 14.—State Senator H. G. Fields of Union was arrested here today charged with "stabbing and wounding with intent to kill" David Ewing, local correspondent for a New Orleans newspaper.

The arrest followed an altercation during the noon recess of the legislature between Senator Fields and Ewing, during which the senator was alleged to have cut Ewing several times with a knife. Ewing, it was stated, severely beat the legislator with his fists. Neither was seriously injured.

Senator Fields, on the floor of the senate this morning denounced as incorrect a published report of a meeting of a committee of which he is a member.

Senator Fields furnished bond and was released a few minutes after his arrest.

Sonora Women Ready to Fight in Case America Intervenes

Douglas, Ariz., June 14.—Mrs. Rosaura V. Detevar of Agua Prieta, president of the Sonora Women's Rifle association, received a letter from Governor Adolfo de la Huerta of Sonora today, accepting her proffer of the services of the 2000 members of the association as soldiers in case of American intervention. The governor thanked her for the spirit of patriotism exhibited by the offer which had been submitted with a list of names of members of the association. Instructors have been appointed to drill both women and men who are organizing rifle clubs.

Mexicans Report Capture of Bandits

Chihuahua, Mex., June 14.—Gen. Ignacio Ramos reported today to General Jacinto Trevino, Carranza commander of the north, that he had captured and executed five memebrs of the bandit band under Nicholas Hernandez. General Ramos recently has been pursuing a band of 600 outlawse concentrated in the Rio Florida district.

Reports also were received that a former Villista general, Jose Maria Rios, who has been operating in Southern Chihuahua, asking amnesty for himself and a small command. Colonel Carranza also reported the appeal of Candido Chacon, a brother of the notorious bandit, J. Chacon, killed recently near Parral, and his band, asking amnesty. An entire band of would-be raiders numbering forty-six men has been captured at Lampozos by General Carlos.

General Trevino stated today that he regards it of utmost importance to his country that further border complications through raids be prevented.

Germans Say Crew Blew Up Herzmann

Amsterdam, Via London, June 15.—1:15 a. m.—The following statement has been given out in Berlin in connection with the attack by Russian warships in the Baltic:

"During the night of June 13, the German auxiliary cruiser Herzmann was attacked by four Russian destroyers southwest of Stockholm. After a courageous resistance the vessel was set afire by shells and was blown up by her crew. The commander and most of the crew were saved.

Memphis, Tenn., June 14.—Several hundred delegates from a majority of the states were present here today for the annual convention of the Negro National Baptist Sunday school congress and the National Baptist Young Peoples' union. The introductory sermon was preached tonight by the Rev. S. E. J. Watson of Texas.

Engineers Off to Front.

Chattanooga, June 14.—Company F, Fourth battalion, United States engineers, left here today aboard a special train for Fort Sam Houston. Capt. P. H. Emerson was in command of the company of 116 men, which had been detailed temporarily to the southern military training camp at Fort Oglethorpe.

ROOSEVELT IN PAIN AND STILL ON FENCE

FEARS THAT FORMER PRESIDENT HAD HEART ATTACK PROVE GROUNDLESS.

Colonel Refuses to Discuss Politics. Bull Moose Not Sure of Course.

New York, June 14.—Theodore Roosevelt underwent an X-ray examination here today for what he characterized as "possibly a slight breaking of the muscles" around the rib which was broken when he was thrown from a horse, May 24, 1915. Fears that the former president had suffered a heart attack were allayed tonight when he received several newspaper correspondents.

Colonel Roosevelt explained that he contracted a severe cold while returning several months ago from the West Indies and that at intervals since then he had been subjected to coughing spells. One of these occurred this morning and the former president sought a throat specialist, who said tonight:

"There does not seem any possible chance of serious discomfort to the patient."

Colonel Roosevelt was in excellent humor, but his face appeared worn and haggard. Asked if he were in pain, he replied that the question reminded him of a picture he once had seen wherein a timid rider was depicted as about to mount a shying horse. The rider, the colonel said, turned to the groom and inquired whether the horse was "quiet."

"Perfectly quiet," the groom answered, "if you don't cough or sneeze or touch your hat."

Colonel Roosevelt again refused to discuss politics. He said, however, that after lunching with Raymond Robins, who was chairman of the progressive national convention, he had received Gov. Hiram Johnson of California in his rooms and that they had talked for an hour.

Colonel Roosevelt also saw Lucien Bonheur, a prominent local progressive who later gave out a statement in which he said "that friends of Colonel Roosevelt are incensed because certain members of the progressive party have been saying Colonel Roosevelt betrayed the party."

Mr. Robins when seen after his conference with Colonel Roosevelt declared the former president was "in fighting trim, ready to go ahead with any plan decided upon by the progressives."

Asked if the progressives would support Mr. Hughes for president, he said:

"That is up to the colonel. So far as I am concerned the situation has not changed. I can't say now what Colonel Roosevelt will do. Things may not shape up definitely until after the meeting of the executive committee on June 26."

PRESIDENT WOULD MAKE AMERICANISM CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Washington, June 14.—President Wilson today approved a plank on Americanism for the democratic national platform which arraigns individuals or associations seeking to embarrass the government in negotiations with foreign nations and condemns any political party which modifies its policy for fear of political consequences.

The president decided to challenge openly Americans of alien birth opposing his foreign policies. Learning from editorials in some foreign language papers that they were supporting the republican nominee, Mr. Wilson sent word to his personal representative in St. Louis to make the plank on Americanism direct and unequivocal.

The plank on Americanism, drawn partly here and partly in St. Louis, tonight was ready for submission to the resolutions committee of the convention. It carries out some of the ideas expressed by the president in a flag day address here today accusing a small group of Americans of foreign extraction of "levying political blackmail" to gain their ends. It further states that the democratic party will not be influenced by such "blackmail" and, in effect, challenges the republican nominee to take a similar stand.

The foreign-born Americans are severely criticised for interfering in behalf of foreign nations in the relations between the United States and other countries.

Mr. Wilson considers the campaign for the presidency on in earnest and his spokesmen say he will keep constantly on the aggressive.

Austrians on Retreat.

Geneva, via Paris, June 14.—It is reported that from Innsbruck since June 7 the Austrians have been compelled to abandon between thirty-five and forty-five square miles of Italian territory which they gained during the first rush of their offensive. The Austrians have evacuated Chiese in the fear that their retreat would be cut off.

The Austrian general who was appointed governor of the Italian province of Verona is said to have been captured with his troops at Dubno by the Russians.

More Gold From Canada.

New York, June 14.—The receipt today of an additional $3,200,000 gold from Canada by J. P. Morgan & Co., brings the total imports from across the border in the last five weeks to well above the $50,000,000 mark, with no signs of abatement.

Wind Destroys Zeppelin.

Amsterdam, June 14, via London, June 15, 12:08 a. m.—A Zeppelin was destroyed Monday in a windstorm near Chattelineu, South Belgium, according to frontier correspondents.

Danish Paper Tells of Russian Naval Victory in Baltic

Copenhagen, via London, June 14, 9:20 p. m.—Describing the Baltic fight, the Dagens Nyheder says that the Russian squadron won an important victory. The Russians had six destroyers and several submarines and were going at such speed that the Germans were taken completely by surprise, only fired one shot and then made for port in the utmost haste.

"It is believed," says the paper, "that twelve merchantment were sunk, while a German armed trawler which arrived at Nykoping had 150 men aboard from a German destroyer that had been sent to the bottom. The German auxiliary cruiser was the Konig von Sachzn, which was also seen to sink and it is supposed that all of her crew were drowned."

El Paso Flag Day Parade Causes Alarm in Juarez

El Paso, June 14.—A Flag day parade here caused alarm in Juarez, across the Rio Grande, where it was considered an anti-Mexican demonstration, and reports that fires had been started in the Mexican quarter and the Mexican consulate attacked were circulated.

Andres Garcia, Mexican consul here, quieted the anxious telephone inquiries of General Gonzales, commandant at Juarez and the excitement in the Mexican town then subsided.

Delegations of naturalized Mexicans, Chinese and many American refugees from Mexico marched in the parade with commercial and professional representatives.

Contested Seats Are Disposed Of

St. Louis, June 14.—The credentials committee tonight disposed of all the delegate contests by ratifying the action of the national committee in overruling the contestsants from the District of Columbia and from Hawaii and by dividing equally the six seats to which Porto Rico is entitled between the delegation seated by the national committee and the contestants.

Georgia Prohibition Law Upheld

Macon, Ga., June 14.—Three federal judges upheld Georgia's new prohibition law today in a decision declaring confiscated two carloads of whisky, seized by a Georgia sheriff. The judges—Pardee, Newman and Speer—overruled the contention of the Ocilla, Pine Bloom and Valdosta railroad that the law is unconstitutional.

Cleveland's Widow Operated On.

New York, June 14.—Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., wife of Professor Preston of Princeton, and widow of Grover Cleveland, was operated on here today at a hospital. It was said at the hospital that the operation was a success and Mrs. Preston was doing nicely.

NOMINATIONS NOT EXPECTED TO COME BEFORE FRIDAY NIGHT

St. Louis, June 14.—If more than one speech seconding each nomination for vice president is made in the democratic convention, all except the first will be limited to five minutes, according to a rule adopted tonight by a subcommittee on rules.

The question of changing the rule requiring the votes of two-thirds of the delegates to make a nomination was not raised at any meeting today. In previous conventions a minority has demanded a change so that a majority would nominate.

The permanent organization committee failed to establish a quorum tonight and will meet tomorrow to organize.

Senator James of Kentucky was made permanent chairman.

When the full committee on rules meets tomorrow, Chairman Glasgow of Pennsylvania will endeavor to have adopted a hurry-up program for the convention. He wants nominations to be made Thursday night or not later than Friday morning, with adjournment of the convention by noon Friday.

Convention managers did not think the program to make nominations Friday night would be changed.

A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania started the report that a sub-committee of the rules committee would submit a report to the convention directing that the nominations be held Thursday night.

When Senator Stone, chairman of the resolutions committee heard that a move was on foot to close proceedings quickly he remarked that the resolutions sub-committee which is drafting the platform would be busy all Thursday. National Chairman McCombs said that the convention was under moral obligation to continue until Friday night.

Senator Hollis of the resolutions committee said it would be impossible to conclude the convention tomorrow night, and Senator Reed of Missouri expressed the same view.

WACO--3--2 PIRATES--1--3

NAVIGATORS DIVIDE FLAG DAY DOUBLEHEADER WITH GALVESTON.

JIMMIE ZINN WINS FIRST GAME

Jimmie Zinn kept up his good pitching yesterday and Waco won the first game of the double-header 3 to 1. Red Causey had one bad inning in the second game in which he walked ed two men and allowed a scratch Texas leaguer, which, linked with two errors, lost him the second game 3 to 2. Both were corking good games, full of chances to score and the entertainment was replete with thrills.

Of course it peeves local bugs to see chance after chance to win a game go by the pop-up route—but it's all in the game, at that.

One Karr assayed to turn back the Navs in the first game and aside from the first inning, made a fairly good stab at it. In this first inning Bittle drew a walk. He was forced at second by Coyle, but Conwell hit safely and James walked. With the bases full Tanner hit a long sacrifice fly to left, Coyle scoring. Reilly singled to left, scoring Conwell. Wohlleben grounded out to the pitcher.

Galveston's one run came in the third when Hille opened the inning with a two-bagger to left. Karr sacrificed and the score was allowed to trot in when Breaux grounded to Malmquist.

Zinn was not really in trouble in the game. Two of the Pritaes' chances to score were killed by fast doubles and at no time did their attack look dangerous.

Waco threatened seriously in the sixth and seventh. In the sixth Conwell and James singled in succession and when Tanner lunted Conwell was called safe at third, filling the bases with none out. However, Reilly flied out on a short pop to center and Wohlleben and Malmquist were easy strike-out victims. Zinn opened the seventh with a double and was sacrificed by Bittle, but Coyle popped up to first and Conwell struck out.

In the eighth, however, with one out Tanner walked. He was forced at second by Reilly, who scored from second on Wohlleben's long single to left-center.

Karr was saved many runs in this game by good support, which turned the Navs back from a vicious attack in the third and fourth innings. Johnson made a couple of good catches, Murray contributed one and Stuart flagged a pretty line drive for James by a high jump.

ONLY TWO LOCALS COULD HIT IN SECOND.

Dashner, a young southpaw, started the second game and while the Navs drew seven hits off him, Bittle and Malmquist almost divided them equally. Bittle, who doesn't appear to have a particle of use for port-siders, drew one clean hit and two scratches. There was no question about the quality of Mal's drives. His first was a scorching double past Johnson, his second was a home run over the left-field fence and the third was a long single to center.

Causey's bad inning came in the fifth. He started the inning by walking Wilson. Stuart hit to Conwell, who pegged to second to force Wilson and Mal dropped the throw. Sharman also walked, filling the bases. Balenti hit one close to second on a line, which Tanner made a good catch on, but in throwing to first to complete a double the ball barely missed the runner and Fred couldn't handle it, Wilson scoring and Stuart and Sharman advancing. Hille struck out, but Dashner popped a little fly up back of third which Tanner should have handled, but which Conwell tried to handle and didn't. The lucky hit scored two men—enough to win, as it afterwards proved.

The Pirates challenged in the seventh and eighth with two hits in each frame, but good support turned them back.

Mal's home run, Waco's first score, came in the fifth.

The other run furnished the best chance the locals had to win. Bittle started the eighth with a hit and was forced by Coyle. Conwell flied out to center, but Dashner went wild and walked James, Tanner and Kuhn in a row, forcing Coyle in. With Wohlleben at bat Barfoot took over the burden of pitching and retired Wohlleben himself.

The locals challenged again in the ninth when, after Mal had struck out, Reilly hit for Causey and drew a walk. Bittle popped up to Stuart, but Coyle hit, sending Reilly to second. Conwell kept the crowd in suspense while he fouled several and finally grounded out to Barfoot.

CLARENCE MITCHELL, RED TWIRLER, IS A BIG HIT WITH THE CINCINNATI FANS

Clarence Mitchell.

Clarence Mitchell, the California pitching recruit who has been starring this season with the Cincinnati Reds, has recently made a particular hit with Red fans by stopping the battling New York Giants on their own lot. He gave them only nine hits in thirteen innings and stopped all the last nineteen men who faced him, permitting none of them to reach first.

Ogle Has Good Day and Giants Lose

Dallas, June 14.—Dallas dropped the first game of the series to San Antonio today 3 to 1. The visitors bunched hits off Conley in the fifth inning, scoring two runs, more than enough to win. The only run scored by Dallas was in the first inning when Ens parked the ball. Ogle was invincible. The score:

Martina Is on Way Back to Beaumont

Beaumont, June 14.—Joe Martina is on his way back to the Texas league and will pitch for the Oilers again, if it develops that his arm is in good shape. Owner Stedman of the Oilers announces that Martina will start in one game of the double-header with San Antonio Sunday.

Just why Chattanooga is letting the ex-Oiler go is a mystery. It has been reported that Martina's arm was gone, but O. P. Andrews, owner of the Chattanooga club, telegraphed Stedman as follows:

"Martina's arm is O. K. Will let you have him on two weeks' trial for $500."

Martina won just about all the games registered on the winning side for Chattanooga the early part of the season and then came the report that his arm was gone. He has not pitched, except one day as relief man, for about a monh. If in his old-time form, he will be a valuable acquisition for the Oilers.

Sporting Comment

Pirates again today—4:30.

Who said Bittle didn't like left-handers?

Harvey Grubb had a day off, being in the grandstand in regular clothes.

Henry Chelette pitched for Marlin in the Central Texas league and got a good beating.

Lefty Ruth had some bad luck yesterday—he appeared as a pinch hitter and failed to hit a home run.

Wohlleben was a little hurried in the eighth, when he hit at Barfoot's second offering, with a ball already and with three on.

Even Jesse James seems to have developed a weakness. When Jesse goes back on us we haven't an alibi left in our repertory.

Jake Dugey ran for Luderus in the ninth inning and brought home the tying score. The Phillies afterward won out in the twelfth.

Causey was mighty unlucky from every angle. He walked but three men, two of which were mixed with two errors and a rabbitfoot hit.

Just to show that wonders will never cease, Conwell dropped a pop-up. The hot-corner tender is as sure as taxes on the pops as usual, but he camped under this one and let it bounce out of his hands.

Walters made a remarkable record yesterday. He is credited with eight put-outs and New York pitchers struck out but two men, according to the summary. The ex-Nav must have been gathering in foul flys from all over Manhattan island to pile up six putouts, or else he had a busy day fighting the old spikes.

It begins to look as if all an opposition pitcher has to do nowadays to stop a rally by the Navs is to fill the bases. In the past three or four games the locals have had three on and none out in a number of instances and failed to score. And the squeeze hasn't been put on for over a week.

The flag raising was impressive in a peculiar way—probably from its very simplicity. Five youngsters—sturdy boy scouts in service uniform—marched unaffectedly from the stand to the tall flag pole in center field. The pennant was run down, Old Glory attached, three young buglers blew colors and the reveille clear and strong and a youngster pulled the big flag to its place as the crowd rose to its feet. Just enough breeze was blowing to straighten the emblem

NAVIGATORS DIVIDE FLAG DAY DOUBLEHEADER WITH GALVESTON.

JIMMIE ZINN WINS FIRST GAME

Jimmie Zinn kept up his good pitching yesterday and Waco won the first game of the double-header 3 to 1. Red Causey had one bad inning in the second game in which he walked-ed two men and allowed a scratch Texas leaguer, which, linked with two errors, lost him the second game 3 to 2. Both were corking good games, full of chances to score and the entertainment was replete with thrills.

Of course it peeves local bugs to see chance after chance to win a game go by the pop-up route—but it's all in the game, at that.

One Karr assayed to turn back the Navs in the first game and aside from the first inning, made a fairly good stab at it. In this first inning Bittle drew a walk. He was forced at second by Coyle, but Conwell hit safely and James walked. With the bases full Tanner hit a long sacrifice fly to left, Coyle scoring. Reilly singled to left, scoring Conwell. Wohlleben grounded out to the pitcher.

Galveston's one run came in the third when Bittle opened the inning with a two-bagger to left. Karr sacrificed and the score was allowed to trot in when Breaux grounded to Malmquist.

Zinn was not really in trouble in the game. Two of the Pirates' chances to score were killed by fast doubles and at no time did their attack look dangerous.

Waco threatened seriously in the sixth and seventh. In the sixth Conwell and James singled in succession and when Tanner bunted Conwell was called safe at third, filling the bases with none out. However, Reilly filed out on a short pop to center and Wohlleben and Malmquist were easy strike-out victims. Zinn opened the seventh with a double and was sacrificed by Bittle, but Coyle popped up to first and Conwell struck out.

In the eighth, however, with one out Tanner walked. He was forced at second by Reilly, who scored from second on Wohlleben's long single to left-center.

Karr was saved many runs in this game by good support, which turned the Navs back from a vicious attack in the third and fourth innings. Johnson made a couple of good catches, Murray contributed one and Stuart flagged a pretty line drive for James by a high jump.

ONLY TWO LOCALS COULD HIT IN SECOND.

Dashner, a young southpaw, started the second game and while the Navs drew seven hits off him, Bittle and Malmquist almost divided them equally. Hitler, who doesn't appear to have a particle of use for port-siders, drew one clean hit and two scratches. There was no question about the quality of Mal's drives. His first was a scorching double past Johnson, his second was a home run over the left-field fence and the third was a long single to center.

Causey's bad inning came in the fifth. He started the inning by walking Wilson. Stuart hit to Conwell, who pegged to second to force Wilson and Mal dropped the throw. Sharman also walked, filling the bases. Balenti hit one close to second on a line, which Tanner made a good catch on but in throwing to first to complete a double the ball barely missed the runner and Fred couldn't handle it. Wilson scoring and Stuart and Sharman advancing. Hille struck out, but Dashner popped a little fly up back of third which Tanner should have handled, but which Conwell tried to handle and didn't. The lucky hit scored two men—enough to win, as it afterwards proved.

The Pirates challenged in the seventh and eighth with two hits in each frame, but good support turned them back.

Mal's home run, Waco's first score, came in the fifth.

The other run furnished the best chance the locals had to win. Bittle started the eighth with a hit and was forced by Coyle. Conwell flied out to center, but Dashner went wild and walked James. Tanner and Kuhn in a row, forcing Coyle in. With Wohlleben at bat Barfoot took over the task of pitching and retired Wohlleben himself.

The locals challenged again in the ninth when, after Mal had struck out, Reilly hit for Causey and drew a walk. Bittle popped up to Stuart, but Coyle hit, sending Reilly to second. Conwell kept the crowd in suspense while he fouled several and finally grounded out to Barfoot.

CLARENCE MITCHELL, RED TWIRLER, IS A BIG HIT WITH THE CINCINNATI FANS

Clarence Mitchell.

Clarence Mitchell, the California pitching recruit who has been starring this season with the Cincinnati Reds, has recently made a particular hit with Red fans by stopping the battling New York Giants on their own lot. He gave them only nine hits in thirteen innings and stopped all the last nineteen men who faced him, permitting none of them to reach first.

Martina Is on Way Back to Beaumont

Beaumont, June 14.—Joe Martina is on his way back to the Texas league and will pitch for the Oilers again, if it develops that his arm is in good shape. Owner Stedman of the Oilers announces that Martina will start in one game of the double-header with San Antonio Sunday.

Just why Chattanooga is letting the ex-Oiler go is a mystery. It has been reported that Martina's arm was gone, but O. B. Andrews, owner of the Chattanooga club, telegraphed Stedman as follows:

"Martina's arm is O. K. Will let you have him on two weeks' trial for $500."

Martina won just about all the games registered on the winning side for Chattanooga the early part of the season and then came the report that his arm was gone. He has not pitched, except one day as relief man, for about a month. If in his old-time form, he will be a valuable acquisition for the Oilers.

Sporting Comment

Pirates again today—4:30.

Who said Bittle didn't like left-handers?

Harvey Grubb had a day off, being in the grandstand in regular clothes.

Henry Chelette pitched for Marlin in the Central Texas league and got a good beating.

Lefty Ruth had some bad luck yesterday—he appeared as a pinch hitter and failed to hit a home run.

Wohlleben was a little hurried in the eighth, when he hit at Barfoot's second offering, with a ball already and with three on.

Even Jesse James seems to have developed a weakness. When Jesse goes back on us we haven't an alibi left in our repertory.

Jake Dugey ran for Luderus in the ninth inning and brought home the tying score. The Phillies afterward won out in the twelfth.

Causey was mighty unlucky from every angle. He walked but three men, two of which were mixed with two errors and a rabbitfoot hit.

Just to show that wonders will never cease, Conwell dropped a pop-up. The hot-corner fender is as sure as taxes on the pops as usual, but he camped under this one and let it bounce out of his hands.

Walters made a remarkable record yesterday. He is credited with eight put-outs and New York pitchers struck out but two men, according to the summary. The ex-Nav must have been gathering in foul flys from all over Manhattan island to pile up six putouts, or else he had a busy day fighting the old spikes.

It begins to look as if all an opposition pitcher has to do nowadays to stop a rally by the Navs is to fill the bases. In the past three or four games the locals have had three on and none out in a number of instances and failed to score. And the squeeze hasn't been been put on for over a week.

The flag raising was impressive in a peculiar way—probably from its very simplicity. Five youngsters—sturdy boy scouts in service uniform—marched unaffectedly from the stand to the tall flag pole in center field. The pennant was run down, Old Glory attached, three young buglers blew colors and the reveille clear and strong and a youngster pulled the big flag to its place as the crowd rose to its feet. Just enough breeze was blowing to straighten the emblem to its full length. There were no fancy trimmings to the ceremony, no attempt to do anything elaborate—but, somehow it got under the hide—made a creepy feeling run along one's spine whether he was very patriotic or not. Secretary Steele, who planned the affair, should be complimented on his good taste, and the five lads who came in off their camp to do their simple little service made everybody in the stands proud of them.

NO DEVELOPMENTS ON MEXICAN QUESTION

AMERICAN OFFICIALS BELIEVE COLLAPSE OF CARRANZA'S RULE IS IN SIGHT.

Reply to Note Will Emphasize the Need of Patroling Border.

Washington, June 14.—With all government departments closed in observance of Flag day, there was no developments here today in the grave Mexican situation.

Whatever is to be the outcome of the involved situation beyond the border, officials here are certain that the presence of American troops on Mexican soil is only one element and perhaps a lesser one, among those contributing to unrest in Mexico. The real key to the situation, many of those in close touch with it believe, is the apparent collapse of the de facto government's effort to adjust the financial problem in default of substantial foreign aid.

It is evident that many officials believe the collapse of the de facto government is more to be expected than any other act by that government against the United States. Out of such a collapse, however, it is feared there might come an ill advised attempt to eject the American troops sent to pursue Villa and his bandits.

Army officials have no fear of the safety of General Pershing's men, no matter what happens.

The forthcoming reply to the Mexican note demanding withdrawal of the American troops will emphasize that again only by definite co-operation looking to adequate policing of the Carranza troops can withdrawal be accepted.

PAPER PRICES PINCH SPAIN.

Commission of Publishers Asks for a Steamship Subsidy to Philippines.

(From the European Edition of the New York Herald.)

Madrid—Senor Nunez Samper, presiding over a commission of publishers, has called on Conde de Romanones, the Spanish premier, to acquaint him with the situation caused by the high prices of paper.

He exhibited letters from provincial publishers and booksellers which stated that if the situation is not relieved they will convene in Madrid and adopt measures to force the government to ease prices by increasing the available supply of paper.

The commission has petitioned the government to prohibit the export of paper and rags, to permit free import of paper. They showed also the necessity of maintaining the steamship line to the Philippines from which the government has withdrawn its subsidy, because school books and text books used there are largely bought in Spain.

RUBE BENTON'S BIG WINNER FOR GIANTS

Rube Benton.

Rube Benton, top-notcher among National league pitchers, has been putting over a very nifty class of ball for the Giants. Last season Benton jcined the Giants after a short stay with the Pirates whom he had joined after leaving the Cincinnati Reds. A few years ago when he joined Cincinnati he was the greenest proposition in the world. Hence "Rube."

CURIOUS KISSING CRAZE.

Heroes Returning from War Become Victims of Admiring Damsels.

"Somewhere in France" the other day an exceedingly comely damsel insisted on fervently kissing a British "Tommy Atkins" who had performed a very heroic feat.

She saluted him at least a dozen times, and, indeed, only desisted when pushed aside by another admiring fair one burning to show her appreciation in the same sweet way.

At least a score of others followed suit and goodness only knows where it would all have ended had not the gallant soldier sought refuge in flight. He afterward remarked that he would rather face all the Germans in Belgium and France than go through such an ordeal again.

It will be remembered that when Lieutenant Hobson, of Merrimac fame, performed his heroic exploit thousands of girls and women lined up to be kissed by him. At Kansas City upward of 400 received this coveted salutation, and at Topeka more than 500 awaited him at the railway station, eager to be kissed. Amidst exclamations of "Isn't he sweet?" and "He's just too lovely for anything" Hobson made his appearance and kissed away until his train was ready to resume its journey. Similar scenes were enacted in other towns, and it is highly probable that the hero of the Merrimac kissed more women than any other man in the world.

When Osborn W. Dignam, one of the crew of the Merrimac, returned to his home at Stuart, Ind., there was a crowd of girls lined up at the railway station ready and anxious to kiss him.

His mother not unnaturally wished to give him the first salutation, and, with the help of some male sympathizers, she succeeded. By a ruse the eager damsels were balked of their prey for the time being, the young fellow being escorted to his home before one of them could snatch a kiss from him. But the girls were not to be denied; and later on all had their chance at his mother's house, of which none failed to avail herself.

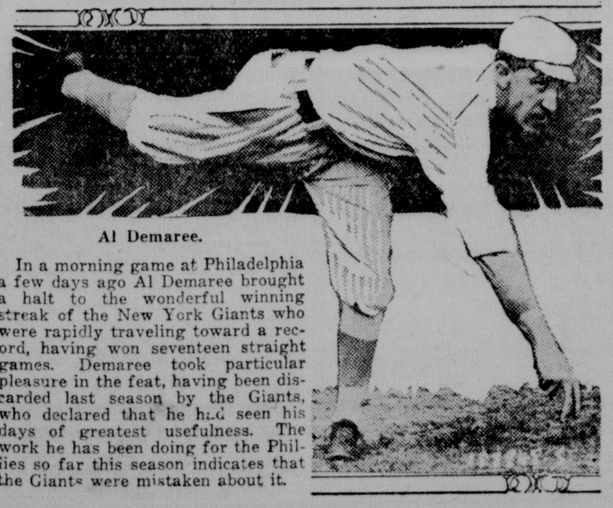
On the occasion of the return from South Africa of the City Imperial Volunteers of London, quite a kissing carnival took place. Crowds of rowdy youths and apprentices pushed their way through the streets, kissing every woman and girl they met.

Every unattended lady was thus rudely assailed and in some cases had to bear the added indignity of being passed on from one kisser to another. Some lively scenes took place, particularly when one unescorted damsel who had been bodily swept into a side street, called out most lustily for rescue from a group of would-be kissers.

A Liverpool man pleaded the war as his excuse for contracting the kissing fever. Taking his stand at the entrance to Lime Street station, he was seen to place his arm around the waists of several ladies and kiss them as they passed. The screams of the indignant fair ones attracted the attention of a policeman, who took the promiscuous kisser into custody.

Before the magistrate he essayed to excuse his conduct on the ground of excess of joy at the return of his son from the war. But this did not prevent the infliction of a fine to pay for two or three kisses taken without leave.—New York Telegraph.

AL DEMAREE, EX-GIANT, STOPS GREAT WINNING STREAK OF OLD TEAMMATES



Al Demaree.

In a morning game at Philadelphia a few days ago Al Demaree brought a halt to the wonderful winning streak of the New York Giants who were rapidly traveling toward a record, having won seventeen straight games. Demaree took particular pleasure in the feat, having been discarded last season by the Giants, who declared that he had seen his days of greatest usefulness. The work he has been doing for the Phillies so far this season indicates that the Giants were mistaken about it.

SCORES FERGUSON AS EXPENSIVE GOVERNOR

HON. L. T. DASHIEL DENOUNCES TAX INCREASE OF PRESENT ADMINISTRATION.

CALLS SOME ITEMS "GRAFT"

Candidate Morris' Representative Says Ferguson Has Multiplied Costly Machinery.

In his address before a fair-sized audience on the court house lawn last night, arrangements for which had been made largely through the efforts of W. D. Rowell of this city, Hon. L. T. (Travis) Dashiell of Jewett, Leon county, vigorously assailed the administration of Gov. James E. Ferguson—the "business governor," as he derisively called him, and laid tremendous emphasis on the growth of the tax rate since Governor Ferguson has been in office. He defended Tom Campbell, former governor, against charges that Campbell's administration had been responsible in any manner for the need of an increased tax rate, and also stated that O. B. Colquitt had made a much better financial showing as governor than the present incumbent. Mr. Dashiell did not say much about Charles H. Morris, candidate for governor, but in closing he paid him a nice compliment in a few words, stating that he believed in him and thought that he would do what he claimed that he would do, as he was a dependable, honest, courageous, Christian gentleman and capable, he thought, of filling the position to which he aspires. He made a number of statements regarding the administration of affairs by Governor Ferguson, had manuscript with him which he stated contained verification of the figures which he presented, and stated more than once that if he could not prove his assertions he would leave the stump and would vote for Governor Ferguson. He claimed that it was the tax rate in January which had aroused him to the gravity of the situation.

Mr. Dashiell was applauded a number of times, and his address was sympathetically received. He was introduced by Dr. J. T. Harrington.

Dr. Harrington introduced Mr. Dashiell in a tactful and spicy manner, welcoming the visitor in hearty terms. He spoke briefly, saying he knew the audience wanted to hear Mr. Dashiell. Dr. Harrington said the Dashiells had stood for the very best things in Texas for many years, and had helped to redeem Texas from carpetbag rule and negro domination. He commended the speaker very highly personally, in referring to his political and social life.

Applause greeted Dr. Harrington's remarks, after which Mr. Dashiell began his address, expressing deep ap- Harrington before going into his Harrington before goin ginto his speech in behalf of Charles H. Morris for governor. He said he did not "bring any of the audience with him." The speaker said he had been in politics for more than two decades, and he recalled how he had aided George Clark of Waco in the 90s; he had taken no active part recently in politics, however, and had intended until January to vote for Ferguson, on the second-term principle.

GOT JOLT ON TAXES.

"But when I paid my state and county taxes in January, I made a discovery which gave me a start; I looked over that tax receipt, examined it and found the state ad valorem tax rate was 35c on the $100 valuation," said the speaker, this tax being for 1915, and included the Confederate pensions. This was the highest tax rate ever known in Texas—even worse than it was under the Edwin J. Davis regime. The speaker referred to debates he had had with populists in former years, when he had held up the Davis regime as the acme of governmental extravagance. But under a democratic administration the tax had even exceeded the Davis proposition. He found further, he said, that he had paid double the ad valorem taxes in 1915 that had been paid in 1914; he found, further, on examination, that the jump had been noticeable for the past several years.

M'LENNAN INCREASE NEARLY HUNDRED THOUSAND.

As to McLennan county,, the speaker said he found the following: In 1915 there had been paid in this county for the state government support $196,467, this being $96,605.08 more than was paid in 1914; nearly a hundred thousand dollars increase in one year! In 1915 the county paid more in taxes to the state than in 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910 combined. The increase in eight years was more than 600 per cent.

"I am not including the money paid for public education, but wish this education tax was more than it is," said Mr. Dashiell. "I am only telling you what it cost to run the state government and pay Confederate pensions."

Some one asked who was governor when the taxes were low several years ago.

"I don't like to answer that, lest some one say I am out speaking in behalf of Tom Campbell—some are saying that now," said the speaker. And he said he might have to use the lowest rate of the state in order to get a comparison, in order to show the amazing increase in taxes. The speaker said he had been chairman of the tax board in Texas four years, and when he looked over the tax receipts he knew, naturally, how to analyze them. He investigated the matter of the high taxes in 1915, and made an investigation of appropriations covering deficiencies, and the appropriations made to cover deficiencies from the Campbell administration only amounted to a little over $400; this was correct, absolutely, he said. The deficiencies coming from the Colquitt administration were not unusually large, either, and Governor Ferguson could not hide behind that in trying to explain about that $9,000,000. All Texas governors back of Ferguson had blue penciled appropriations, Colquitt with the others, in trying to hold down expenses, he continued. Ferguson had tried to lay the burden on Tom Campbell, jumping clear back over Colquitt's administration. Governor Ferguson had claimed in his Waco speech that the blind asylum had been one reason of the tax burden, but this had not been built yet, and was not included in the list in making up the 1915 taxes. Governor Ferguson claimed that Tom Campbell had left undone many things which entailed a burden on Governor Ferguson, as they had to be done later, said the speaker, but he vigorously denied this.

SAYS FERGUSON'S EXCUSES NO GOOD.

Mr. Dashiell quoted from Governor Colquitt's message a short time before he (Colquitt) gave up his office in 1915, showing that Governor Colquitt said there were no emergency needs in the way of public buildings and institutions. The speaker claimed that the showing made by Governor Colquitt was that no institutions had been neglected, and yet the "business governor"—Ferguson—had spent millions, without getting the results he should have gotten. When Colquitt went out of office there was a cash balance in the treasury of over $700,000, and matters appeared to be in good shape.

The speaker explained how the state ad valorem tax rate is determined by the governor, comptroller and state treasurer, saying that the corporations had been relieved of a great lot of taxes which had been laid on the shoulders of the ad valorem tax payers of Texas under Governor Ferguson, many new offices have been created by Governor Ferguson also and actually partitions had been put up in the state capitol building, and the Daughters of the Confederacy had actually been moved out of the building to make room for more departments and offices.

SCORES NEW DEPARTMENTS.

Of course, many departments were really needed, but there were too many, he said. The speaker referred in laughable terms to the addition of departments. He showed how fire rating boards, agricultural departments and many other state offices had been created; and as to the fire rating board the rates were higher than ever known, really prohibitive, said the speaker. The expenses of running the various departments was shown, and it was claimed that it cost twice as much to run the department in 1915 as it took in 1910. Governor Ferguson even has a "confidential adviser" at $1800 a year, and he was being paid under the plan which provides for the 'apprehension and conviction of criminals." The "confidential adviser" was a good man, all right, the speaker admitted, and had been known in the past as a "good republican." Other incidents of like character were given and the speaker added:

"It's easy to create offices, but hard as the mischief to get rid of them." He quoted from the penitentiary investigating committee report, showing that in 1911 the penitentiary system was about on a basis where it owed nothing, but in two years there was an enormous jump in expenses in that department, even the interest charges along being stupendous, over $300,000 in thirty months. He claimed bad management in the buying arrangements of the penitentiary system, in spite of the efforts of the "business governor."

KNOCKS FERGUSON'S PENAL MANAGEMENT.

This business governor had also made some bad deals in buying state farms, he said. He claimed that $59,000 in commissions went into the pockets of promoters of some of these deals.

The traveling expenses of public officials had amounted to over $400,000 in 1915, said the speaker, and the "business governor" had spent the people's money in many other ways—the Panama exposition trip of many officials of the state, for instance, and the speaker gave a number of names; the money came from the state's coffers, and he (Mr. Dashiell) called it graft. He gave items of expense of some of the travelers at the state's expense, one of these being a notation, "Lunch on diner, $2.60." Other items were given, dealing in larger amounts, and expenses at the governor's mansion had been figuring heavily since Governor Ferguson had been in office, the "incidental fund" being an expansive one, covering meat, milk, groceries, auto supplies, fruits, gasoline, feed, etc. This was all contrary to the state constitution, which provides a straight salary of $4000 a year for the governor.

COMPLIMENTS MORRIS HIGHLY.

As to Charles Morris, the candidate for governor, Mr. Dashiell paid him a fine compliment as a Christian gentleman, a business man and a man who will do what he claims he will do. He thought Texas too big a state to be turned over to any man who is incapable and he believed Mr. Morris would fill the bill.

The speaker thanked the audience and the speaking ended.

AT THE HIPPODROME

At the Hippodrome Friday and Saturday.

THEATRES

HIPPODROME.

"Reggie Mixes In."

There is yet to come a Fairbanks picture that is not distinctive. With a vim and enthusiasm that carries one literally off his feet, the inexhaustible "Doug" Fairbanks "mixes in" with his newest Fine Arts feature, "Reggie Mixes In," at the Hippodrome today only. The picture is delightfully imbued with Fairbanks, and one never grows tired of him. This is because of his wonderful enthusiasm and his eternal newness. We expected the unexpected of him and we are never disappointed. Bessie Love, that appealing, sweet-faced little girl who has appeared with Fairbanks many times of late and played with William S. Hart in "The Aryan," has the role of Agnes, the tiny dancer in Gallagher's cabaret, Joseph Singleton, A. D. Sears, Frank Bennett and many extras help bring the picture to final success. Perhaps the biggest thing in the production outside of Fairbanks is the fight between the star and Frank Bennett, who plays the leader of Gallagher's gang. It is a glorious scrap without any fake or trick photography, and it is safe to say that the two combatants know they had been through the real thing when the director finally called a halt.

Reggie finds Agnes, the little dancer in Gallagher's cabaret, and is at once attracted to her. When he learns that she is "straight" he throws over the society girl to whom he was engaged for pastime and who was engaged to him for his money, and goes back to Gallagher's to take Agnes away. But Agnes has another suitor, Tony, the gang leader, and Reggie does not find the taking of her easy work. There is much scrapping of an amazing and thoroughly interesting sort, and then Reggie decides to test Agnes' love in a novel manner. "Reggie Mixes In" is one of the most delightful of all the Fairbanks pictures, and certainly it is a stirring and exciting screen production.

HONOR STRIPE FOR BIRD.

Parula Warbler Has Black Band Across Its Yellow Breast.

(Philadelphia North-American.)

When one bird begins his springtime search for a place to build his nest, he's as cranky and as particular as a suburbanite hunting a flat in the city. The bird scurries around the woods until he finds a bunch of lichen—Spanish moss—hanging from a tree, "Here's just what I'm looking for," he says, and starts his nest. He's called the parula warbler.

No lichen, no nest. Hence, you'll find him hiding away in damp forests, or swampy thickets. It's a pity he's so particular, too, because he would be a handsome addition to the beauties which inhabit more civilized places.

He wears a coat of grayish blue, with a greenish triangle in the middle of the back. His breast is yellow and he wears a black band across it, evidently some honor decoration he has received "for valor," or perhaps for his work in ridding the forests of insect pests.

He's not half so particular about his diet. Spiders, caterpillars, small flies, plant lice, beetles—he eats them all. If Spanish moss were more plentiful the parula warbler would be an excellent aid to Mother Nature's clean-up week.

NO DEVELOPMENTS ON MEXICAN QUESTION

AMERICAN OFFICIALS BELIEVE COLLAPSE OF CARRANZA'S RULE IS IN SIGHT.

Reply to Note Will Emphasize the Need of Patroling Border.

Washington, June 14.—With all government departments closed in observance of Flag day, there was no developments here today in the grave Mexican situation.

Whatever is to be the outcome of the involved situation beyond the border, officials here are certain that the presence of American troops on Mexican soil is only one element and perhaps a lesser one, among those contributing to unrest in Mexico. The real key to the situation, many of those in close touch with it believe, is the apparent collapse of the de facto government's effort to adjust the financial problem in default of substantial foreign aid.

It is evident that many officials believe the collapse of the de facto government is more to be expected than any other act by that government against the United States. Out of such a collapse, however, it is feared there might come an ill advised attempt to eject the American troops sent to pursue Villa and his bandits.

Army officials have no fear of the safety of General Pershing's men, no matter what happens.

The forthcoming reply to the Mexican note demanding withdrawal of the American troops will emphasize that again only by definite co-operation looking to adequate policing of the Carranza troops can withdrawal be accepted.

PAPER PRICES PINCH SPAIN.

Commission of Publishers Asks for a Steamship Subsidy to Philippines.

(From the European Edition of the New York Herald.)

Madrid—Senor Nunez Samper, presiding over a commission of publishers, has called on Conde de Romanones, the Spanish premier, to acquaint him with the situation caused by the high prices of paper.

He exhibited letters from provincial publishers and booksellers which stated that if the situation is not relieved they will convene in Madrid and adopt measures to force the government to ease prices by increasing the available supply of paper.

The commission has petitioned the government to prohibit the export of paper and rags, to permit free import of paper.

They showed also the necessity of maintaining the steamship line to the Philippines from which the government has withdrawn its subsidy, because school books and text books used there are largely bought in Spain.

RUBE BENTON'S BIG WINNER FOR GIANTS

Rube Benton.

Rube Benton, top-notcher among National league pitchers, has been putting over a very nifty class of ball for the Giants. Last season Benton joined the Giants after a short stay with the Pirates whom he had joined after leaving the Cincinnati Reds. A few years ago when he joined Cincinnati he was the greenest proposition in the world. Hence "Rube."

CURIOUS KISSING CRAZE.

Heroes Returning from War Become Victims of Admiring Damsels.

"Somewhere in France" the other day an exceedingly comely damsel insisted on fervently kissing a British "Tommy Atkins" who had performed a very heroic feat.

She saluted him at least a dozen times, and, indeed, only desisted when pushed aside by another admiring fair one burning to show her appreciation in the same sweet way.

At least a score of others followed suit and goodness only knows where it would all have ended had not the gallant soldier sought refuge in flight. He afterward remarked that he would rather face all the Germans in Belgium and France than go through such an ordeal again.

It will be remembered that when Lieutenant Hobson, of Merrimac fame, performed his heroic exploit thousands of girls and women lined up to be kissed by him. At Kansas City upward of 400 received this coveted salutation, and at Topeka more than 500 awaited him at the railway station, eager to be kissed.

Amidst exclamations of "Isn't he sweet?" and "He's just too lovely for anything" Hobson made his appearance and kissed away until his train was ready to resume its journey. Similar scenes were enacted in other towns, and it is highly probable that the hero of the Merrimac kissed more women than any other man in the world.

When Osborn W. Dignam, one of the crew of the Merrimac, returned to his home at Stuart, Ind., there was a crowd of girls lined up at the railway station ready and anxious to kiss him.

His mother not unnaturally wished to give him the first salutation, and, with the help of some male sympathizers, she succeeded. By a ruse the eager damsels were balked of their prey for the time being, the young fellow being escorted to his home before one of them could snatch a kiss from him. But the girls were not to be denied; and later on all had their chance at his mother's house, of which none failed to avail herself.

On the occasion of the return from South Africa of the City Imperial Volunteers of London quite a kissing carnival took place. Crowds of rowdy youths and apprentices pushed their way through the streets, kissing every woman and girl they met.

Every unattended lady was thus rudely assailed and in some cases had to bear the added indignity of being passed on from one kisser to another. Some lively scenes took place, particularly when one unescorted damsel who had been bodily swept into a side street, called out most lustily for rescue from a group of would-be kissers.

A Liverpool man pleaded the war as his excuse for contracting the kissing fever. Taking his stand at the entrance to Lime Street station, he was seen to place his arm around the waists of several ladies and kiss them as they passed. The screams of the indignant fair ones attracted the attention of a policeman, who took the promiscuous kisser into custody.

Before the magistrate he essayed to excuse his conduct on the ground of excess of joy at the return of his son from the war. But this did not prevent the infliction of a fine to pay for two or three kisses taken without leave.—New York Telegraph.

SCORES FERGUSON AS EXPENSIVE GOVERNOR

HON. L. T. DASHIEL DENOUNCES TAX INCREASE OF PRESENT ADMINISTRATION.

Candidate Morris' Representative Says Ferguson Has Multiplied Costly Machinery.

In his address before a fair-sized audience on the court house lawn last night, arrangements for which had been made largely through the efforts of W. D. Rowell of this city, Hon. L. T. (Travis) Dashiell of Jewett, Leon county, vigorously assailed the administration of Gov. James E. Ferguson—the "business governor," as he derisively called him, and laid tremendous emphasis on the growth of the tax rate since Governor Ferguson has been in office. He defended Tom Campbell, former governor, against charges that Campbell's administration had been responsible in any manner for the need of an increased tax rate, and also stated that O. B. Colquitt had made a much better financial showing as governor than the present incumbent. Mr. Dashiell did not say much about Charles H. Morris, candidate for governor, but in closing he paid him a nice compliment in a few words, stating that he believed in him and thought that he would do what he claimed that he would do, as he was a dependable, honest, courageous, Christian gentleman and capable, he thought, of filling the position to which he aspires. He made a number of statements regarding the administration of affairs by Governor Ferguson, had manuscript with him which he stated contained verification of the figures which he presented, and stated more than once that if he could not prove his assertions he would leave the stump and would vote for Governor Ferguson. He claimed that it was the tax rate in January which had aroused him to the gravity of the situation.

Mr. Dashiell was applauded a number of times, and his address was sympathetically received. He was introduced by Dr. J. T. Harrington.

Dr. Harrington introduced Mr. Dashiell in a tactful and spicy manner, welcoming the visitor in hearty terms. He spoke briefly, saying he knew the audience wanted to hear Mr. Dashiell. Dr. Harrington said the Dashiells had stood for the very best things in Texas for many years, and had helped to redeem Texas from carpetbag rule and negro domination. He commended the speaker very highly personally, in referring to his political and social life.

Applause greeted Dr. Harrington's remarks, after which Mr. Dashiell began his address, expressing deep appreciation for Harrington before going into his Harrington before goin ginto his speech in behalf of Charles H. Morris for governor. He said he did not "bring any of the audience with him." The speaker said he had been in politics for more than two decades, and he recalled how he had aided George Clark of Waco in the 90s; he had taken no active part recently in politics, however, and had intended until January to vote for Ferguson, on the second-term principle.

GOT JOLT ON TAXES.

"But when I paid my state and county taxes in January, I made a discovery which gave me a start; I looked over that tax receipt, examined it and found the state ad valorem tax rate was 35c on the $100 valuation," said the speaker, this tax being for 1915, and included the Confederate pensions. This was the highest tax rate ever known in Texas—even worse than it was under the Edwin J. Davis regime. The speaker referred to debates he had had with populists in former years, when he had held up the Davis regime as the acme of governmental extravagance. But under a democratic administration the tax had even exceeded the Davis proposition. He found further, he said, that he had paid double the ad valorem taxes in 1915 that had been paid in 1914; he found, further, on examination, that the jump had been noticeable for the past several years.

M'LENNAN INCREASE NEARLY HUNDRED THOUSAND.

As to McLennan county,, the speaker said he found the following: In 1915 there had been paid in this county for the state government support $196,467, this being $96,605.08 more than was paid in 1914; nearly a hundred thousand dollars increase in one year! In 1915 the county paid more in taxes to the state than in 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910 combined. The increase in eight years was more than 600 per cent.

"I am not including the money paid for public education, but wish this education tax was more than it is," said Mr. Dashiell. "I am only telling you what it cost to run the state government and pay Confederate pensions."

Some one asked who was governor when the taxes were low several years ago.

"I don't like to answer that, lest some one say I am out speaking in behalf of Tom Campbell—some are saying that now," said the speaker. And he said he might have to use the lowest rate of the state in order to get a comparison, in order to show the amazing increase in taxes. The speaker said he had been chairman of the tax board in Texas four years, and when he looked over the tax receipts he knew, naturally, how to analyze them. He investigated the matter of the high taxes in 1915, and made an investigation of appropriations covering deficiencies, and the appropriations made to cover deficiencies from the Campbell administration only amounted to a little over $400; this was correct, absolutely, he said. The deficiencies coming from the Colquitt administration were not unusually large, either, and Governor Ferguson could not hide behind that in trying to explain about that $9,000,000. All Texas governors back of Ferguson had blue penciled appropriations, Colquitt with the others, in trying to hold down expenses, he continued. Ferguson had tried to lay the burden on Tom Campbell, jumping clear back over Colquitt's administration. Governor Ferguson had claimed in his Waco speech that the blind asylum had been one reason of the tax burden, but this had not been built yet, and was not included in the list in making up the 1915 taxes. Governor Ferguson claimed that Tom Campbell had left undone many things which entailed a burden on Governor Ferguson, as they had to be done later, said the speaker, but he vigorously denied this.

SAYS FERGUSON'S EXCUSES NO GOOD.

Mr. Dashiell quoted from Governor Colquitt's message a short time before he (Colquitt) gave up his office in 1915, showing that Governor Colquitt said there were no emergency needs in the way of public buildings and institutions. The speaker claimed that the showing made by Governor Colquitt was that no institutions had been neglected, and yet the "business governor"—Ferguson—had spent millions, without getting the results he should have gotten. When Colquitt went out of office there was a cash balance in the treasury of over $700,000, and matters appeared to be in good shape.

The speaker explained how the state ad valorem tax rate is determined by the governor, comptroller and state treasurer, saying that the corporations had been relieved of a great lot of taxes which had been laid on the shoulders of the ad valorem tax payers of Texas under Governor Ferguson, many new offices have been created by Governor Ferguson also and actually partitions had been put up in the state capitol building, and the Daughters of the Confederacy had actually been moved out of the building to make room for more departments and offices.

SCORES NEW DEPARTMENTS.

Of course, many departments were really needed, but there were too many, he said. The speaker referred in laughable terms to the addition of departments. He showed how fire rating boards, agricultural departments and many other state offices had been created; and as to the fire rating board the rates were higher than ever known, really prohibitive, said the speaker. The expenses of running the various departments was shown, and it was claimed that it cost twice as much to run the department in 1915 as it took in 1910. Governor Ferguson even has a "confidential adviser" at $1800 a year, and he was being paid under the plea which provides for the 'apprehension and conviction of criminals." The "confidential adviser" was a good man, all right, the speaker admitted, and had been known in the past as a "good republican." Other incidents of like character were given and the speaker added:

"It's easy to create offices, but hard as the mischief to get rid of them." He quoted from the penitentiary investigating committee report, showing that in 1911 the penitentiary system was about on a basis where it owed nothing, but in two years there was an enormous jump in expenses in that department, even the interest charges along being stupendous, over $300,000 in thirty months. He claimed bad management in the buying arrangements of the penitentiary system, in spite of the efforts of the "business governor."

KNOCKS FERGUSON'S PENAL MANAGEMENT.

This business governor had also made some bad deals in buying state farms, he said. He claimed that $50,000 in commissions went into the pockets of promoters of some of these deals.

The traveling expenses of public officials had amounted to over $400,000 in 1915, said the speaker, and the "business governor" had spent the people's money in many other ways—the Panama exposition trip of many officials of the state, for instance, and the speaker gave a number of names; the money came from the state's coffers, and he (Mr. Dashiell) called it graft. He gave items of expense of some of the travelers at the state's expense, one of these being a notation, "Lunch on diner, $2.60." Other items were given, dealing in larger amounts, and expenses at the governor's mansion had been figuring heavily since Governor Ferguson had been in office, the "incidental fund" being an expansive one, covering meat, milk, groceries, auto supplies, fruits, gasoline, feed, etc. This was all contrary to the state constitution which provides a straight salary of $4000 a year for the governor.

COMPLIMENTS MORRIS HIGHLY.

As to Charles Morris, the candidate for governor, Mr. Dashiell paid him a fine compliment as a Christian gentleman, a business man and a man who will do what he claims he will do. He thought Texas too big a state to be turned over to any man who is incapable and he believed Mr. Morris would fill the bill.

The speaker thanked the audience and the speaking ended.

AT THE HIPPODROME

At the Hippodrome Friday and Saturday.

THEATRES

HIPPODROME.

"Reggie Mixes In."

There is yet to come a Fairbanks picture that is not distinctive. With a vim and enthusiasm that carries one literally off his feet, the inexhaustible "Doug" Fairbanks "mixes in" with his newest Fine Arts feature, "Reggie Mixes In," at the Hippodrome today only. The picture is delightfully imbued with Fairbanks, and one never grows tired of him. This is because of his wonderful enthusiasm and his eternal newness. We expected the unexpected of him and we are never disappointed. Bessie Love, that appealing, sweet-faced little girl who has appeared with Fairbanks many times of late and played with William S. Hart in "The Aryan," has the role of Agnes, the tiny dancer in Gallagher's cabaret, Joseph Singleton, A. D. Sears, Frank Bennett and many extras help bring the picture to final success. Perhaps the biggest thing in the production outside of Fairbanks is the fight between the star and Frank Bennett, who plays the leader of Gallagher's gang. It is a glorious scrap without any fake or trick photography, and it is safe to say that the two combatants know they had been through the real things when the director finally called a halt.

Reggie finds Agnes, the little dancer in Gallagher's cabaret, and is at once attracted to her. When he learns that she is "straight" he throws over the society girl to whom he was engaged for pastime and who was engaged to him for his money, and goes back to Gallagher's to take Agnes away. But Agnes has another suitor, Tony, the gang leader, and Reggie does not find the taking of her easy work. There is much scrapping of an amazing and thoroughly interesting sort, and then Reggie decides to test Agnes' love in a novel manner. "Reggie Mixes In" is one of the most delightful of all the Fairbanks pictures, and certainly it is a stirring and exciting screen production.

HONOR STRIPE FOR BIRD.

Parula Warbler Has Black Band Across Its Yellow Breast.

(Philadelphia North-American.)

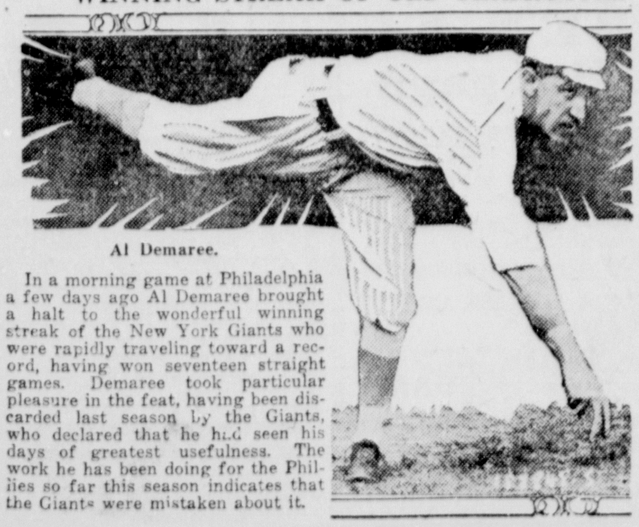
When one bird begins his springtime search for a place to build his nest, he's as cranky and as particular as a suburbanite hunting a flat in the city. The bird scurries around the woods until he finds a bunch of lichen—Spanish moss—hanging from a tree, "Here's just what I'm looking for," he says, and starts his nest. He's called the parula warbler.

No lichen, no nest. Hence, you'll find him hiding away in damp forests, or swampy thickets. It's a pity he's so particular, too, because he would be a handsome addition to the beauties which inhabit more civilized places.

He wears a coat of grayish blue, with a greenish triangle in the middle of the back. His breast is yellow and he wears a black band across it, evidently some honor decoration he has received "for valor," or perhaps for his work in ridding the forests of insect pests.

He's not half so particular about his diet. Spiders, caterpillars, small flies, plant lice, beetles—he eats them all. If Spanish moss were more plentiful the parula warbler would be an excellent aid to Mother Nature's clean-up week.

AL DEMAREE, EX-GIANT, STOPS GREAT WINNING STREAK OF OLD TEAMMATES



Al Demaree.

In a morning game at Philadelphia a few days ago Al Demaree brought a halt to the wonderful winning streak of the New York Giants who were rapidly traveling toward a record, having won seventeen straight games. Demaree took particular pleasure in the feat, having been discarded last season by the Giants, who declared that he had seen his days of greatest usefulness. The work he has been doing for the Phillies so far this season indicates that the Giants were mistaken about it.

JUSTICE PADGETT TRYING TO SEE ALL VOTERS IN PRECINCT

Justice J. J. Padgett is a very busy man just now, as he is not only giving full time to the duties of his office, but is also trying between times to see as many of the voters in his precinct as possible. He realizes that it will be impossible to see all voters, but will see every one that is at all possible, and is anxious that his friends—and he has many—shall speak a word for him where they can. His friends feel that he is not only a man of experience, but that he has done much to lay the foundations here and give to young men the splendid chances they have, so that this adds to his claim on the office, as they say his qualifications are admitted by all.

Judge Padgett came to McLennan county in 1872, and it will not be so very long until he will have been here a half century, and all that time he has done his best in the upbuilding work, materially, morally and ethically. He has held the place for which he is asking about three and a half years now, and has meted out justice fairly and impartially. He is a man who is popular with everybody, is always ready to serve the people and is therefore an ideal man for the place which he holds and for which his friends feel that he has such very strong claims.

Frank T. West for County Judge

Frank T. West, the leading candidate for county judge, was born and reared in McLennan county. Educated in the common schools of the county and in the University of Texas, he has for fourteen years been engaged in the practice of law in Waco. From early manhood he has been a close student of public affairs, and has been actively identified with a number of movements seeking to promote the public good. Now at the age of 41 years, he offers himself for this most important office, believing that he is well qualified therefor from the standpoint of both training and experience.

Mr. West believes in strict economy in the expenditure of public funds. He advocates the lowest tax rate consistent with the public interest. He is a strong believer in good roads and desires to see every road in the county permanently improved as rapidly as circumstances will permit. He believes that this county has reached a stage of development where permanent rather than temporary improvements are needed, and therefore believes that concrete should take the place of wood in the building of culverts and bridges. He advocates a steady, progressive policy in the interest of the public welfare, and is decidedly opposed to spasmodic attempts at improvements followed by wasteful periods of neglect, as in his judgment this constitutes the greatest extravagance. He believes that what improvement is made should be well and permanently done, and then carefully preserved.

He cordially solicits your support in the July primaries.

People Patronizing Charles S. Crout Keep Money in Waco

People who patronize Charles S. Crout, the Tailor, are not only patronizing a Waco establishment, but their money does not go to payng some tailor in some Eastern or Northern state for the workmanship. This establishment makes suits for all orders taken right here in Waco, and the result is that much better service is had, as there is no delay in sending the order and waiting for the suit to return.

"Buy it where they make it" is the appropriate slogan of the concern. By making the suits in the home shop, Mr. Crout produces the suits at a trifle more than the "ready-made" cost and no more than the "Made-to-order" cost. Mr. Crout is an enthusiast on keeping Texas money in Texas and believes that Wacoans have faith and are willing to trade with an establishment when they know the money spent is to pay for labor of local people rather than some employe of one of the big Eastern or Northern manufacturing companies.

"All money spent at my shop remains at home," said Mr. Crout. He shows the newest patterns in fancy and staple woolens as soon as they are offered for sale by the woolen houses, thereby insuring his trade newly manufactured woolens, and not stock that has been carried over season after season.

He receives drafts and designs of new garments as soon as they are originated by the master clothing designers of New York, which enables him to produce styles second to none.

Visitors are welcome at all times. Mr. Crout is always glad to explain to you how a suit is made.

NEFF SAYS WILL CARRY SALAD CASE TO SUPREME COURT

"We will take the 'chicken salad case' right on up to the supreme court of the state, and that without any unnecessary delay," said Hon. Pat M. Neff yesterday afternoon when informed of the decision of the Fourth court of civil appeals at San Antonio in affirming the decision of the lower court.

The decision of the lower court in the so-called "chicken salad case," was affirmed in an opinion handed down yesterday by Chief Justice Fly of the Fourth court of civil appeals. Under this State Comptroller H. B. Terrell is restrained from paying for chicken salad, punch and other edibles consumed at a reception given by former Governor O. B. Colquitt just before his retirement from that office.

The case was taken to San Antonio from Travis county on a transfer. In his decision Justice Fly holds that the state constitution of 1873 was specifically designed to promote economy in the conduct of state affairs and that it never was contemplated that the state should pay the grocery bills for the supplies used at the governor's mansion. Under this decision the bills for this reception, amounting to about $127, will have to be paid by former Governor Colquitt unless the case is reversed in an appeal to the supreme court.

Hon. Pat M. Neff represented Comptroller H. B. Terrell in this famous case, and as stated by him yesterday, the end is not yet in sight, and the case will be taken forthwith to the supreme court of the state.

D. F. Beaman Makes Chart for Study of Fuel Economy

D. F. Beaman, mechanical engineer, and chief engineer of one of the biggest industrial plants in Waco, and member also of the Society of Architects and Engineers of Waco and of the Waco Rotary club, has designed a plain, simple, comprehensive chart by which the engineer in charge of a plant can ascertain the efficiency of any kind of furnace burning coal, lignite or fuel oil. It is compiled for and is to be used by men either with or without technical training in combustion or efficiency engineering.

The chart is drawn with tabulated figures and with a diagram that directs the man at the furnace exactly how to ascertain his results. Mr. eaman says: "The main losses in the boiler room are the loss due to too much air for the burning of the coal, which is shown by the low .002, also the loss due to high flue gas or uptake temperature. Carbon dioxide of 002 shows us how much air we are using to burn the coal. The higher your furnace temperature and the lower your flue gas temperature, the more economical will be your boiler and the more water you will evaporate, per pound of fuel."

Mr. Beaman's chart shows the pounds of air used per pound of fuel, the volume of air used per pound of fuel in cubic feet, the per cent of loss when the temperature of escaping gases is known and the preventable loss for any temperature. It shows also the theoretical furnace temperature for any carban dioxide or 002 obtained and shows what results the plant is getting from the fuel and how much of the fuel is being wasted.

Mr. Beaman says: "All leading efficiency engineers claim there is a loss of between 10 and 30 per cent and as high as 40 per cent in all fuel used in this country. This is a needless waste and is exhausting the natural resources. It is possible to get nearly perfect furnace efficiency by giving it attention, and this chart is designed to show how this can be brought about."

Mr. Beaman uses this chart in his own boiler room and declares that he has increased the efficiency of his boiler plant by using it. In using the chart it is necessary to have a single orsat or a flue gas analysis instrument, also a high temperature thermometer or pyrometer, for ascertaining the temperature of escaping gases and a draft gauge to ascertain pressure in the uptake.

Free Lecture at Baylor Tonight on China and Japan

"China and Japan" will be the subject of a stereopticon lecture which will be given on the Baylor university campus this evening at 8:15 by E. W. Provence, the manager of the University Press and Book Concern. Mr. Provence spent several years in the orient as a teacher of English in the government schools, and knows the people and their customs and traditions so thoroughly that his lectures have proven very interesting, and upon preious occasions have drawn large crowds. He will illustrate the lecture with a large number of colored slides, depicting the beautiful scenery of Japan and China, the varied industries of the peole, their interesting customs, their peculiar forms of religious worship, and the many other things which attach a particular charm and mystery to the very word 'oriental.' He was also in China at the time when the yellow races were just beginning to awaken politically and come to their place among the nations of the earth.

The fact that the lectures are given in the open air in the cool evening has made them very popular with the students and with many attending them. They are a part of the plan to offer a series of interesting lectures, recitals, etc., to the summer school and normal students, and all Waco people are urged to come and enjoy them as a free treat from the university.

Working Boys Will Tell What Their Life Work Will Be

"What My Life Work Will Be" is the subject assigned the following members of the Working Boys' club for this evening: Earl Kelly, Barney Saulters, Harold McGhee, Hubert Wilson, Jesse Lee Walker, Morris Jacobson, George Hall and Clyde Threadgil. Special music for the occasion will be furnished by Mrs. J. A. Early.

Dr. R. H. Hodges, director of the organization, said last night that another special speaker will be secured for this evening's meeting.

Clay Francis Auto Repair Shop Now in New Quarters

Moving into the new hadquarters at 715-717 Franklin street, the Clay Francis Auto Repair Shop is better prepared to attend to all the wants of the motorists. The new location consists of larger quarters, greater facilities and everything that goes with the modern and up-to-the-minute automobile repair shop.

Expert mechanics are employed by the company and the best service possible is rendered those who patronize this company. Every person in its employ is one of several years' experience and is familiar with the various automobiles, their parts and are ready at any moment to do any kind of repair work.

Bring your business here and you will come again," is what Mr. Francis advertises. He believes in doing work in such a way that it will be an advertisement for the concern and will be the means of getting permanent business.

With the present equipment the Clay Francis company can handle practically anything from the radiator cap to the tail light. Everything in the store is of the latest make and with the able workmen, those who patronize this concern are guaranteed they will receive the best attention and the repair work will be of the kind which any auto repair man would feel proud of turning out.

James P. Alexander for County Judge

James P. Alexander is making a most thorough canvass in his campaign for County Judge of McLennan county. He is an energetic, industrious lawyer with considerable experience as a judge and if elected will make McLennan county a most excellent county judge. He is receiving very enthusiastic support from his friends throughout the county and feels sure that he will be successful in his race. He invites the most careful investigation of his record on the part of those who do not know him personally.

NAT HARRIS SEEKS COUNTY JUDGESHIP

The position of county judge, in a county as populous as McLennan county, is the most important one in the gift of the people, not only because of the great and varied number of legal questions coming before the county judge for determination, but also because the county judge is ex-officio chairman of the county commissioners, which have entire control of the fiscal affairs of the county. Mr. Harris, both from education and training, and experience is peculiarly qualified to discharge the many and varied duties of this important office.

Mr. Harris is a man 41 years of age, and has lived in Waco for the last twenty-four years, coming here from Mississippi. During the first four years that he lived in Waco he followed the trade of a carpenter, but being ambitious to become a lawyer, and fit himself for a wider field of usefulness, he quit the carpenter's trade and entered Baylor university at Waco, where he worked his entire way through school. Upon graduating from there in 1900 with the degree of A. B., and receiving the Master of Arts degree from that institution, he was appointed a University Scholar in Yale university, graduating from there with the degree of Master of Arts in 1902.

After finishing his literary studies at Yale, Mr. Harris went to Washington City, and there entered the law department of George Washington university, and upon the completion of his work there in 1904 received the degree of Bachelor of Laws. The next year and a half he spent in postgraduate study in law in George Washington university.

Returning to Waco in 1906, Mr. Harris entered the active practice of law, and when Mr. Neff became county attorney that year, he appointed Mr. Harris as one of his assistants. Serving in this capacity for two years, Mr. Harris was then elected justice of the peace of precinct No. 1, McLennan county, Texas, and served as justice of the peace until December, 1910, since which time he has been engaged in the active practice of the law.

In every sense of the word, Mr. Harris is a self-made man, having had to work his entire way through school. In his personal life he stands for that which is clean and right; and he invites the closest investigation of his personal life and habits. During his tenure of office as justice of the peace, he was fearless in the discharge of his duties, impartial in his judgments and discharged the duties of his office faithfully and efficiently.

In his candidacy for county judge, he stands for the faithful discchargе of the duties of the office, under the law, for an efficient and economical administration of the country's fiscal affairs, and for a square deal to all.—Pol. Adv.

New Refrigerator Saves Ice Bills

Summer time brings up the question of ice, and in many communities this is quite a problem. This problem has been solved to a great extent by Walkup Bros., one of Waco's prominent manufacturers, who have gotten out an iceless refrigerator. This refrigerator will save you its price in the cost of ice in three months, and will keep your milk, butter, eggs, fruit, vegetables, and in fact everything in the way of provisions in perfect condition. There is a lot of information with reference to the iceless refrigerator which can be gotten by a postal card addressed to Walkup Bros., at Waco, Texas, and the readers of the Trade Edition of the Waco Morning News are cordially invited to make a thorough investigation of this home convenience.

The iceless refrigerator is built upon the old home principle of cooling by air currents. This principle has been scientifically worked out by the manufacturers, and the result is a practical, inexpensive, easily kept and sightly contrivance, rightly known as an iceless refrigerator. It is in reality one of the most practical conveniences to be found on the market, and is novel in its ingenuity and adaptability. Hundreds and hundreds of satisfied customers are using this iceless refrigerator throughout the rural districts and small towns where ice is not easily and cheaply obtainable, and by Waco people who desire a cheap and practical method of taking care of their provisions.

Small Fruit Crop.

The Bexar county fruit crop will be exceptionally small this year, due to late cold weather, according to County Commissioner J. K. Lamm, who owns a large orchard south of San Antonio. Mr. Lamm said he does not expect half a crop.

"Everything seemed right for an exceptionally large crop this year," said Mr. Lamm. "Then came the cold weather late in March, just when some of the trees were budding and all of them full of sap. The buds were destroyed and the crop will be small. The same conditions prevail throughout the county."

JUSTICE PADGETT TRYING TO SEE ALL VOTERS IN PRECINCT

Justice J. J. Padgett is a very busy man just now, as he is not only giving full time to the duties of his office, but is also trying between times to see as many of the voters in his precinct as possible. He realizes that it will be impossible to see all voters, but will see every one that is at all possible, and is anxious that his friends—and he has many—shall speak a word for him where they can. His friends feel that he is not only a man of experience, but that he has done much to lay the foundations here and give to young men the splendid chances they have, so that this adds to his claim on the office, as they say his qualifications are admitted by all.

Judge Padgett came to McLennan county in 1872, and it will not be so very long until he will have been here a half century, and all that time he has done his best in the upbuilding work, materially, morally and ethically. He has held the place for which he is asking about three and a half years now, and has meted out justice fairly and impartially. He is a man who is popular with everybody, is always ready to serve the people and is therefore an ideal man for the place which he holds and for which his friends feel that he has such very strong claims.

Frank T. West for County Judge

Frank T. West, the leading candidate for county judge, was born and reared in McLennan county. Educated in the common schools of the county and in the University of Texas, he has for fourteen years been engaged in the practice of law in Waco. From early manhood he has been a close student of public affairs, and has been actively identified with a number of movements seeking to promote the public good. Now at the age of 41 years, he offers himself for this most important office, believing that he is well qualified therefor from the standpoint of both training and experience.

Mr. West believes in strict economy in the expenditure of public funds. He advocates the lowest tax rate consistent with the public interest. He is a strong believer in good roads and desires to see every road in the county permanently improved as rapidly as circumstances will permit. He believes that this county has reached a stage of development where permanent rather than temporary improvements are needed, and therefore believes that concrete should take the place of wood in the building of culverts and bridges. He advocates a steady, progressive policy in the interest of the public welfare, and is decidedly opposed to spasmodic attempts at improvements followed by wasteful periods of neglect, as in his judgment this constitutes the greatest extravagance. He believes that what improvement is made should be well and permanently done, and then carefully preserved.

He cordially solicits your support in the July primaries.

People Patronizing Charles S. Crout Keep Money in Waco

People who patronize Charles S. Crout, the Tailor, are not only patronizing a Waco establishment, but their money does not go to payng some tailor in some Eastern or Northern state for the workmanship. This establishment makes suits for all orders taken right here in Waco, and the result is that much better service is had, as there is no delay in sending the order and waiting for the suit to return.

"Buy it where they make it" is the appropriate slogan of the concern. By making the suits in the home shop, Mr. Crout produces the suits at a trifle more than the "ready-made" cost and no more than the "Made-to-order" cost. Mr. Crout is an enthusiast on keeping Texas money in Texas and believes that Wacoans have faith and are willing to trade with an establishment when they know the money spent is to pay for labor of local people rather than some employe of one of the big Eastern or Northern manufacturing companies.

"All money spent at my shop remains at home," said Mr. Crout. He shows the newest patterns in fancy and staple woolens as soon as they are offered for sale by the woolen houses, thereby insuring his trade newly manufactured woolens, and not stock that has been carried over season after season.

He receives drafts and designs of new garments as soon as they are originated by the master clothing designers of New York, which enables him to produce styles second to none.

Visitors are welcome at all times. Mr. Crout is always glad to explain to you how a suit is made.

NEFF SAYS WILL CARRY SALAD CASE TO SUPREME COURT

"We will take the 'chicken salad case' right on up to the supreme court of the state, and that without any unnecessary delay," said Hon. Pat M. Neff yesterday afternoon when informed of the decision of the Fourth court of civil appeals at San Antonio in affirming the decision of the lower court.

The decision of the lower court in the so-called "chicken salad case," was affirmed in an opinion handed down yesterday by Chief Justice Fly of the Fourth court of civil appeals. Under this State Comptroller H. B. Terrell is restrained from paying for chicken salad, punch and other edibles consumed at a reception given by former Governor O. B. Colquitt just before his retirement from that office.

The case was taken to San Antonio from Travis county on a transfer. In his decision Justice Fly holds that the state constitution of 1873 was specifically designed to promote economy in the conduct of state affairs and that it never was contemplated that the state should pay the grocery bills for the supplies used at the governor's mansion. Under this decision the bills for this reception, amounting to about $127, will have to be paid by former Governor Colquitt unless the case is reversed in an appeal to the supreme court.

Hon. Pat M. Neff represented Comptroller H. B. Terrell in this famous case, and as stated by him yesterday, the end is not yet in sight, and the case will be taken forthwith to the supreme court of the state.

D. F. Beaman Makes Chart for Study of Fuel Economy

D. F. Beaman, mechanical engineer, and chief engineer of one of the biggest industrial plants in Waco, and member also of the Society of Architects and Engineers of Waco and of the Waco Rotary club, has designed a plain, simple, comprehensive chart by which the engineer in charge of a plant can ascertain the efficiency of any kind of furnace burning coal, lignite or fuel oil. It is compiled for and is to be used by men either with or without technical training in combustion or efficiency engineering.

The chart is drawn with tabulated figures and with a diagram that directs the man at the furnace exactly how to ascertain his results. Mr. eaman says: "The main losses in the boiler room are the loss due to too much air for the burning of the coal, which is shown by the low .002, also the loss due to high flue gas or uptake temperature. Carbon dioxide of 002 shows us how much air we are using to burn the coal. The higher your furnace temperature and the lower your flue gas temperature, the more economical will be your boiler and the more water you will evaporate, per pound of fuel."

Mr. Beaman's chart shows the pounds of air used per pound of fuel, the volume of air used per pound of fuel in cubic feet, the per cent of loss when the temperature of escaping gases is known and the preventable loss for any temperature. It shows also the theoretical furnace temperature for any carban dioxide or 002 obtained and shows what results the plant is getting from the fuel and how much of the fuel is being wasted.

Mr. Beaman says: "All leading efficiency engineers claim there is a loss of between 10 and 30 per cent and as high as 40 per cent in all fuel used in this country. This is a needless waste and is exhausting the natural resources. It is possible to get nearly perfect furnace efficiency by giving it attention, and this chart is designed to show how this can be brought about."

Mr. Beaman uses this chart in his own boiler room and declares that he has increased the efficiency of his boiler plant by using it. In using the chart it is necessary to have a single orsat or a flue gas analysis instrument, also a high temperature thermometer or pyrometer, for ascertaining the temperature of escaping gases and a draft gauge to ascertain pressure in the uptake.

OFFERINGS TO PHARR SOLDIER BOYS HEAVY

If the packages for the soldiers of Camp Pharr continue to pour into the concentration points as they have been doing for the last few days, arrangements will be made for a midweek shipment. Although a shipment was made Tuesday night, and another will not be made until Saturday night, articles began pouring into Sanger's, Goldstein-Migel's, The Famous and Freund's Cigar Store early Wednesday morning, and continued to come in all during the day.

Yesterday nine boxes of cakes, candies and "goodies" were brought to Goldstein-Migel's, and most of them during the morning. As soon as the information covering the shipping is well known by all, it is assured that the shipments to Camp Pharr will be more often and heavier.

The Wells-Fargo Express company is shipping the presents to the soldiers free of charge, on condition that the small packages be boxed by the stores that are acting as concentration points. The shipments which are now made regularly on Tuesday and Saturday nights at 8 o'clock, reach the boys on the border on the second day following the shipment at midday.

It is cautioned, in order that the soft articles included in the shipment may be handled with safety, that all pies, cakes and preserved fruits and other soft foodstuffs be well packed in strong boxes that will thoroughly protect the articles during the shipment. The next consignment will be shipped Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Freshly baked foods may be brought down to the collecting points on the evening that the shipments will be made and arrive in the best of condition, and inside of thirty-six hours will be serving their mission of gladdening the hearts and stomachs of the soldiers.

MADE MUNICIPAL WAREHOUSE POSSIBLE

When Waco desired to install a municipal warehouse, it was Sem Nix, public weigher, who made it possible. He handled all the cotton that came into the warehouse, at a great expense, classed every bale of it, and helped sell almost all that has been sold out of the warehouse.

Now Mr. Nix is a candidate for re-election and his friends are confident that the citizens will again honor him with the position. The community can well afford to retain the services of the man who has shown his willingness to co-operate in anything tending to help out conditions, even if it costs him money to do so.

Since Mr. Nix has spent most of his life in and around Waco, he needs no introduction to the voters. He has made a distinct success as public weigher, his private and public life is beyond reproach, and, with his many qualifications, he is the logical man for the place.—Political Advertisement.

Prof. W. J. Barcus.

Perhaps no candidacy has provoked more favorable comment than that of Prof. W. J. Barcus for county superintendent.

From every section of the county he has received the heartiest assurances of support and he feels confident of the nomination.

Fourteen years ago Mr. Barcus was elected to the office which he now seeks.

In that race he was opposed by the present superintendent and Mr. Barcus won by a small margin.

After six years in office he voluntarily retired in favor of his former opponent, who has held the position for the past eight years.

Mr. Barcus is anxious that those who do not know him should make some inquiry as to his work as superintendent.

The strong following which he has among the teachers, as well as the hearty support of a large number of the trustees, is evidence that his former administration was altogether satisfactory.

Mr. Barcus is making an active canvass and hopes to see every voter before the primary.—Pol. Adv.

WACO CANDIDATE FOR U. S. SENATOR IS SELF MADE MAN

S. P. Brooks was born in Milledgeville, Georgia, and in his early youth removed with his father, a Baptist preacher, to Johnson county, Texas. At the age of twenty he was an almost untutored driver of spikes and shoveller of dirt on a Texas railroad; at thirty he was a university graduate; and at thirty-nine, over a roadbed that was smoother because of his labor with pick and spade, he traveled to Waco to be inaugurated president of Baylor university.

S. P. BROOKS, Waco, Texas, Candidate for United States Senator.

Dr. Brooks is a democrat, fighting men and measures prior to the primaries but never thereafter scratching a ticket. He is an ardent supporter of President Woodrow Wilson and his administration of foreign and domestic affairs.

He is opposed to all graft in the issuance of pensions and excessive mileage to members of congress. He opposes the "pork barrel," this being a term of approach applied to the use of funds for political purposes. He is in favor of prohibition without limit of geographical bounds in the United States. He favors farm loan banks and rural credit associations. He believes that congress should adopt the budget system in the expenditure of the people's money, this system involving careful estimates of all departments and recommendations as to how the money should be raised. He is in favor of adding the chiefs of the health and education departments of the United States government to the cabinet of the president. He believes that stringent child-labor laws should be passed, so that young children, almost babies, should not be permitted to work in mills and factories, when by right, they should be in schools. He favors promoting all legitimate business and manufacturing industries, and all laws favorable to the protection of those who labor. He favors a federal warehouse law not in conflict with existing state warehouse and market laws. A vote for Brooks is a vote for progress.

Local Naval Station Will Have Part in Today's Trade Trip

Gunner's Mate S. N. Updegraff of the local naval recruiting station will accompany the trade trippers when they go to Palestine this morning. In reply to a letter written by Capt. J. R. Hair of the local station to J. J. Cunningham of Dallas, in charge of the recruiting stations of the southwestern district, permission was granted for a representative of the local station to go on the trip. Mr. Updegraff will carry a full supply of posters, dodgers, diamond hangers for display in commercial houses and a gripful of pamphlets relating to the different branches of the naval service. It was thought that this trip would be beneficial to the service for the same reason that it would be beneficial for the Y. M. B. L. —it is an uninvaded territory. There are no recruiting stations or representatives of the navy in this part of the country, and as no campaign has been made to secure recruits for Uncle Sam in this territory it is thought by Mr. Updegraff that his accompanying the trade trip will yield results.

Literature will be passed out at all stations where a stop is made and pamphlets containing information of the life in the navy will be handed out to the crowds.

Y M C A Boy Campers Still Discussing Fish Catch

The older boy campers of the Y. M. C. A. who returned from Clifton Monday night reported that the largest fish that was caught by any member of the camp weighed three pounds and nine ounces. One trip to the trot-line brought a thirty-one pound haul of catfish. Baseball was the principal sport during the trip, several games having been played with teams composed of outsiders. The "Y" team in a game with the Clifton team was defeated, 10 to 8. They retaliated, however, by beating the Corsicana Y. M. C. A. team 8 to 4.

The campers went into Clifton in a body Sunday morning and attended the Methodist church. They reported that they were treated with much consideration by the people of Clifton and the farmers in the vicinity, and all are anxious to go on another camp next summer.

"Y" Chess Tourney Starts Today

The entries in the Y. M. C. A. chess tourney will be divided into two sections of eight each, every man playing two games with all others in his section. The winners of the two sections will play five games to decide the final championship. The games between the section members may be played at any time or place that they may choose. It is desired that all the games in this tourney be played off by the first day of July, so that the second summer tourney may begin. The two sections are composed of the following:

Section No. 1—J. C. Cook, Allen Hall, R. Hoffman, Dr. J. L. Downs, Rev. E. E. Ingram, N. M. Gay, C. J. Schenck, S. R. Hankins.

Section No. 2—B. G. McKie, J. A. Lemke, R. L. Edwards, Dr. E. Toomim, E. E. Fitzhugh, Sid Gay, E. Rotan and C. H. Babb.

Wm. Blanton Company Prosperous New Waco Concern

The William Blanton company is a new concern in Waco, but has started out in business as if it were several years old. This company is headed by William Blanton, a young man of pleasing personality, a business getter, and a conscientious hard worker. For the last five years he has been associated with the progressive printing concerns of Waco, and his success in his new business venture is another chapter in the book of evidence that Waco is open to the live, progressive individual that means business, and that will back up his ideals with progress, energy and painstaking effort. The William Blanton company is agent for the National line of loose leaf system, and Security line of filing equipment, as well as being manufacturer of all kinds of stationery.

Their business is growing by leaps and bounds. They are giving the public a service that entitles them to the phenomenal success that they have experienced.

The William Blanton company has recently sold stock to F. M. Johnson of Dallas, who becomes the mechanical superintendent. He is recognized as one of the best pressmen in the state; he has had many years of experience in Waco as well as in many other cities around. He has been foreman in some of the largest plants in the southwest, which makes him a valuable asset to the company. Mr. Johnson says that after considering several locations in the state, Waco looks best to him, and he has come to stay.

Perhaps there is no concern in Waco that has made such rapid progress as the William Blanton company. They entered the field less than three months ago, and they have built up a business that would do credit to a concern with years of experience in the business. They cordially invite the public and especially the population reached by the Trade Edition of the Waco Morning News on its accompanying trip with the Y. M. B. L. Trade Excursion, to give them a share of their business.

OFFERINGS TO PHARR SOLDIER BOYS HEAVY

If the packages for the soldiers of Camp Pharr continue to pour into the concentration points as they have been doing for the last few days, arrangements will be made for a midweek shipment. Although a shipment was made Tuesday night, and another will not be made until Saturday night, articles began pouring into Sanger's, Goldstein-Migel's, The Famous and Freund's Cigar Store early Wednesday morning, and continued to come in all during the day.

Yesterday nine boxes of cakes, candies and "goodies" were brought to Goldstein-Migel's, and most of them during the morning. As soon as the information covering the shipping is well known by all, it is assured that the shipments to Camp Pharr will be more often and heavier.

The Wells-Fargo Express company is shipping the presents to the soldiers free of charge, on condition that the small packages be boxed by the stores that are acting as concentration points. The shipments which are now made regularly on Tuesday and Saturday nights at 8 o'clock, reach the boys on the border on the second day following the shipment at midday.

It is cautioned, in order that the soft articles included in the shipment may be handled with safety, that all pies, cakes and preserved fruits and other soft foodstuffs be well packed in strong boxes that will thoroughly protect the articles during the shipment. The next consignment will be shipped Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Freshly baked foods may be brought down to the collecting points on the evening that the shipments will be made and arrive in the best of condition, and inside of thirty-six hours will be serving their mission of gladdening the hearts and stomachs of the soldiers.

MADE MUNICIPAL WAREHOUSE POSSIBLE

When Waco desired to install a municipal warehouse, it was Sem Nix, public weigher, who made it possible. He handled all the cotton that came into the warehouse, at a great expense, classed every bale of it, and helped sell almost all that has been sold out of the warehouse.

Now Mr. Nix is a candidate for reelection and his friends are confident that the citizens will again honor him with the position. The community can well afford to retain the services of the man who has shown his willingness to co-operate in anything tending to help out conditions, even if it costs him money to do so.

Since Mr. Nix has spent most of his life in and around Waco, he needs no introduction to the voters. He has made a distinct success as public weigher, his private and public life is beyond reproach, and, with his many qualifications, he is the logical man for the place.—Political Advertisement.

BAPTIST HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN PROGRESS DECLARED FAVORABLE

The campaign in behalf of the big hospital to be erected here by the Baptists of central Texas is progressing favorably, despite the fact that business has not yet opened up freely in Texas, and Rev. F. S. Groner, who is in charge of the work of raising the funds with which to start this institution on its work of humanitarianism and scientific alleviation of disease and pain, feels encouraged to believe that within a reasonable time the effort will be brought to a successful culmination.

The subscriptions to the hospital will cover a wide range, and every person who contributes will feel a personal interest in the institution. Members of the committee which is leading in this work will look carefully into hospital propositions, in fact, the members have already been studying all phases of hospital construction, and when the time for building comes will have practical suggestions to make.

Matters are progressing towards the building stage, and when this shall be reached, everything will have been planned so that there will be the minimum of delay.

McLennan County Pro Democrats to Meet Saturday

Prohibition democrats of McLennan county are called to meet in Waco Saturday, June 17, for the purpose of organizing the campaign for submission, the call being as follows:

Waco, June 14.

To the Prohibitionists of McLennan County:

In accordance with the request of the Fort Worth meeting, which organized for the state campaign, and of Mr. M. H. Wolfe, state chairman, I hereby call a mass meeting of those who favor the submission of the prohibition issue to the people, to be held at the court house in the room of the Fifty-fourth district court, on Saturday, June 17th, at 2 o'clock p. m. The purpose of the meeting will be to organize for the campaign in this county. Friends, be present.

CRATE DALTON.

State Call Issued.

Dallas, June 14.—M. F. Wolfe, chairman of the newly formed organization to campaign for the success of the submission amendment in the July 23 primary, today issued a call for meetings to be held in every county seat of Texas Saturday, June 17, for the purpose of forming subsidiary county organizations for the furtherance of the campaign.

At the same time the state executive committee of the submission campaign will meet in Dallas.

Visitor Says Plains Country Is Growing Very Rapidly

That the plains country is developing rapidly, and that an era of progress and prosperity has set in there, is the opinion of Dr. J .A. Craven, who visits that part of the state often, and who is going out there next week.

"There are a hundred houses going up in Lubbock right now, and the country in Lubbock and other adjoining counties is developing as fast as the towns," said Dr. Craven yesterday.

He says that good seasons have prevailed for the past few years, and that as the country settles the people are becoming less and less dependent on the seasons, as they are learning how to handle the land, are establishing sources of water supply, putting in the land rapidly, and are developing generally.

Gurley School Benefit.

The Gurley school Mothers' club will give an ice cream supper at Mrs. Pardo's, Twelfth and Gurley streets, Thursday evening, June 15th. A program will also be rendered. Everyone is cordially invited to come and bring some one.

Rebekah Lodge Elects Officers

At the regular session of the Rebekah degree of Odd Fellows Tuesday night at the Odd Fellows' hall, the following officers were elected: Mrs. J. A. Richards, noble grand; Dr. Ellen Gildersleeve, vice-grand; William Robertson, secretary.

Under the "Good of the order," J. A. Richards in an eloquent, appreciative talk presented a past grand emblem to Mrs. Ada Thompson Chaviers for her faithful and well-done work. This was a token of the high esteem in which she is held by all the members. She was also presented with a handsome bouquet of cut flowers, in pink and green, the steadfast friendship and eternal love of the Rebekah degree.

The outgoing noble grand, Mrs. Gregg Lawson, was presented with a past grand emblem by William Robertson, who in a few well-chosen words told of the earnest efforts she had made to build up this lodge and this one way of showing how well the members appreciated her wonderful success; another way was the shower that the ladies of the lodge gave her. Mrs. Lawson will be away all of the summer, visiting in Colorado and other far-away points, so the ladies of the lodge presented her with a complete traveling set and with hand-made articles in abundance, and a huge cake, which she generously shared with those present.

Fire Marshal Asks for Adherence to Sign Ordinance

It was stated yesterday by City Fire Marshal J. A. Carlisle that all signs which are to be erected by business men of the city must pass through the city commission and must conform to the regulations laid down in the code of the state fire marshal, as otherwise signs might be put up which would be in violation of these regulations.

He stated that all parties putting up signs on buildings, in front of buildings, on walls or posts, must come before the city commission and get permission.

This plan will be rigidly adhered to, said the city fire marshal.

Peter Stafford of Waco Was Aboard Historic Alabama When It Was Sunk by Yankees in '64

There is living in Waco, in comparative obscurity, a man who during the Civil war rendered much service on the good ship Alabama of immortal fame, and he has the proud distinction of having stayed with the Alabama until she was finally sunk off the northern coast of France by the federal battleship Kearsarge in 1864.

This man is Peter Stafford, who was born in County Waxford, Ireland, in 1831, so that he is now 85 years old, but his mind is still bright, his hearing fairly good and he recalls the chief incidents of the checkered career which was his during those days with a good deal of clearness, albeit the dates are getting a little too much for him, a fact which he candidly admits. Stafford is now suffering occasionally from rheumatism, and a cataract is troubling him, these conditions causing his mind to turn toward the Confederate home at Austin, and he said yesterday that he guessed he would soon go there.

Telling yesterday of his experiences he said that he came to the United States in the early 50s, landing in Canada, going from there to Cincinnati, New Orleans and Mobile; he was in fact in Mobile when the war broke out between the states, and after he went into the Confederate service one of his first trips was to Cuba in an effort to run the blockade with a cargo of cotton which his commander had. After many exciting experiences the blockade was run, the cotton taken to Havana and sold, the ship buying arms, ammunition and food for the Confederates and taking them to Point Isabel, Texas, in an effort to get through, but this time the federals were luckier, and a man of war captured the boat. When it was found that Stafford was an Irishman he and two or three others were released within a day or two by the captain of the federal man of war.

Stafford, nothing daunted by his experience, made two or three other similar trips to Havana, Cuba, and it was on one of these trips that he became one of the men who manned the Alabama, which was then creating such havoc with federal shipping, sinking many boats after part of the things had been taken from boats held up.

NEVER SCUTTLED WHEN MEN ON BOARD.

"We sank lots of boats—a great many indeed, but we never sank a boat until every living soul had been taken off and provided for," said Stafford yesterday. Stafford said the Alabama continued to do great execution for some time after he went on board, but he did not recall just how long he was there, and that had it not been for the fact that the ship was not allowed to stay in any harbor long enough to thoroughly repair and refit, he thinks she would have done still greater execution; Stafford declares that finally the slime and barnacles on the ship got to be such an incubus that she was not quite as effective as formerly, and that it was realized that she would have to be scraped and overhauled if she kept up the great work she was doing.

Finally the Alabama went into port in northern France for coal and hoping to get a chance to repair some, and Captain Semmes, the brave commander, hoped to be able to get out before his presence was detected by the enemy, or at least to be able to slip out safely. But it became apparent, when the time limit for stopping in the harbor was about up, that there was stern business on hand. Talking of the fateful hour when the Alabama commander decided to make a dash for the sea, Stafford yesterday recited with flashing eyes the incidents preceding the dash, everybody on board realizing that there was little chance, for the formidable Kearsarge, commanded by Captain Winslow, stood outside with her front and sides protected by heavy chains and bristling with grim-looking cannon. Omitting Stafford's brogue, which was quite pleasing, a few sentences are here quoted regarding the momentous hour:

"We were piped to the forecastle by Captain Semmes, as brave a man as ever trod shoe leather, and he told us what was waiting outside. Then he said: 'Men, we're going out there, and if there's a coward on the Alabama we want him to get on that wharf right now, for we want only brave men to handle this business.' Not a single man stepped ashore, but instead we gave three cheers and told him we were ready. Then we made a dash, intending to ram the Kearsarge and sink her that way if we could, even if we went down, and we did hit her, too, but we made no impression on her, she had been so wrapped in chains and armor. She was throwing shot and shell into us like mad all the time, and when we got at grips with her she gave us a whole broadside that very soon caused the grand old Alabama to begin to settle, and not long after that she went down. It was a terrible struggle, and the noise was deafening. I was not injured, except a bad splinter thrust into my hand and wrist, the scar being there still. The water was full of men who had jumped overboard from the Alabama, and an English boat, the Deerhound, was picking them up as fast as she could; and I want to be fair enough to say that the Kearsarge lowered boats, too, and tried to save the men who were in the water, after she had sunk the Alabama."

HAS BEEN IN WACO MAN YYEARS.

Stafford came back to America after that, landed in New York, and stayed there until the close of the war. The Alabama was sunk on June 19, 1864, so it was not so long until the war closed. Stafford said that he went from New York to St. Louis, then dropped down to Memphis, and that he settled in Waco soon after the war. He remembers when the old court house at Franklin and Second streets was built, this being an imposing building at that time. He has worked for the city quite a good deal first and last, being foreman for awhile of the street gutter forces, in charge of work on catch basins for a time, paving street crossings, and in other useful work. He went back to Europe in 1894, but only stayed a few months, his heart turning back to the country of his adoption.

Stafford is now staying on South Seventh street, between Franklin and Mary streets ,and enjoys but few comforts, though he is uniformly cheerful and courteous. His plan is almost formed to go to the Confederate home at Austin, as he is now too old to try any work of taxing character. Up to the present he has never asked for a pension, but his friends think his idea of going to the home is a proper step.

BAPTIST HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN PROGRESS DECLARED FAVORABLE

The campaign in behalf of the big hospital to be erected here by the Baptists of central Texas is progressing favorably, despite the fact that business has not yet opened up freely in Texas, and Rev. F. S. Groner, who is in charge of the work of raising the funds with which to start this institution on its work of humanitarianism and scientific alleviation of disease and pain, feels encouraged to believe that within a reasonable time the effort will be brought to a successful culmination.

The subscriptions to the hospital will cover a wide range, and every person who contributes will feel a personal interest in the institution. Members of the committee which is leading in this work will look carefully into hospital propositions, in fact, the members have already been studying all phases of hospital construction, and when the time for building comes will have practical suggestions to make.

Matters are progressing towards the building stage, and when this shall be reached, everything will have been planned so that there will be the minimum of delay.

McLennan County Pro Democrats to Meet Saturday

Prohibition democrats of McLennan county are called to meet in Waco Saturday, June 17, for the purpose of organizing the campaign for submission, the call being as follows:

Waco, June 14.

To the Prohibitionists of McLennan County:

In accordance with the request of the Fort Worth meeting, which organized for the state campaign, and of Mr. M. H. Wolfe, state chairman, I hereby call a mass meeting of those who favor the submission of the prohibition issue to the people, to be held at the court house in the room of the Fifty-fourth district court, on Saturday, June 17th, at 2 o'clock p. m. The purpose of the meeting will be to organize for the campaign in this county. Friends, be present.

CRATE DALTON.

State Call Issued.

Dallas, June 14.—M. F. Wolfe, chairman of the newly formed organization to campaign for the success of the submission amendment in the July 22 primary, today issued a call for meetings to be held in every county seat of Texas Saturday, June 17, for the purpose of forming subsidiary county organizations for the furtherance of the campaign.

At the same time the state executive committee of the submission campaign will meet in Dallas.

Visitor Says Plains Country Is Growing Very Rapidly

That the plains country is developing rapidly, and that an era of progress and prosperity has set in there, is the opinion of Dr. J .A. Craven, who visits that part of the state often, and who is going out there next week.

"There are a hundred houses going up in Lubbock right now, and the country in Lubbock and other adjoining counties is developing as fast as the towns," said Dr. Craven yesterday.

He says that good seasons have prevailed for the past few years, and that as the country settles the people are becoming less and less dependent on the seasons, as they are learning how to handle the land, are establishing sources of water supply, putting in the land rapidly, and are developing generally.

Gurley School Benefit.

The Gurley school Mothers' club will give an ice cream supper at Mrs. Pardo's, Twelfth and Gurley streets, Thursday evening, June 15th. A program will also be rendered. Everyone is cordially invited to come and bring some one.

Rebekah Lodge Elects Officers

At the regular session of the Rebekah degree of Odd Fellows Tuesday night at the Odd Fellows' hall, the following officers were elected: Mrs. J. A. Richards, noble grand; Dr. Ellen Gildersleeve, vice-grand; William Robertson, secretary.

Under the "Good of the order," J. A. Richards in an eloquent, appreciative talk presented a past grand emblem to Mrs. Ada Thompson Chaviers for her faithful and well-done work. This was a token of the high esteem in which she is held by all the members. She was also presented with a handsome bouquet of cut flowers, in pink and green, the steadfast friendship and eternal love of the Rebekah degree.

The outgoing noble grand, Mrs. Gregg Lawson, was presented with a past grand emblem by William Robertson, who in a few well-chosen words told of the earnest efforts she had made to build up this lodge and this one way of showing how well the members appreciated her wonderful success; another way was the shower that the ladies of the lodge gave her. Mrs. Lawson will be away all of the summer, visiting in Colorado and other far-away points, so the ladies of the lodge presented her with a complete traveling set and with hand-made articles in abundance, and a huge cake, which she generously shared with those present.

Fire Marshal Asks for Adherence to Sign Ordinance

It was stated yesterday by City Fire Marshal J. A. Carlisle that all signs which are to be erected by business men of the city must pass through the city commission and must conform to the regulations laid down in the code of the state fire marshal, as otherwise signs might be put up which would be in violation of these regulations.

He stated that all parties putting up signs on buildings, in front of buildings, on walls or posts, must come before the city commission and get permission.

This plan will be rigidly adhered to, said the city fire marshal.

Peter Stafford of Waco Was Aboard Historic Alabama When It Was Sunk by Yankees in '64

There is living in Waco, in comparative obscurity, a man who during the Civil war rendered much service on the good ship Alabama of immortal fame, and he has the proud distinction of having stayed with the Alabama until she was finally sunk off the northern coast of France by the federal battleship Kearsarge in 1864.

This man is Peter Stafford, who was born in County Waxford, Ireland, in 1831, so that he is now 85 years old, but his mind is still bright, his hearing fairly good and he recalls the chief incidents of the checkered career which was his during those days with a good deal of clearness, albeit the dates are getting a little too much for him, a fact which he candidly admits. Stafford is now suffering occasionally from rheumatism, and a cataract is troubling him, these conditions causing his mind to turn toward the Confederate home at Austin, and he said yesterday that he guessed he would soon go there.

Telling yesterday of his experiences he said that he came to the United States in the early 50s, landing in Canada, going from there to Cincinnati, New Orleans and Mobile; he was in fact in Mobile when the war broke out between the states, and after he went into the Confederate service one of his first trips was to Cuba in an effort to run the blockade with a cargo of cotton which his commander had. After many exciting experiences the blockade was run, the cotton taken to Havana and sold, the ship buying arms, ammunition and food for the Confederates and taking them to Point Isabel, Texas, in an effort to get through, but this time the federals were luckier, and a man of war captured the boat. When it was found that Stafford was an Irishman he and two or three others were released within a day or two by the captain of the federal man of war.

Stafford, nothing daunted by his experience, made two or three other similar trips to Havana, Cuba, and it was on one of these trips that he became one of the men who manned the Alabama, which was then creating such havoc with federal shipping, sinking many boats after part of the things had been taken from boats held up.

NEVER SCUTTLED WHEN MEN ON BOARD.

"We sank lots of boats—a great many indeed, but we never sank a boat until every living soul had been taken off and provided for," said Stafford yesterday. Stafford said the Alabama continued to do great execution for some time after he went on board, but he did not recall just how long he was there, and that had it not been for the fact that the ship was not allowed to stay in any harbor long enough to thoroughly repair and refit, he thinks she would have done still greater execution; Stafford declares that finally the slime and barnacles on the ship got to be such an incubus that she was not quite as effective as formerly, and that it was realized that she would have to be scraped and overhauled if she kept up the great work she was doing.

Finally the Alabama went into port in northern France for coal and hoping to get a chance to repair some, and Captain Semmes, the brave commander, hoped to be able to get out before his presence was detected by the enemy, or at least to be able to slip out safely. But it became apparent, when the time limit for stopping in the harbor was about up, that there was stern business on hand. Talking of the fateful hour when the Alabama commander decided to make a dash for the sea, Stafford yesterday recited with flashing eyes the incidents preceding the dash, everybody on board realizing that there was little chance, for the formidable Kearsarge, commanded by Captain Winslow, stood outside with her front and sides protected by heavy chains and bristling with grim-looking cannon. Omitting Stafford's brogue, which was quite pleasing, a few sentences are here quoted regarding the momentous hour:

"We were piped to the forecastle by Captain Semmes, as brave a man as ever trod shoe leather, and he told us what was waiting outside. Then he said: 'Men, we're going out there, and if there's a coward on the Alabama we want him to get on that wharf right now, for we want only brave men to handle this business.' Not a single man stepped ashore, but instead we gave three cheers and told him we were ready. Then we made a dash, intending to ram the Kearsarge and sink her that way if we could, even if we went down, and we did hit her, too, but we made no impression on her, she had been so wrapped in chains and armor. She was throwing shot and shell into us like mad all the time, and when we got at grips with her she gave us a whole broadside that very soon caused the grand old Alabama to begin to settle, and not long after that she went down. Marlin Hot Mineral Water Cures Rheumatism. Deepest and Strongest Hot Mineral Wells in the World.

Everyone needs a change and vacation at least once a year, to gain new enthusiasm, to meet the people from other sections of the country and to get new ideas and new inspiration for his own work.

You can thus do twelve months good work in eleven months time, but never twelve months good work by plodding along the same way each day of the year.

You take stock of your business once a year; why not take stock of your physical condition once a year, as good health helps so much to make your business and your whole life a success?

E. E. Rittenhouse, the great life insurance authority, says and proves by statistics, that deaths from chronic diseases have doubled in the past thirty years. These chronic diseases of the heart, kidneys, nervous system, and blood vessels, that creep on us unawares, are due to our strenuous habits of living, eating and worrying with constipation and imperfect elimination.

Grandmother, that Marlin Hot Water has cured thousands of people of rheumatism and stomach trouble and Marlin is a fine place to spend our vacation.

MARLIN THE FLOW TEXAS
LIFE-GIVING

Marlin, with splendidly equipped Sanatoriums, Bath Houses and Hotels, and its Hot Laxative Alkaline Waters, is the place to spend that vacation, to take stock of your physical condition and get a new lease on life, by means of the change, rest and first-class "boil out."

Hundreds of people today are living, walking evidences of the curative properties of Marlin baths and Treatments for the Cure of Rheumatism, Constipation, Sciatica, Catarrh, Blood and Skin Diseases, Malaria and Nervous Troubles.

The Hot Water Health Resorts of Europe, such as Carlsbad, Aachen, and Aix les Bain, with waters and equipment similar to that of Marlin, have been patronized unceasingly for years by from 15,000 to 50,000 persons annually for the prevention and cure of chronic diseases.

Why not try Marlin once and be convinced of its value as equal to any of the European Resorts?

Progressive Marlin Is Health Mecca of the Entire Nation

Marlin as a health resort has achieved statewide and even nation-wide recognition. Its hot wells are the deepest and hottest artesian wells in the world. The famous mineral wells are more than half a mile deep and send forth every day 380,000 gallons of health-giving waters. Notwithstanding the fact that this water comes up through pipes for more than half a mile, it reaches the surface at a temperature of 147 degree Fahrenheit, which makes it the hottest water known. Experts say that the famous Vichey waters in France have no more medicinal properties than have the Marlin wells.

WATER IS GOD-SEND TO THE SICK.

These waters have been mixed by the Great Physician, Nature, boiled in Nature's caldrons and sent forth to suffering humanity as the most efficacious remedy known for rheumatism, malaria, stomach troubles, etc. Marlin has an ideal situation as a health resort. The heat of summer is relieved by the gulf breeze, and the rigors of winter are alleviated by the sheltered location of this town. Marlin is really an all-year-round health resort. Visitors from the northern states are surprised by the extremely moderate climatic conditions, both of summer and winter.

Congenial society, up-to-date accommodations, inspiring scenery are among the many attractions that are drawing thousands yearly to this health-restoring and preserving resort.

MARLIN IS MECCA FOR HOME-SEEKERS.

As a mecca for home-seekers, Marlin fills the bill as well as she does as a health resort. Lands range in price according to location and the state of cultivation, from thirty to one hundred and fifty dollars per acre. Marlin is located in Falls county, and is surrounded by some of the most fertile lands in the state. The lands have proved their fertility for many years past, and are still demonstrating their suitability for growing cotton, corn, wheat, oats, and many varieties of vegetables and fruits. The Boys' Corn clubs have raised prize-winning corn for years past.

The Brazos valley, in which Marlin is situated, has been compared with the Nile as to fertility. Now that this stream is to be developed and that navigation is assured by the recent appropriation, Marlin and her sister towns will come in for their share of the resulting prosperity. Splendid feed crops are grown every year, including alfalfa and hay. Marlin is a well-planned town, beautifully situated as to natural scenery, and is blessed with a progressive citizenship that appreciates the opportunities of their city as a health resort and who co-operate in every way in making tourists and health-seekers feel at home.

CITY IS BLESSED WITH GOOD SCHOOLS.

Excellent public schools and efficient teachers have drawn many home-seekers to Marlin, and they have prospered as the town has prospered.

The population of Marlin is continually increasing, and by leaps and bounds. There are now more than six thousand residents, not counting transients. A great deal of the business is tourist business, but the ordinary affairs of the town are conducted in an enterprising manner, by successful business men, who have recognized that a good civic appearance is the greatest business asset.

Many inquirers mention that dread disease, malaria, but physicians assure these inquirers that Marlin is remarkably free from malaria, and no visitor need fear trouble from this source at any time of the year.

ARE PROUD OF CITY'S ASSETS.

The Marlin business men are proud of what they have. Among the assets of this city are: The deepest and hottest minerals wells in the world; fifteen miles of cement sidewalks, the entire business section being paved; a delightful summer climate, free from malaria; four of the best equipped bath houses in the south; scores of hotels and boarding houses at all prices; twelve handsome churches, all denominations being represented; three banks with average daily deposits of $950,000; the site for a hundred thousand dollar federal building; four distinct kinds of soil within her territory that will produce anthing that is planted therein; free mail delivery; an unlimited supply of pure water for city and manufacturing purposes; a first-class electric light plant; a first-class ice plant; an excellent sewerage system; a cotton seed oil mill; a compressed brick plant; a well-equipped cotton compress; a high school that affiliates with the State University, with well-equipped domestic science, manual training and agricultural departments, and a commercial club that works always for her upbuilding.

The famous Carlsbad, Germany, has a great claim as a health resort, but Marlin has just as great insofar as medicinal properties of the waters are concerned. In fact, Marlin has been called the Carlsbad of America. Many foreigners have tested the powers of this American Carlsbad's waters and say that it is every whit as good as that of the real Carlsbad.

The fact that Marlin has been used as winter training camp for some of the big league ball teams has given Marlin a vast amount of advertising. The New York Giants have done their early training in Marlin for several years, and are delighted with the accommodations and the climate.

The falls on the Brazos river and the Oil Mill lake and club house are favorite pleasure resorts. Boating parties, picnics, bathing parties and other forms of outings are adequately provided for. Taking it all in all, Marlin is one of the best of Texas towns, and to this important fact is added that it is a nationally-recognized health resort.

Wyche Optical Co. Forced to Double Capital Stock

The Wyche Optical company, located in the Primm building, enjoys a prestige attained by a thorough knowledge of their business, the large amount of capital behind it, and the high standard maintained by all the members of the firm.

This is a strictly wholesale business, no retail business being handled at all. Their stock is the best of its kind to be obtained anywhere, and as they have installed a lot of new machinery they are fitted to handle all orders as fast as they are received. This firm is now well established in Waco and their reputation as a mail order house for optical goods, supplying Texas, is an enviable one.

The really wonderful growth of this firm is attested by the fact that they have recently doubled their capital stock. Waco and towns throughout Texas have awakened to the fact that there is an optical company located in Waco which is up to date, well stocked desirous of handling their orders, and can do it in a very satisfactory manner.

The president of this firm is John [illegible] secretary and treasurer Fred B. Finkenburger, who had been with the F. A. Hardy company for years until his election to his present position.

To End Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness and head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Comfort and Atheltic Features Y.W.C.A. Drawing Large Number

The work of the Y W. C. A. is growing with the passing of every day. Now that rooms are ready, the equipment in, and everything is running order, the real uses and need for the organization are becoming apparent. Daily the number of girls and women who drop in for an hour's rest and reading is being augmented.

If there is a breeze anywhere, these big, airy rooms get it, for they have a south front and plenty of windows. Comfortable rocking chairs, deep, roomy couches, cheerful cut flowers and cool, green ferns, make the rooms delightfully restful for tired shoppers and business women.

A number of magazines have been ordered and are coming in slowly. A new one arrives nearly every day. There is also a branch of the public library, which carries a good line of the newest books as well as the classics.

Now that the summer heat is making itself felt more and more every day, the fact that there is a big cooler full of ice water is a drawing card.

Four teams of volley ball and two tennis clubs have been formed, and the enthusiasm is running higher and higher with every game played. There is a woman's class on Mondays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a. m. Mrs. McLendon is the coach. Another women's class meets Tuesdays and Fridays from 7 to 10 p. m., with Mrs. Robert Dupree as coach.

Still a third women's class meets Mondays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p. m., with Miss Frances Van Boddie and Mss Ida Grand as coaches. A junior class meets Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11 o'clock. A large crowd was present for the game Wednesday morning.

There are two tennis courts in use by the Y. W. C. A. clubs, the high school court and a court at Thirteenth and Morrow. The high school court is used on Mondays and Thursdays, the Thirteenth and Morrow court on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The matter of a cafeteria is still hanging fire. Those in authority are working hard for it, and have hopes of establishing a cafeteria in the fall or early winter months.

On Wednesday morning there were two committee meetings, both following the regular routine of business: The finance committee, Mrs. J. M. Hale, president; the house committee, Mrs. Ben Gray Kendall.

The physical director will arrive in the fall, when the regular gymnasium work will begin.

Asks Co-operation of Merchants on Weights Ordinance

"I hope that the merchants of the city will co-operate with the weights and measures department in every way possible, and that they will have their scales tested, will arrange for dry measures for vegetables, and will bear in mind the different kinds of weights and measures for different classes of stuff," said J. B. Strother, weights and measures inspector, yesterday.

Mr. Strother said that he was anxious to get the matter into working order, and that he intended to work with the merchants and other dealers as rapidly as possible. He will visit the hardware houses, also, and ask them to arrange to carry the kinds of scales which will be needed; of course, in many cases there will be no necessity for getting new scales, but simply to see that the ones on hand meet the requirements and weigh all right.

The weights and measures ordinance is one of the new ordinances of the city.

Beggar Gets Coin With a Fake Air-tube

"Yes, he's playing with his windpipe, all right."

"Now, ain't that the limit. That show's worth a quarter of anybody's money."

The painted woman who danced and sang and the freak beggar smiled ingratiatingly as they gathered in the coin. Several hundred people thought that the show was worth good coin of various denominations, and the sheckels clinked merrily into the old felt hat. The beggar stood on a good street corner. When he had first taken his position he was alone, and seemed to be having trouble with his throat, for he fumbled with it for several minutes. Several curious passers-by paused to see what the trouble might be, and at last one woman sauntered closer to the old man and pressed against him. Suddenly she flashed something bright from the bosom of her dress and with a low bow presented it to the beggar, who appeared never to have seen her before. He looked at the gift curiously, held it up so that all could see that it was a French harp, then dramatically removed his other hand from his throat, held the harp an inch or so from his Adam's apple and began to play.

Those who could press close enough to see clearly informed the others that a silver tube had been inserted in the man's throat and that by breathing through it he played the harp. The woman danced about him, singing to the music produced in this peculiar manner.

This strange couple has been touring Texas, gathering fabulous sums wherever they go. In a burst of confidence, the beggar told one persistent inquirer that he had had his throat operated on for the express purpose of playing a harp by breathing through an inserted tube. He said that the operation had been expensive and very painful, but he left it up to anyone whether it was worth it or not.

"I'm the biggest freak beggar in the country," he wound up his narrative, boastfully, "and my woman wouldn't stay with me if I hadn't had it done. She gets all the money she wants and no work, either. This is the life," he grinned.

City Equalization Board Organized

The city board of equalization met yesterday afternoon and organized for the work of fixing values in the city on which will be based the taxation for another year.

S. H. Clayton is chairman of the board, the other two members being John C. Walton and E. H. Bruyere. A secretary was elected in the person of George D. Field of the city tax collector's office. The work will be pushed right along now until it shall have been completed.

"THE CARLSBAD OF AMERICA"

Progressive Marlin Is Health Mecca of the Entire Nation

Marlin as a health resort has achieved statewide and even nation-wide recognition. Its hot wells are the deepest and hottest artesian wells in the world. The famous mineral wells are more than half a mile deep and send forth every day 380,000 gallons of health-giving waters. Notwithstanding the fact that this water comes up through pipes for more than half a mile, it reaches the surface at a temperature of 147 degree Fahrenheit, which makes it the hottest water known. Experts say that the famous Vichey waters in France have no more medicinal properties than have the Marlin wells.

WATER IS GOD-SEND TO THE SICK.

These waters have been mixed by the Great Physician, Nature, boiled in Nature's caldrons and sent forth to suffering humanity as the most efficacious remedy known for rheumatism, malaria, stomach troubles, etc. Marlin has an ideal situation as a health resort. The heat of summer is relieved by the gulf breeze, and the rigors of winter are alleviated by the sheltered location of this town. Marlin is really an all-year-round health resort. Visitors from the northern states are surprised by the extremely moderate climatic conditions, both of summer and winter.

Congenial society, up-to-date accommodations, inspiring scenery are among the many attractions that are drawing thousands yearly to this health-restoring and preserving resort.

MARLIN IS MECCA FOR HOME-SEEKERS.

As a mecca for home-seekers, Marlin fills the bill as well as she does as a health resort. Lands range in price according to location and the state of cultivation, from thirty to one hundred and fifty dollars per acre. Marlin is located in Falls county, and is surrounded by some of the most fertile lands in the state. The lands have proved their fertility for many years past, and are still demonstrating their suitability for growing cotton, corn, wheat, oats, and many varieties of vegetables and fruits. The Boys' Corn clubs have raised prize-winning corn for years past.

The Brazos valley, in which Marlin is situated, has been compared with the Nile as to fertility. Now that this stream is to be developed and that navigation is assured by the recent appropriation, Marlin and her sister towns will come in for their share of the resulting prosperity. Splendid feed crops are grown every year, including alfalfa and hay. Marlin is a well-planned town, beautifully situated as to natural scenery, and is blessed with a progressive citizenship that appreciates the opportunities of their city as a health resort and who co-operate in every way in making tourists and health-seekers feel at home.

CITY IS BLESSED WITH GOOD SCHOOLS.

Excellent public schools and efficient teachers have drawn many home-seekers to Marlin, and they have prospered as the town has prospered.

The population of Marlin is continually increasing, and by leaps and bounds. There are now more than six thousand residents, not counting transients. A great deal of the business is tourist business, but the ordinary affairs of the town are conducted in an enterprising manner, by successful business men, who have recognized that a good civic appearance is the greatest business asset.

Many inquirers mention that dread disease, malaria, but physicians assure these inquirers that Marlin is remarkably free from malaria, and no visitor need fear trouble from this source at any time of the year.

ARE PROUD OF CITY'S ASSETS.

The Marlin business men are proud of what they have. Among the assets of this city are: The deepest and hottest minerals wells in the world; fifteen miles of cement sidewalks, the entire business section being paved; a delightful summer climate, free from malaria; four of the best equipped bath houses in the south; scores of hotels and boarding houses at all prices; twelve handsome churches, all denominations being represented; three banks with average daily deposits of $950,000; the site for a hundred thousand dollar federal building; four distinct kinds of soil within her territory that will produce anthing that is planted therein; free mail delivery; an unlimited supply of pure water for city and manufacturing purposes; a first-class electric light plant; a first-class ice plant; an excellent sewerage system; a cotton seed oil mill; a compressed brick plant; a well-equipped cotton compress; a high school that affiliates with the State University, with well-equipped domestic science, manual training and agricultural departments, and a commercial club that works always for her upbuilding.

The famous Carlsbad, Germany, has a great claim as a health resort, but Marlin has just as great insofar as medicinal properties of the waters are concerned. In fact, Marlin has been called the Carlsbad of America. Many foreigners have tested the powers of this American Carlsbad's waters and say that it is every whit as good as that of the real Carlsbad.

The fact that Marlin has been used as winter training camp for some of the big league ball teams has given Marlin a vast amount of advertising. The New York Giants have done their early training in Marlin for several years, and are delighted with the accommodations and the climate.

The falls on the Brazos river and the Oil Mill lake and club house are favorite pleasure resorts. Boating parties, picnics, bathing parties and other forms of outings are adequately provided for. Taking it all in all, Marlin is one of the best of Texas towns, and to this important fact is added that it is a nationally-recognized health resort.

Wyche Optical Co. Forced to Double Capital Stock

The Wyche Optical company, located in the Primm building, enjoys a prestige attained by a thorough knowledge of their business, the large amount of capital behind it, and the high standard maintained by all the members of the firm.

This is a strictly wholesale business, no retail business being handled at all. Their stock is the best of its kind to be obtained anywhere, and as they have installed a lot of new machinery they are fitted to handle all orders as fast as they are received. This firm is now well established in Waco and their reputation as a mail order house for optical goods, supplying Texas, is an enviable one.

The really wonderful growth of this firm is attested by the fact that they have recently doubled their capital stock. Waco and towns throughout Texas have awakened to the fact that there is an optical company located in Waco which is up to date, well stocked desirous of handling their orders, and can do it in a very satisfactory manner.

The president of this firm is John [illegible] secretary and is a Fred B. Finkenburger, who had been with the F. A. Hardy company for years until his election to his present position.

To End Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness and head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Comfort and Atheltic Features Y.W.C.A. Drawing Large Number

The work of the Y W. C. A. is growing with the passing of every day. Now that rooms are ready, the equipment in, and everything is running order, the real uses and need for the organization are becoming apparent. Daily the number of girls and women who drop in for an hour's rest and reading is being augmented.

If there is a breeze anywhere, these big, airy rooms get it, for they have a south front and plenty of windows. Comfortable rocking chairs, deep, roomy couches, cheerful cut flowers and cool, green ferns, make the rooms delightfully restful for tired shoppers and business women.

A number of magazines have been ordered and are coming in slowly. A new one arrives nearly every day. There is also a branch of the public library, which carries a good line of the newest books as well as the classics.

Now that the summer heat is making itself felt more and more every day, the fact that there is a big cooler full of ice water is a drawing card.

Four teams of volley ball and two tennis clubs have been formed, and the enthusiasm is running higher and higher with every game played. There is a woman's class on Mondays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a. m. Mrs. McLendon is the coach. Another women's class meets Tuesdays and Fridays from 7 to 10 p. m., with Mrs. Robert Dupree as coach.

Still a third women's class meets Mondays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p. m., with Miss Frances Van Boddie and Mss Ida Orand as coaches. A junior class meets Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11 o'clock. A large crowd was present for the game Wednesday morning.

There are two tennis courts in use by the Y. W. C. A. clubs, the high school court and a court at Thirteenth and Morrow. The high school court is used on Mondays and Thursdays, the Thirteenth and Morrow court on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The matter of a cafeteria is still hanging fire. Those in authority are working hard for it, and have hopes of establishing a cafeteria in the fall or early winter months.

On Wednesday morning there were two committee meetings, both following the regular routine of business: The finance committee, Mrs. J. M. Hale, president; the house committee, Mrs. Ben Gray Kendall.

The physical director will arrive in the fall, when the regular gymnasium work will begin.

Asks Co-operation of Merchants on Weights Ordinance

"I hope that the merchants of the city will co-operate with the weights and measures department in every way possible, and that they will have their scales tested, will arrange for dry measures for vegetables, and will bear in mind the different kinds of weights and measures for different classes of stuff," said J. B. Strother, weights and measures inspector, yesterday.

Mr. Strother said that he was anxious to get the matter into working order, and that he intended to work with the merchants and other dealers as rapidly as possible. He will visit the hardware houses, also, and ask them to arrange to carry the kinds of scales which will be needed; of course, in many cases there will be no necessity for getting new scales, but simply to see that the ones on hand meet the requirements and weigh all right.

The weights and measures ordinance is one of the new ordinances of the city.

Beggar Gets Coin With a Fake Air-tube

"Yes, he's playing with his windpipe, all right."

"Now, ain't that the limit. That show's worth a quarter of anybody's money."

The painted woman who danced and sang and the freak beggar smiled ingratiatingly as they gathered in the coin. Several hundred people thought that the show was worth good coin of various denominations, and the sheckels clinked merrily into the old felt hat. The beggar stood on a good street corner. When he had first taken his position he was alone, and seemed to be having trouble with his throat, for he fumbled with it for several minutes. Several curious passers-by paused to see what the trouble might be, and at last one woman sauntered closer to the old man and pressed against him. Suddenly she flashed something bright from the bosom of her dress and with a low bow presented it to the beggar, who appeared never to have seen her before. He looked at the gift curiously, held it up so that all could see that it was a French harp, then dramatically removed his other hand from his throat, held the harp an inch or so from his Adam's apple and began to play.

Those who could press close enough to see clearly informed the others that a silver tube had been inserted in the man's throat and that by breathing through it he played the harp. The woman danced about him, singing to the music produced in this peculiar manner.

This strange couple has been touring Texas, gathering fabulous sums wherever they go. In a burst of confidence, the beggar told one persistent inquirer that he had had his throat operated on for the express purpose of playing a harp by breathing through an inserted tube. He said that the operation had been expensive and very painful, but he left it up to anyone whether it was worth it or not.

"I'm the biggest freak beggar in the country," he wound up his narrative, boastfully, "and my woman wouldn't stay with me if I hadn't had it done. She gets all the money she wants and no work, either. This is the life," he grinned.

City Equalization Board Organized

The city board of equalization met yesterday afternoon and organized for the work of fixing values in the city on which will be based the taxation for another year.

S. H. Clayton is chairman of the board, the other two members being John C. Walton and E. H. Bruyere. A secretary was elected in the person of George D. Field of the city tax collector's office. The work will be pushed right along now until it shall have been completed.

After the board completes this phase of the work it will send out notices, adjourn and then come together again to hear complaints of those who may not be satisfied with their assessments.

TOM A. MAYBERRY WELL QUALIFIED FOR PUBLIC WEIGHER

The most important thing to consider in the matter of selecting a man for a public office is: Is he capable of carrying out the duties imposed by such an office? Then the next thing to consider is: Will he perform such duties conscientiously and well?

Tom A. Mayberry needs no introduction to the citizens of Waco, for he has been a resident for twelve years. He is thoroughly competent to fill the position, that of public weigher, to which he is aspiring, if long experience and a high order of native intelligence are an index to a man's competency. He served under Mr. Sadler in East Waco for one season and was for four years assistant to Mr. Bryant Allen. Until his retiring about a year ago he was assistant to Mr. Sem Nix.

Not only has Mr. Mayberry had experience as a weigher of cotton, but he also has learned cotton itself thoroughly in his long experience in classing it.

Mr. Mayberry is a man of very pleasing personality, and this asset has stood him in good stead in his profession. His unfailing affability, his genuine courtesy and his air of being intimately acquainted with his business have won the unqualified approval and commendation of a large majority of the business men of Waco and vicinity. His friends are assured that his record as assistant weigher will be duplicated when he is elected to the position of public weigher. There still remain two more months during which these friends and acquaintances of Mr. Mayberry can demonstrate their loyalty to him by enlisting voters of precincts 1 and 4.

John Reed Would Be Tax Assessor for Another Term

Actively engaged in his canvass for re-election, John Reed, our accommodating county tax assessor, is receiving the loyal support of his many friends who were anxious to see him be given a trial at the office and who are more anxious than ever for his re-election because of the showing he has made while in office. Heretofore, Mr. Reed's services have been efficient and satisfactory in every respect and thus far no candidate has announced to compete against him for the office.

While serving the county, Mr. Reed has made a reputation of which any one could justly feel proud and his thousands of friends have been well pleased. In his former race he defeated his opponent by the largest majority in the history of political campaigns in this county, which fact shows his popularity as a public servant.

This officer deserves all that has come to him and he promises a continued faithful career in the futue. In the administration of his affairs he has made it a rule to employ all the new methods which could be accounted on as simplifying the records of the office. Promising a continuance of his courteous, proficient and accurate labors, Mr. Reed will appreciate the help of his friends for the remainder of the campaign.

Soldiers of the Sea Are Uncle Sam's First Fighters When any Trouble Arises

a-coin' all kinds of things,
Like landin' 'isself with a Gatlin' gun
to talk to them 'eathen kings;
'E sleeps in an 'ammick instead of a cot, an' 'e drills with the deck on a slew,
An' 'e sweats like a Jolly—'Er Majesty's Jolly—soldier an' sailor, too!
For there isn't a job on the top o' the earth the beggar don't know, nor do—
You can leave 'im at night on a bald man's 'ead, to paddle 'is own canoe—
'E's a sort of a bloomin' cosmopolouse—soldier an' sailor, too.

Rudyard Kipling so describes the marine. Could you think of a better description for the "soldier of the sea?" They have a "record of daring and duty well done" surpassed by no other branch of the service. When you read of Uncle Sam's marines calmly stepping ashore in Nicaragua or Mexico to face deadly machine guns in the protection of American interests, the story needn't surprise you; they've been doing such things for many years.

A marine recruiting station has just been opened—Waco.

Considering the part that the marine has played in the world's history for the last three centuries, there is no fighting less understood, less appreciated, or even less known than the marine. When the newspapers report, after the landing of some of the marines on a foreign land that they "have the situation well in hand," how many of the people know the character of the men who make up this body of our foremost men of military action? A large part of the people of this country do not know what a marine really is.

They have proved themselves the last hundred years to be one of the most important bodies for the protection of the country that has ever been organized.

WHERE TROUBLE IS, THE MARINE IS.

Yet few know of any of the deeds that have been accomplished by the marines. How many for instance know that the marines are always the first to touch enemy shores, in case a war originates on the sea? How many know that the marines were the first regulars to enter the grim fortress of Chapultepec in the City of Mexico, which was taken by storm on the 13th of September, 1847? That under Lieutenant P. N. O'Bannon they were the first to plant an American flag over a fortress in the old world, when the stronghold of Derne in Tripoli was taker by assault on April 27, 1805? That the "Ganges" was the first ship fitted out for the United States' navy and it carried a detachment of marines?

How many know that Robert E. Lee, later commander-in-chief of the Confederate army, in command of the marines, captured John Brown at Harper's Ferry in 1859? That the marines were at Mobile with Admiral Farragut on the "Hartford" when he gave his famous order: 'Damn the torpedoes; go ahead?" That they were the first to enter Cuba, and Peking during the Boxer insurrection? And a little nearer home, that they were the first to land at Vera Cruz during the trouble in 1914? They have figured prominently in the fighting of battles for Britain and America, the only nations that have organized them into corps, since their birth as a fighting force.

The United States marines have carried the colors into action in Mexico, Tripoli, Egypt, Africa, Fiji islands, Hawaii, Cubi, Korea, Haiti, San Domingo, Formosa, Sumatra, Uragua, Paraguay, in fact on every continent and in every clime. Did you know hat?

MARINES HAVE STRONG SPIRIT,

They are a body, highly organized and well trained. Their boast is that they can do anything, from diplomacy to cooking; from the expert work of the cavalrymen and infantrymen to fighting mosquitoes—anything except be idle.

If you want to join on as a U. S. marine
You've got to get used to the water.
You've got to be smart and you've got to be clean
And ready for drill or for slaughter.
They will give you the hook if you don't learn to cook,
And, out where the sharpshooters hover,
You've got to learn not to stand up and be shot,
But to wriggle around under cover.
In civilized places or tropical scenes,
You mustn't be careless or nervous,
But tend to the work of the U. S. Marines,
The oldest branch of the service.

The British marine corps was organized in 1653 by Admiral Blake who enlisted soldiers to act as riflemen in his action against Van Tromp. They were abolished and reorganized, time and again. In June, 1776, the Continental congress, by an act, founded the United States marine corps under the command of one major, Senvel Nichols, nine captains, ten first lieutenants and seven second lieutenants. This force gained laurels in the naval and coast actions in the revolutionary war. After the war the marine corps died out, in all probability of inertia.

In 1812 the urgent need of sea soldiers drew the marine corps together as if by magic and in the terrific fighting on the lakes, in New Orleans and in coast battles, this branch of the service bore SOLDIERS OF THE—25 ..6 ..6 ..6 ..J the brunt of the fighting and impressed the people with the need of this kind of a body.

President Roosevelt, in 1908, acting as commander-in-chief of the American army and navy, removed the United States marine corp from the complement of our battleships, and set them to policing naval bases and naval stations beyond the continental limits of the United States, and to guarding the Panama Canal zone. They are now as essential to our military scheme as any part of the great machinery that protects us in time of war.

ALWAYS START THE FIGHTING.

The marines are trained athletes. Its teams have won cups, medals and prizes again and again. The present team holds the championship baseball mark among the government league in Washington. As riflemen they have made some of the highest scores that were ever made in the American service.

The pride of the marines is that they "always start the fighting." Theirs is the first fire, the first dangers to undergo, the first grave to fill and the first honors to take for the nation. They are, as a body, as heroic as any regular body of men ever assembled. The marines who effected the landing under heavy fire at Vera Cruz in 1914, refused the offer of Admiral Fletcher to give them medals for their bravery. Lieutenant Colonel Neville in command of the second regiment of marines, answered in ringing tones for the whole of the regiment when he said:

"There are no medalists among any of my men, Admiral. Every officer and man did his duty, no one more than another."

Later, when in spite of their protestations, some of the men were ordered to "report for letters," these being equal to a medal, they said that they did not see why they should be singled out among their fellows. Such is the spirit of the marines.

They are noted for their bravery, daring and action. Not infrequently they have nipped in the bud a revolution, before the world at large knew that the matter had been a cause for concern. Thus they move and act, these "soldiers of the sea," quietly, unostentatiously and above all quickly.

Fifty per cent of the members of the U. S. M. C. are skilled riflemen, according to the latest report that has been compiled. Of the 9,982 men in the service at the time of the report, 885 were expert riflemen, which classification in the marines means something. Of the remainder 2,438 were sharpshooters, and 1,632 were marksmen.

Of this important branch of our national life and protection, which numbers 10,000 men, Texas has furnished in the last year 249. Of their fighting qualities it can be said with finality that they are nonpareil.

Waco Barber Supply Company Fills Long Felt Want

The Waco Barbers' Supply and Manufacturing company fills a long-felt want in Texas. They are practically the only firm of their kind southwest of St. Louis, and when the barbers of Texas learn what they can do and are doing, they will enjoy an even greater share of Waco's prosperity than they have in the past.

This business is established at 612 Franklin street. It has been in operation for two years. S. H. Dabney, the manager, says that he does not see that the war has injured his prosperity, for their business has more than doubled this year.

They are manufacturers of all barbers' furniture, turning out beautiful and artistic designs. They repair old furniture, duplicate antique pieces and manufacture everything used in a barber shop. They make a specialty of manufacturing any kind of furniture to order, and of duplicating any furniture from other catalogs. They also carry a complete line of barbers' sundries, such as shampoo cream, talcum powder (which they manufacture themselves), hair tonics, shaving creams, massage creams, soaps and all other toilet preparations connected with the barber trade. Barbers purchasing from this firm save not only in original cost price, but also in freight and time, as Waco is in the very heart of Texas.

They were the first firm of their kind to establish machinery for the manufacturing of barbers' furniture in Texas, and for their initiative and progressiveness, as well as for the very high character of their factory output, they deserve and will ultimately obtain the patronage of all users of their products.

They employ only high-grade mechanics, eight men in their factory. So great has been their increase in business that they have been justified in doubling the number of employes in the last sixty days. TWO LEGS ENOUGH FOR DOG.

Brownie of Long Island Teaches Himself a Circus Stunt.

(From the New York World.)

Before Brownie, a yellow mongrel owned by Miss Harriet Knapp of Richmond Hill, L. I., was deprived of the use of his hind legs, he was classed as an ordinary dog. Since then a series of accidents has thrust him into the calcium of fame. Brownie is the best known celebrity of the suburban district. Sightseers come miles to see him. Brownie never heard of a circus, would probably bark scornfully at the thought of a vaudeville show, yet he is self taught in a form of exercise which has been the despair of many an animal trainer. Brownie balances himself on his little front paws, with his body in the air, runs along the street, hops over obstacles and climbs or descends stairs in seeming defiance to either the law of gravity or the ordinary mode of canine locomotion. And the remarkable part of it is that nobody instructed Brownie; necessity was his only guide.

Two weeks ago Brownie attempted to dispute the right of way with a Long Island railroad electric train at a crossing near his home and when poor little Brownie gathered his bruised body together and turned homeward one of his hind legs was hors de combat. He announced his affliction to Miss Knapp a few minutes later by a series of agonized yelps. She sent for a veterinary surgeon of Jamaica, who said it would be impossible to put splints on the injured member, as it was broken too close to the spine.

Brownie did not approve of the rest remedy prescribed, and the next day started out for a little tour of the neighborhood. He had only gone as far as the first fence when a cat mewed at him from behind an adjacent hedge. In one jump Brownie cleared the hedge and landed in a concealed ambuscade of barbed wire. He proclaimed his second misfortune vociferously and Miss Knapp, who had been watching from the window, sailed out to the rescue. This time Brownie sustained an ugly cut that almost severed the tendon in his remaining hind leg, and rendered it, as a means of progression, temporarily useless.

"After I saw the extent of his injuries," said Miss Knapp when recounting the incident, "I thought Brownie at last was literally out of the running. His leg bled terribly, but we put peroxide and a bandage on it, and propped him up in the merris chair. For one day he was content to remain quiet, and then, the next morning, imagine my surprise when Brownie came pattering into the kitchen on his front legs with his injured nether limbs balanced securely aloft.

'After a while he got so expert in the remarkable stunt that I honestly believed it caused him no inconvenience whatever. His fame grew in leaps and bounds. Even now persons come from as far as Flushing and Jamaica to see him running around after the children on his front legs and joining in their sports."

Brownie's period of convalescence is drawing to a close, the cut being nearly healed. However, the broken leg will never mend properly and he is forever doomed to go his canine way on three.

SOUTH TEXAS BABY BEEVES TOP MARKET

J. U. Grant, a shipper of La Pryor, marketed forty-five head of baby beeves, white-faced cattle bred by Ed C. Lasater and fed by the shipper for 136 days that averaged 802 pounds and sold for $9 a hundred pounds. This bunch of baby beeves were the choicest ever received from South Texas.

They had been fed on ensilag and ground maiz and made a gain of more than three pounds a day in the feed lots. They topped the Fort Worth market on Tuesday.

TOM A. MAYBERRY WELL QUALIFIED FOR PUBLIC WEIGHER

The most important thing to consider in the matter of selecting a man for a public office is: Is he capable of carrying out the duties imposed by such an office? Then the next thing to consider is: Will he perform such duties conscientiously and well?

Tom A. Mayberry needs no introduction to the citizens of Waco, for he has been a resident for twelve years. He is thoroughly competent to fill the position, that of public weigher, to which he is aspiring, if long experience and a high order of native intelligence are an index to a man's competency. He served under Mr. Sadler in East Waco for one season and was for four years assistant to Mr. Bryant Allen. Until his retiring about a year ago he was assistant to Mr. Sem Nix.

Not only has Mr. Mayberry had experience as a weigher of cotton, but he also has learned cotton itself thoroughly in his long experience in classing it.

Mr. Mayberry is a man of very pleasing personality, and this asset has stood him in good stead in his profession. His unfailing affability, his genuine courtesy and his air of being intimately acquainted with his business have won the unqualified approval and commendation of a large majority of the business men of Waco and vicinity. His friends are assured that his record as assistant weigher will be duplicated when he is elected to the position of public weigher. There still remain two more months during which these friends and acquaintances of Mr. Mayberry can demonstrate their loyalty to him by enlisting voters of precincts 1 and 4.

John Reed Would Be Tax Assessor for Another Term

Actively engaged in his canvass for re-election, John Reed, our accommodating county tax assessor, is receiving the loyal support of his many friends who were anxious to see him be given a trial at the office and who are more anxious than ever for his re-election because of the showing he has made while in office. Heretofore, Mr. Reed's services have been efficient and satisfactory in every respect and thus far no candidate has announced to compete against him for the office.

While serving the county, Mr. Reed has made a reputation of which any one could justly feel proud and his thousands of friends have been well pleased. In his former race he defeated his opponent by the largest majority in the history of political campaigns in this county, which fact shows his popularity as a public servant.

This officer deserves all that has come to him and he promises a continued faithful career in the futue. In the administration of his affairs he has made it a rule to employ all the new methods which could be accounted on as simplifying the records of the office. Promising a continuance of his courteous, proficient and accurate labors, Mr. Reed will appreciate the help of his friends for the remainder of the campaign.

Soldiers of the Sea Are Uncle Sam's First Fighters When any Trouble Arises

An' after I met 'im all over the world,
A-doin' all kinds of things,
Like landin' 'isself with a Gatlin' gun
to talk to them 'eathen kings;
'E sleeps in an 'ammick instead of a cot, an' 'e drills with the deck on a slew,
An' 'e sweats like a Jolly—'Er Majesty's Jolly—soldier an' sailor, too!
For there isn't a job on the top o' the earth the beggar don't know, nor do—
You can leave 'im at night on a bald man's 'ead, to paddle 'is own canoe—
'E's a sort of a bloomin' cosmopolouse—soldier an' sailor, too.

Rudyard Kipling so describes the marine. Could you think of a better description for the "soldier of the sea?" They have a "record of daring and duty well done" surpassed by no other branch of the service. When you read of Uncle Sam's marines calmly stepping ashore in Nicaragua or Mexico to face deadly machine guns in the protection of American interests, the story needn't surprise you; they've been doing such things for many years.

A marine recruiting station has just been opened—Waco.

Considering the part that the marine has played in the world's history for the last three centuries, there is no fighting less understood, less appreciated, or even less known than the marine. When the newspapers report, after the landing of some of the marines on a foreign land that they "have the situation well in hand," how many of the people know the character of the men who make up this body of our foremost men of military action? A large part of the people of this country do not know what a marine really is.

They have proved themselves the last hundred years to be one of the most important bodies for the protection of the country that has ever been organized.

WHERE TROUBLE IS, THE MARINE IS.

Yet few know of any of the deeds that have been accomplished by the marines. How many for instance know that the marines are always the first to touch enemy shores, in case a war originates on the sea? How many know that the marines were the first regulars to enter the grim fortress of Chapultepec in the City of Mexico, which was taken by storm on the 13th of September, 1847? That under Lieutenant P. N. O'Bannon they were the first to plant an American flag over a fortress in the old world, when the stronghold of Derne in Tripoli was taker by assault on April 27, 1805? That the "Ganges" was the first ship fitted out for the United States' navy and it carried a detachment of marines?

How many know that Robert E. Lee, later commander-in-chief of the Confederate army, in command of the marines, captured John Brown at Harper's Ferry in 1859? That the marines were at Mobile with Admiral Farragut on the "Hartford" when he gave his famous order: "Damn the torpedoes; go ahead?" That they were the first to enter Cuba and Peking during the Boxer insurrection? And a little nearer home, that they were the first to land at Vera Cruz during the trouble in 1914? They have figured prominently in the fighting of battles for Britain and America, the only nations that have organized them into corps, since their birth as a fighting force.

The United States marines have carried the colors into action in Mexico, Tripoli, Egypt, Africa, Fiji islands, Hawaii, Cuba, Korea, Haiti, San Domingo, Formosa, Sumatra, Uragua, Paraguay, in fact on every continent and in every clime. Did you know hat?

MARINES HAVE STRONG SPIRIT.

They are a body, highly organized and well trained. Their boast is that they can do anything, from diplomacy to cooking; from the expert work of the cavalrymen and infantrymen to fighting mosquitoes—anything except be idle.

If you want to join on as a U. S. marine
You've got to get used to the water;
You've got to be smart and you've got to be clean
And ready for drill or for slaughter,
They will give you the hook if you don't learn to cook,
And, out where the sharpshooters
hover,
You've got to learn not to stand up and be shot,
But to wriggle around under cover.
In civilized places or tropical scenes,
You mustn't be careless or nervous,
But tend to the work of the U. S. Marines,
The oldest branch of the service.

The British marine corps was organized in 1653 by Admiral Blake who enlisted soldiers to act as riflemen in his action against Van Tromp. They were abolished and reorganized, time and again. In June, 1776, the Continental congress, by an act, founded the United States marine corps under the command of one major, Senvel Nichols, nine captains, ten first lieutenants and seven second lieutenants. This force gained laurels in the naval and coast actions in the revolutionary war. After the war the marine corps died out, in all probability of inertia.

In 1812 the urgent need of sea soldiers drew the marine corps together as if by magic and in the terrific fighting on the lakes, in New Orleans and in coast battles, this branch of the service bore SOLDIERS OF THE—25 ..6 ..6 ..6 ..J the brunt of the fighting and impressed the people with the need of this kind of a body.

President Roosevelt, in 1908, acting as commander-in-chief of the American army and navy, removed the United States marine corp from the complement of our battleships, and set them to policing naval bases and naval stations beyond the continental limits of the United States, and to guarding the Panama Canal zone. They are now as essential to our military scheme as any part of the great machinery that protects us in time of war.

ALWAYS START THE FIGHTING.

The marines are trained athletes. Its teams have won cups, medals and prizes again and again. The present team holds the championship baseball mark among the government league in Washington. As riflemen they have made some of the highest scores that were ever made in the American service.

The pride of the marines is that they "always start the fighting." Theirs is the first fire, the first dangers to undergo, the first grave to fill and the first honors to take for the nation. They are, as a body, as heroic as any regular body of men ever assembled. The marines who effected the landing under heavy fire at Vera Cruz in 1914, refused the offer of Admiral Fletcher to give them medals for their bravery. Lieutenant Colonel Neville in command of the second regiment of marines, answered in ringing tones for the whole of the regiment when he said:

"There are no medalists among any of my men, Admiral. Every officer and man did his duty, no one more than another."

Later, when in spite of their protestations, some of the men were ordered to "report for letters," these being equal to a medal, they said that they did not see why they should be singled out among their fellows. Such is the spirit of the marines.

They are noted for their bravery, daring and action. Not infrequently they have nipped in the bud a revolution, before the world at large knew that the matter had been a cause for concern. Thus they move and act, these "soldiers of the sea," quietly, unostentatiously and above all quickly.

Fifty per cent of the members of the U. S. M. C. are skilled riflemen, according to the latest report that has been compiled. Of the 9,982 men in the service at the time of the report, 885 were expert riflemen, which classification in the marines means something. Of the remainder 2,438 were sharpshooters, and 1,632 were marksmen.

Of this important branch of our national life and protection, which numbers 10,000 men, Texas has furnished in the last year 249. Of their fighting qualities it can be said with finality that they are nonpareil.

Waco Barber Supply Company Fills Long Felt Want

The Waco Barbers' Supply and Manufacturing company fills a long-felt want in Texas. They are practically the only firm of their kind southwest of St. Louis, and when the barbers of Texas learn what they can do and are doing, they will enjoy an even greater share of Waco's prosperity than they have in the past.

This business is established at 612 Franklin street. It has been in operation for two years. S. H. Dabney, the manager, says that he does not see that the war has injured his prosperity, for their business has more than doubled this year.

They are manufacturers of all barbers' furniture, turning out beautiful and artistic designs. They repair old furniture, duplicate antique pieces and manufacture everything used in a barber shop. They make a specialty of manufacturing any kind of furniture to order, and of duplicating any furniture from other catalogs. They also carry a complete line of barbers' sundries, such as shampoo cream, talcum powder (which they manufacture themselves), hair tonics, shaving creams, massage creams, soaps and all other toilet preparations connected with the barber trade. Barbers purchasing from this firm save not only in original cost price, but also in freight and time, as Waco is in the very heart of Texas.

They were the first firm of their kind to establish machinery for the manufacturing of barbers' furniture in Texas, and for their initiative and progressiveness, as well as for the very high character of their factory output, they deserve and will ultimately obtain the patronage of all users of their products.

They employ only high-grade mechanics, eight men in their factory. So great has been their increase in business that they have been justified in doubling the number of employes in the last sixty days. They have made a record to be proud of; in fact, they exemplify the progressive spirit of Waco in the best manner possible.

BEING WELL IS AN ASSET.

Health Insurance Legislation Imperative, Says New York Financier.

(New York Sun.)

"Health insurance legislation will be introduced here very shortly if America as a progressive democracy is going to compete successfully in the world's markets and at the same time conserve the stamina of her workers."

This opinion was expressed by Felix M. Warburg of the banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., brother of Paul M. Warburg of the federal reserve board. He was referring especially to the health insurance bill brought out by the American Association for Labor Legislation this year. Mr. Warburg explains his interest in health insurance by his first hand acquaintance with its working in Germany.

"I lived in Germany at the time the law for health insurance was passed and put into operation and the effect from what I have seen and from what I have been told has been excellent," he said. "It is only by means of a system of universal health insurance that the service of advanced medical science can be brought to the care of the workers as a whole, while at the same time the payment of joint contributions brings economic pressure to bear on the state, the employers and the worker himself to prevent disease. In other words, under health insurance all parties concerned are made to feel the cash avlue of good health."

SOLD A ROOSEVELT LETTER.

Bidding for Colonel's Signature at Philadelphia Auction Spirited.

(Philadelphia North American.)

An autograph letter written in 1887 by Theodore Roosevelt brought $21 at an auction sale of autograph letters held in Philadelphia recently. It was just an ordinary letter, written to a Mr. Comstock, thanking him for suggestions in reference to the New York civil service commission, yet there was spirited bidding before it finally was sold.

A letter written to Tyler Bigelow and franked in the autograph of John Adams, brought $37. A letter written by Dr. Samuel Johnson to his friend, Doctor Laurence, was bought for $58 by the Philadelphia Board of Education. A letter bearing the autograph of King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth of Spain was bought by the Historical society of Pennsylvania for $106.

MARKETS

COTTON

New York.

New York, June 13.—Less favorable crop accounts checked selling in the cotton market today and early declines were followed by rallies, with December selling up from 12.95 to 13.03 and closing at that level. The general list closed steady at a net advance of 2 to 4 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points. Private cables attributed the decline in the English market to some hedge selling. Owing to the easier ocean freight rates, however, there was a feeling around the ring that the differences between New York and foreign markets should narrow and for this reason there was comparatively little selling on the break abroad.

After the publication of the weekly weather report, which did not read as favorably as expected, the market turned steadier on a flurry of local covering. The buying also was promoted by a report from a local bureau placing the condition of the crop as of June 8 at 78.5 per cent as compared with 77.4 as of May 22.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 14.—After a net decline of 5 to 8 points in the morning session today the cotton market acquired a stronger tone and late in the day stood 2 to 4 points over yesterday's last quotations. The close was at a net rise of 1 to 3 points.

Liverpool was not up to expectations, and private cables were pessimistic over the spot inquiry as the result of mill holidays. This had some influence in the early trading, but later was offset by reports of a better spot demand locally. Several buyers from interior points were reported operating in this market, which was taken to mean that either offerings were becoming exhausted at interior points or that holders were too firm in their views.

WHEAT

Chicago, June 14.—Heavy selling pressure on wheat today resulted from a prospective early movement of the new crop in accordance to the big supplies of wheat on hand. Largely in consequence, the close, although unsettled, was 1¼@1⅝ to 1¾c net lower, with July at $1.02⅞@1.02¾ and September at $1.04⅝. Corn gained a shade to *c; oats finished ⅛c off to ⅛@⅛c up and provisions varying from 5@7c decline to a rise of 10c.

Unresponsive quotations to yesterday's advance on this side proved handicap to the bulls. Rains that threatened to interfere with the harvest in Oklahoma and Kansas caused only a slight upturn in values.

Improvement in winter wheat conditions as a whole were shown by the government weekly report.

Liberal shipping sales and rainy weather had a bullish effect on corn.

Oats were upheld by an active export demand.

Most of the provision business consisted of changing from near to distant deliveries in lard and ribs.

Futures ranged as follows today:

Wheat—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
July	1.04⅜	1.04⅝	1.02¼	1.02⅝
Sept.	1.06¼	1.06⅝	1.04¼	1.04⅝

BEING WELL IS AN ASSET.

Health Insurance Legislation Imperative, Says New York Financier.

(New York Sun.)

"Health insurance legislation will be introduced here very shortly if America as a progressive democracy is going to compete successfully in the world's markets and at the same time conserve the stamina of her workers."

This opinion was expressed by Felix M. Warburg of the banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., brother of Paul M. Warburg of the federal reserve board. He was referring especially to the health insurance bill brought out by the American Association for Labor Legislation this year. Mr. Warburg explains his interest in health insurance by his first hand acquaintance with its working in Germany.

"I lived in Germany at the time the law for health insurance was passed and put into operation and the effect from what I have seen and from what I have been told has been excellent," he said. "It is only by means of a system of universal health insurance that the service of advanced medical science can be brought to the care of the workers as a whole, while at the same time the payment of joint contributions brings economic pressure to bear on the state, the employers and the worker himself to prevent disease. In other words, under health insurance all parties concerned are made to feel the cash avlue of good health."

Bidding for Colonel's Signature at Philadelphia Auction Spirited.

(Philadelphia North American.)

An autograph letter written in 1887 by Theodore Roosevelt brought $21 at an auction sale of autograph letters held in Philadelphia recently. It was just an ordinary letter, written to a Mr. Comstock, thanking him for suggestions in reference to the New York civil service commission, yet there was spirited bidding before it finally was sold.

A letter written to Tyler Bigelow and franked in the autograph of John Adams, brought $37. A letter written by Dr. Samuel Johnson to his friend, Doctor Laurence, was bought for $58 by the Philadelphia Board of Education. A letter bearing the autograph of King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth of Spain was bought by the Historical society of Pennsylvania for $196.

COTTON

New York.

New York, June 13.—Less favorable crop accounts checked selling in the cotton market today and early declines were followed by rallies, with December selling up from 12.95 to 13.03 and closing at that level. The general list closed steady at a net advance of 2 to 4 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points. Private cables attributed the decline in the English market to some hedge selling. Owing to the easier ocean freight rates, however, there was a feeling around the ring that the differences between New York and foreign markets should narrow and for this reason there was comparatively little selling on the break abroad.

After the publication of the weekly weather report, which did not read as favorably as expected, the market turned steadier on a flurry of local covering. The buying also was promoted by a report from a local bureau placing the condition of the crop as of June 8 at 78.5 per cent as compared with 77.4 as of May 22.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 14.—After a net decline of 5 to 8 points in the morning session today the cotton market acquired a stronger tone and late in the day stood 2 to 4 points over yesterday's last quotations. The close was at a net rise of 1 to 3 points.

Liverpool was not up to expectations, and private cables were pessimistic over the spot inquiry as the result of mill holidays. This had some influence in the early trading, but later was offset by reports of a better spot demand locally. Several buyers from inferior points were reported operating in this market, which was taken to mean that either offerings were becoming exhausted at interior points or that holders were too firm in their views.

WHEAT

Chicago, June 14.—Heavy selling pressure on wheat today resulted from a prospective early movement of the new crop in accordance to the big supplies of wheat on hand. Largely in consequence, the close, although unsettled, was 1¼@1⅝ net lower, with July at $1.02⅝@1.02¾ and September at $1.04⅝. Corn gained a shade to ⅛c; oats finished ⅛c off to ⅛@⅛c up and provisions varying from 5@7c decline to a rise of 10c.

Unresponsive quotations to yesterday's advance on this side proved handicap to the bulls. Rains that threatened to interfere with the harvest in Oklahoma and Kansas caused only a slight upturn in values.

Improvement in winter wheat conditions as a whole were shown by the government weekly report.

Liberal shipping sales and rainy weather had a bullish effect on corn.

Oats were upheld by an active export demand.

Most of the provision business consisted of changing from near to distant deliveries in lard and ribs.

PROPOSE LAKE AT BAYLOR

Tom Hamilton Suggests Widening Waco Creek Into Pleasure Lake. Short Session.

The city of Waco will in future be responsible for and care for only patients originating within the city limits, as to hospital care and treatment, according to a motion passed at the meeting yesterday of the city commission, the motion coming as the finale to a long discussion of the hospital matter, the commissioners expressing the view that the county commissioners have not shouldered their portion of the expense for years, as many cases originating outside the limits have, according to the commissioners, been cared for by the city.

T. M. Hamilton, Esq., yesterday suggested to the city commission that Waco creek near Baylor should be straightened, widened and made into a lake for boating, at the same time beautifying the grounds and surroundings. He made a number of other suggestions, one of these being that an ornamental bridge should be built on South Fifth street, near Baylor, to work into a plan of general beautification and improvement there, and that certain unsightly small buildings should be gotten rid of, also. These matters were referred.

The matter of widening South Ninth street so that parties going to the school in the extreme southern part of the city could get through with more ease was presented in a communication from the public school board, and was appropriately referred.

No action was taken yesterday on the charter amendments, but they will come up at the next meeting, as that will be the last chance if they are to be voted on at the same time the vote is taken in the July primaries.

The commission opened at 9:30, with all members present, the meeting being held Wednesday, so commissioners could go on the trade excursion to Palestine today.

W. D. Craig of Kansas City, who has been negotiating a contract for painting the new steel bridge across the Brazos, and with whom a tentative contract had been arranged, asked the commission what he should do about the painting. He said he could not use union labor in having the bridge scraped and prepared for painting, as it would cost more money than he had included in his estimate on the work in his bid.

Commissioner Richards suggested that Mr. Craig take the matter up with the county commission, as Mr. Craig suggested relinquishing the contract. He said the city commission would then consider the proposition.

WOULD MAKE LAKE NEAR BAYLOR.

Tom M. Hamilton, Esq., appeared before the commission and spoke of several matters which he thought of public interest. He first called attention to some "shacks" near Baylor university which he thought should be eliminated in some way if possible, in order to improve the appearance of things.

Mr. Hamilton then urged that an ornamental concrete bridge be built over Waco creek near Baylor, owing to the prominence of this thoroughfare and the institution near the bridge.

He spoke especially, however, of a proposition to widen and straighten Waco creek where it passes through the Baylor grounds, making of it a stream where boating could be enjoyed, saying it would be easy to impound the necessary water. He thought that this stream offered exceptional opportunities for beautification purposes, and that it could be made a great asset and adjunct of Baylor by giving it scientific attention, and by making a lake at the point mentioned. The commissioners showed considerable interest in what he proposed, and the matter was referred to the street commissioner, J. F. Stampp, and to Mayor John Dollins.

The last thing mentioned by Mr. Hamilton was that the street railway company, in making repairs or changes on the tracks, took too much time and kept the streets blocked too much, causing danger zones, in the opinion of Mr. Hamilton. He thought that when they went to work on a street they should have competent men doing the work and should keep at it continuously until it should be completed. This was referred to the city engineer and the street commissioner. Mr. Hamilton thanked the commission and retired, Mayor Dollins telling him to come before the commission at any time he chose.

CATCHER CAN'T GO IN YARDS FOR DOGS.

T. M. Hays appeared before the commission and asked whether the dog catcher had a right to go into one's yard and take a dog.

Mayor Dollins replied, "No," that he did not have the right to go into a yard after a dog, but that owners of dogs which had no tags were subject to a fine after complaint had been filed against them for failure to comply with the ordinance.

Mr. Hays said that the dog catcher had come into his yard and had taken a dog.

"Well, the dog catcher did wrong, and you were wrong in not having a tag on the dog," said the mayor.

The Waco school board said in a communication that South Ninth street should be widened, in order to make it possible to get to the school in a more satisfactory manner.

Street Commissioner Stampp said he would be willing to grade and gravel the street if the street could be opened without cost to the city.

Commissioner Cockcroft suggested that the street commissioner take the matter up with the school board to see i fthe matter can be worked out. This suggestion was followed.

Claim for damages of $5000 was presented by Mrs. S. M. Hall, who stated that a sprained ankle had resulted through a fall on the street. No action taken.

The milk ordinance matter came up for discussion, the ordinance having been up before.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT IS HAMPERED.

Commissioner Cockcroft said his department was hampered by lack of funds, and that he wanted to see the departments all kept up before tacking on any additional expenses. He said people were being taken to the sanitarium and charged to his department—the health department—crippling it further. He did not criticise any one, but asked co-operation in handling the problem.

A batch of sidewalk ordinances were presented for passage, these having been previously shown in these columns. The ordinances were passed, covering many different streets.

DISCUSS SANITARIUM PROBLEM.

Dr. R. H. Hodges was before the commission ,and was asked to make monthly report of the patients taken to Providence sanitarium, as the city is paying for a certain number of patients. Dr. Hodges is working in the place of Dr. M. D. Baker, city physician, who is sick.

There was discussion of the matter of caring for sick at the sanitarium, and Commissioner Richards thought the city of Waco had been holding the bag and bearing the burden for years, and that parties were brought in from the country outside of Waco, the charge falling on the city. He thought care should be exercised in putting patients in the hospital, being fair to all parties. Providence sanitarium was doing a lot of charity work, but the city of Waco and county of McLennan should bear the burden share and share alike.

Commissioner Richards read from the Waco Morning News regarding discussion which had been had by the county commissioners on this subject. He thought definite and final action should be taken on this hospital matter.

Dr. Hodges said in Fort Worth the city cared for all cases originating in the city limits, while outside the limits the county paid for patients. The city and county had their own hospital.

Commissioner Harlow moved that the city physician draw the line, and the city pay for only patients originating in the city limits.

This motion prevailed unanimously. Bids for an official organ were presented, but only one bid was in, and it was decided to extend the time until the next meeting for further bids.

The commission then adjourned.

You'll want to hear this new record of "Listen to the Mocking Bird"

You know this charming old ballad—the song of your school days which enabled you to demonstrate your whistling abilities. Once the most popular of American songs; and now it is revived by the Victor in a most attractive form.

Alma Gluck gives a most delightful rendition, with some real mocking-bird calls by that famous "Nature Singer," Charles Kellogg.

Venetian Trio

The Neapolitan Trio (violin, flute, harp) and the Venetian Trio (violin, 'cello, harp) are two organizations whose sweet-toned and delightful renditions may justly be pronounced perfect examples of pure music. The two well-known numbers now presented—"I Hear You Calling Me" by the Neapolitan, and "Little Grey Home in the West" by the Venetian—seem especially attractive in instrumental form, and show to advantage the skill of these players.

Little Pickanniny Is Saved From Drowning by Preacher

A little negro was literally scared "nearly to death" yesterday afternoon at a fishing camp on the Bosque. His master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Will Fannin, had taken him with them for a day's fishing with their former pastor, W. Vinsant of Bosqueville.

All went well until about 1:30. The preacher was calmly fishing on a willow log across the river, the fish were biting and all was well. Frank, the little 11-year-old son of Ham, decided to have a swim, and announced his intention to the fisherman.

"Ise gwine swim 'cross dis heah ribber, Brother Vinsant."

"Can you swim, Frank? The current's pretty swift out there."

Mrs. Vinsant, watching from the bank, added her protest also, but the little darky plunged in. The meditations of the fishing preacher were broken into by terrified screams in negro dialect, almost causing a second calamity, as the willow log was no very secure seat. "Save me, mister; I'se drownin'."

The child sank, and as his kinky head disappeared, Mr. Vinsant sprang to the rescue. The willow log was about forty yards above the drowning boy, and the journey had to be made swiftly. A high wall almost perpendicular to the stream made the descent very dangerous, but at last it was accomplished. Then, without removing coat or any of his ordinary apparel, the preacher jumped into the water just as the boy sank for the third time. If he had not been an expert swimmer, the child undoubtedly would have been drowned. As it was, the anxious watchers for awhile despaired of his life, for he had been under water for several seconds when Vinsant reached him. He dived under and pulled him out. As the current was very swift, came very near going down together several times, and there was no one who could swim to help them. The unconscious child was a heavy burden, but at last the rescuer fell panting on the dry sand. Quick hands soon brought the frightened little darky back to life, and he joyously took up the burden of his existence again. He could not be prevailed upon to go in swimming again that day.

Will Fannin is an employe of the Southern Traction company and lives close to the Catholic convent. He expressed himself as intensely gratified over the happy outcome of the near-tragic occurrence, as the 11-year-old boy is a useful adjunct to his family.

Sergeant McClung Tells of Militia Enlistments

Explaining the status of the boys enlisted in companies K and G, Sergt. C. C. McClung has the following letter to Sam Freund of this city:

In regard to the four years which you thought the boys would be held for service in the regular army, I will explain. This is only effective on enlistment, without having been enlisted heretofore in the militia, and also it is effective on re-enlistment after the entire expiration of the present time of enlistment, and is absolutely of no effect in regard to the boys whose enlistments expired, who were enlisted, or did enlist, before the present date, will only be required to serve through enlistment, no matter how short the time. My enlistment, however, is only effective until the expiration of my term in the militia, which is for only a short time of three months from this date.

We are not enlisted in the regular army, but are only volunteers for foreign duty, under the federalized militia, which became federalized under the law which was passed in congress and put into effect, as you know, at the time of the mobilization of the militia at Fort Sam Houston. Therefore, you understand that we are forced to serve out the term from the date of our enlistment in the militia only. Of course, many of the enlistments date back to 1913, in which mine is included. These will only be required to serve out the enlistments, dating back to this time, and will not be required to serve out the enlistment period of three years from date of enlistment of the militia at Fort Sam Houston.

I suppose you noted the fate of those who refused to sign the muster roll at the time of the federalization.

All the boys are doing fine, although we have many hardships to undergo, which is altogether new to the fellows who have been used to living under the electric fans. We hope, however, to soon be in shape, if necessary, to do our duty in Mexico.

I again wish to thank you for your kind consideration shown me in my absence. Yours very truly,

Sergt. C. C. McCLUNG.

Girls' School at Gainesville May Open Next Sept.

Edward Rotan, in a telephone interview yesterday, gave out some very interesting information relative to the Reform School for Girls at Gainesville.

A noted architect drew up the plans, all of which call for expensive and capacious buildings. Several beautiful buildings already have been completed and are awaiting the opening, which probably will be in September or October when all buildings will be thrown open for the reception of the girls. This worthy project has progressed rapidly, bouyed up as it has been by prominent people, both men and women. Patrick Henry is the manager.

The school property comprises about 300 acres, some of which will be in cultivation as the school farm. The buildings will consist of six or eight, elaborately equipped, well furnished and architecturally beautiful. Fifty girls can be domiciled at one time. It is estimated that a quarter of a million dollars has been expended on building and equipping this very modern and up-to-date reform school for girls. Information can be secured from the manager, Patrick Henry, Gainesville, Texas.

Fine Teas and Coffee Handled in Waco by A. & P. Company

There are few people who do not use either tea or coffee, but a vast majority of people use both. For those who use either, a special advantage is given in making purchases from the Atlantic and Pacific Tea and Coffee company. This concern not only handles tea and coffee, but sugar, spices, rice and numerous things. They make a specialty of giving the famous A. & P. checks with each purchase, which are redeemable at their store in useful kitchen utensils of aluminum and granite ware. They also make a specialty of selling sugar to their customers practically at cost.

Like most of the progressive firms of Waco, the Atlantic and Pacific company has experienced a most phenomenal growth, and the indications are that they will continue to grow as the days and months pass by. Special courtesy is shown outside purchasers, and the patrons of this concern throughout the small towns and country around are numbered by the hundreds.

The manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea and Coffee company is Mr. L. M. Cazayoux. He is a man of splendid business ability and is entitled to the success he has attained.

What Papers Are Saying About Marlin Candidate

Tom Connally Club at Mart.

A Tom Connally club was organized Wednesday night at the city hall. The meeting was largely attended and developed into a most enthusiastic event. Permanent organization was gone into and plans laid for team work to continue until Mr. Connally lands in congress.

Organized at McGregor with big membership

The latest "Tom Connally club" to come into existence in McLennan county, in behalf of Hon. Tom Connally of Marlin, is at McGregor. It was organized on Thursday with 150 (one hundred and fifty) members to start with. George H. Caufield is the president, and W. G. Hanover the secretary. There is great enthusiasm on the part of the membership, and President Caufield expects a marked increase in the membership as the weeks go on. "Put it down," he phoned the Tribune yesterday, "that this country out here is going for Tom Connally. We know him, we believe in him, and we want him."—Waco Tribune.

As we go to press on Thursday a Tom Connally club is being organized in this city and vicinity. We understand the membership enrolled up to press hour is very large and we hope by another issue to be able to announce the details of the organization. Mr. Connally has a large number of friends and a big following in this city and vicinity and we understand the organization in the Gatesville precinct is but the beginning step toward a complete organization in this county. From all the indications, the congressional campaign is growing very rapidly in interest over the entire district.—Gatesville Messenger.

PROPOSE LAKE AT BAYLOR

Tom Hamilton Suggests Widening Waco Creek Into Pleasure Lake. Short Session.

The city of Waco will in future be responsible for and care for only patients originating within the city limits, as to hospital care and treatment, according to a motion passed at the meeting yesterday of the city commission, the motion coming as the finale to a long discussion of the hospital matter, the commissioners expressing the view that the county commissioners have not shouldered their portion of the expense for years, as many cases originating outside the limits have, according to the commissioners, been cared for by the city.

T. M. Hamilton, Esq., yesterday suggested to the city commission that Waco creek near Baylor should be straightened, widened and made into a lake for boating, at the same time beautifying the grounds and surroundings. He made a number of other suggestions, one of these being that an ornamental bridge should be built on South Fifth street, near Baylor, to work into a plan of general beautification and improvement there, and that certain unsightly small buildings should be gotten rid of, also. These matters were referred.

The matter of widening South Ninth street so that parties going to the school in the extreme southern part of the city could get through with more ease was presented in a communication from the public school board, and was appropriately referred.

No action was taken yesterday on the charter amendments, but they will come up at the next meeting, as that will be the last chance if they are to be voted on at the same time the vote is taken in the July primaries.

The commission opened at 9:30, with all members present, the meeting being held Wednesday, so commissioners could go on the trade excursion to Palestine today.

W. D. Craig of Kansas City, who has been negotiating a contract for painting the new steel bridge across the Brazos, and with whom a tentative contract had been arranged, asked the commission what he should do about the painting. He said he could not use union labor in having the bridge scraped and prepared for painting, as it would cost more money than he had included in his estimate on the work in his bid.

Commissioner Richards suggested that Mr. Craig take the matter up with the county commission, as Mr. Craig suggested relinquishing the contract. He said the city commission would then consider the proposition.

WOULD MAKE LAKE NEAR BAYLOR.

Tom M. Hamilton, Esq., appeared before the commission and spoke of several matters which he thought of public interest. He first called attention to some "shacks" near Baylor university which he thought should be eliminated in some way if possible, in order to improve the appearance of things.

Mr. Hamilton then urged that an ornamental concrete bridge be built over Waco creek near Baylor, owing to the prominence of this thoroughfare and the institution near the bridge.

He spoke especially, however, of a proposition to widen and straighten Waco creek where it passes through the Baylor grounds, making of it a stream where boating could be enjoyed, saying it would be easy to impound the necessary water. He thought that this stream offered exceptional opportunities for beautification purposes, and that it could be made a great asset and adjunct of Baylor by giving it scientific attention, and by making a lake at the point mentioned. The commissioners showed considerable interest in what he proposed, and the matter was referred to the street commissioner, J. F. Stampp, and to Mayor John Dollins.

The last thing mentioned by Mr. Hamilton was that the street railway company, in making repairs or changes on the tracks, took too much time and kept the streets blocked too much, causing danger zones, in the opinion of Mr. Hamilton. He thought that when they went to work on a street they should have competent men doing the work and should keep at it continuously until it should be completed. This was referred to the city engineer and the street commissioner. Mr. Hamilton thanked the commission and retired, Mayor Dollins telling him to come before the commission at any time he chose.

CATCHER CAN'T GO IN YARDS FOR DOGS.

T. M. Hays appeared before the commission and asked whether the dog catcher had a right to go into one's yard and take a dog.

Mayor Dollins replied, "No," that he did not have the right to go into a yard after a dog, but that owners of dogs which had no tags were subject to a fine after complaint had been filed against them for failure to comply with the ordinance.

Mr. Hays said that the dog catcher had come into his yard and had taken a dog.

"Well, the dog catcher did wrong, and you were wrong in not having a tag on the dog," said the mayor.

The Waco school board said in a communication that South Ninth street should be widened, in order to make it possible to get to the school in a more satisfactory manner.

Street Commissioner Stampp said he would be willing to grade and gravel the street if the street could be opened without cost to the city.

Commissioner Cockcroft suggested that the street commissioner take the matter up with the school board to see i fthe matter can be worked out. This suggestion was followed.

Claim for damages of $5000 was presented by Mrs. S. M. Hall, who stated that a sprained ankle had resulted through a fall on the street. No action taken.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT IS HAMPERED.

Commissioner Cockcroft said his department was hampered by lack of funds, and that he wanted to see the departments all kept up before tacking on any additional expenses. He said people were being taken to the sanitarium and charged to his department—the health department—crippling it further. He did not criticise any one, but asked co-operation in handling the problem.

A batch of sidewalk ordinances were presented for passage, these having been previously shown in these columns. The ordinances were passed, covering many different streets.

DISCUSS SANITARIUM PROBLEM.

Dr. R. H. Hodges was before the commission ,and was asked to make monthly report of the patients taken to Providence sanitarium, as the city is paying for a certain number of patients. Dr. Hodges is working in the place of Dr. M. D. Baker, city physician, who is sick.

There was discussion of the matter of caring for sick at the sanitarium, and Commissioner Richards thought the city of Waco had been holding the bag and bearing the burden for years, and that parties were brought in from the country outside of Waco, the charge falling on the city. He thought care should be exercised in putting patients in the hospital, being fair to all parties. Providence sanitarium was doing a lot of charity work, but the city of Waco and county of McLennan should bear the burden share and share alike.

Commissioner Richards read from the Waco Morning News regarding discussion which had been had by the county commissioners on this subject. He thought definite and final action should be taken on this hospital matter.

Dr. Hodges said in Fort Worth the city cared for all cases originating in the city limits, while outside the limits the county paid for patients. The city and county had their own hospital.

Commissioner Harlow moved that the city physician draw the line, and the city pay for only patients originating in the city limits.

This motion prevailed unanimously.

Bids for an official organ were presented, but only one bid was in, and it was decided to extend the time until the next meeting for further bids.

The commission then adjourned.

Little Pickanniny Is Saved From Drowning by Preacher

A little negro was literally scared "nearly to death" yesterday afternoon at a fishing camp on the Bosque. His master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Will Fannin, had taken him with them for a day's fishing with their former pastor, W. Vinsant of Bosqueville.

All went well until about 1:30. The preacher was calmly fishing on a willow log across the river, the fish were biting and all was well. Frank, the little 11-year-old son of Ham, decided to have a swim, and announced his intention to the fisherman.

"Ise gwine swim 'cross dis heah ribber, Brother Vinsant."

"Can you swim, Frank? The current's pretty swift out there."

Mrs. Vinsant, watching from the bank, added her protest also, but the little darky plunged in. The meditations of the fishing preacher were broken into by terrified screams in negro dialect, almost causing a second calamity, as the willow log was no very secure seat. "Save me, mister; I'se drownin'."

The child sank, and as his kinky head disappeared, Mr. Vinsant sprang to the rescue. The willow log was about forty yards above the drowning boy, and the journey had to be made swiftly. A high wall almost perpendicular to the stream made the descent very dangerous, but at last it was accomplished. Then, without removing coat or any of his ordinary apparel, the preacher jumped into the water just as the boy sank for the third time. If he had not been an expert swimmer, the child undoubtedly would have been drowned. As it was, the anxious watchers for awhile despaired of his life, for he had been under water for several seconds when Vinsant reached him. He dived under and pulled him out. The unconscious child was a heavy burden, but at last the rescuer fell panting on the dry sand. Quick hands soon brought the frightened little darky back to life, and he joyously took up the burden of his existence again. He could not be prevailed upon to go in swimming again that day.
